GENERAL REGULATIONS FOR THE
MILITARY FORCES OF THE
STATE OF NEW-YORK.

ARTICLE I.

MILITARY DISCIPLINE.

1. All inferiors are required to obey strictly, and to execute with alacrity and good faith, the lawful orders of the superiors appointed over them.

2. Military authority is to be exercised with firmness, but with kindness and justice, to inferiors. Punishments shall be strictly conformable to military law.

3. Superiors of every grade are forbidden to injure those under them by tyrannical or capricious conduct, or by abusive language.

ARTICLE II.

DUTIES OF THE SOLDIER.

4. The military forces of the state are organized in pursuance of the provisions of the Constitution of the United States and of this state, for the defence of the country and the maintenance of public order. The citizen soldier will remember that it is upon him, when the civil power has failed, that the state relies for the vindication of its laws and institutions, imperiled from whatever cause; and that in becoming the soldier, he has lost none of the characteristics or duties of the citizen, but has assumed, simply, such further obligations as imperatively demand of him a conduct which shall inspire the confidence and respect of the people.

SUBORDINATION TO CIVIL AUTHORITIES

5. Respect and obedience to the civil authorities of the land is the duty of all citizens, and more particularly of those who are armed in the public service.

6. A civil officer, charged with the execution of process, will, on making known his character and business to the commanding officer of any parade or camp, be permitted to pass and repass all guards and sentinels, for the purpose of executing such process, at reasonable times.

ARTICLE III.

PRECEDENCE AND GRADATION OF OFFICERS AND NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS.

| 7. 1. The Commander-in-Chief, | 8. First Lieutenant. |
| 2. Major-General, | 9. Second Lieutenant, |
| 3. Brigadier-General, | 10. Sergeant-Major, |
| 4. Colonel, | 11. Quartermaster Sergeant, | and in each grade by date of election or appointment.

8. In cases where commissions of the same grade and date interfere, a retrospect is to be had to former commissions in actual service at the time of the appointment, in the assignment and exercise of command, until the rank is determined by lot.

9. When a question of rank shall arise under the last section it shall be settled by lot in the presence of the Commanding Officer of the detachment, Company, Battalion, Regiment, Brigade or Division, or of the Commander-in-Chief, as the case may require.

FOR THE MILITARY FORCES.

Responsibility—Rank and Command.

ARTICLE IV.

GENERAL RESPONSIBILITY.

10. A system of responsibility, embracing the highest and lowest grades, is essential for the maintenance of good order; and every officer is therefore at all times, and under all circumstances, accountable for the enforcement and preservation of the rules and discipline, according to the powers granted him by his commission.

11. The principle of responsibility indicated above will therefore govern the several grades of military persons in their respective duties. For instance, the non-commissioned officers of aquads will be responsible to the Lientenants, the Lieutenants to the Captain, and the Captain to the Colonel; as also will the Sergeant or Chief of Band, and the Non-commissioned Staff, be immediately responsible to the Adjutant, and the Adjutant to the Colonel or Commanding Officer.

RANK AND COMMAND.

12. Whenever different corps or regiments happen to join or do duty together, the officer highest in rank of the line, present on duty, has the right to command the whole, and give the orders needful to the service.

13. An officer entrusted with the command of a post, detachment, guard or separate force, will not surrender it to another officer, unless regularly relieved, except in case of sickness or inability to perform his duty, when the officer next in rank of the line present, and on duty, will succeed, as a matter of course.

14. A Detachment is a body of troops sent from the main body to perform a particular service, and to be absent for a limited time; and may be placed under command of an officer assigned for that purpose.

15. A main body is an army, or any body of troops assembled in the field, or garrison of any fortress or post.

Succession in Command.

16. No staff commission shall confer command, except as expressly provided for by law, tactics or the regulations.

17. Brevet commissions are simply honorary, and confer no command or precedence whatever.

18. No officer shall lose command by reason of temporary absence from his military district. But in case of emergency, viz: invasion, insurrection, or when ordered to aid the civil authority, the senior officer of the line present, belonging respectively to any Division, Brigade, Regiment or Company, will assume the command thereof, and issue such orders as may be necessary in obedience to orders received by him, and he will forthwith transmit notice of the orders so received and issued by him to the regular Commandant of the Division, Brigade, Regiment or Company.

19. When orders for encampment, parade or drill are issued, requiring immediate action, the same rule shall be followed by all subordinate officers as is above given in respect to orders in case of emergency.

20. In camp and in the field, the senior officers of the line, actually present and on duty, with the respective Divisions, Brigades, Regiments and Companies, shall be in command thereof for all the purposes of duty at such camp or in the field; but no officer who may come temporarily in command, in pursuance of any of the foregoing provisions, shall perform any duty of such regular commandant, not connected with the emergency or required to be performed in the camp or field.

ARTICLE V.

SUCCESSION IN COMMAND.

21. An officer who succeeds to any command or duty stands in regard to his duties in the same situation as his predecessor. The officer relieved shall turn over to his successor all orders in force at the time, pertaining to his command or duty. Officers who are promoted, or intend to remove from their command, or have leave of absence, shall also deliver all public property and funds in their hands to their respective successors, and shall take a receipt therefor.

22. An officer rendered supernumerary, or who shall have resigned, shall turn over to his successor in command all the public property in his possession, and all other property pertaining to his command, for which he may be responsible to the State, including books, blanks and documents; and the successor shall give him duplicate receipts for the same, which receipts shall specify the condition of the property. One of these receipts shall be transmitted to the Adjutant-General, to insure a correct accountability, the other retained by the officer relieved, for his own security.

23. An officer in a temporary command shall not, except in urgent cases, alter or annul the standing orders of the regular or permanent commander without authority from the next higher commander.

ARTICLE VI.

RESIGNATION OF OFFICERS.

24. No officer will be considered out of service, on the tender of his resignation, until it shall have been duly accepted by the proper authority.

25. Resignations shall be forwarded, immediately on their acceptance, by the officer accepting the same, to the Adjutant-General; and all vacancies occurring in Regiments, Brigades or Divisions shall be immediately reported, to the Adjutant-General, by the officer in command.

26. In time of war, or with an army in the field, resignations shall take effect within thirty days from the date of the order of acceptance.

ARTICLE VII.

THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF AND HIS STAFF.

27. The Commander-in-Chief, being charged by the Constitution of the State with the command of the military forces thereof, will have under his supervision the whole military establishment in all its various departments. He will order from time to time such parades, encampments and drills of the military forces, or any part thereof, or of the commissioned officers, as he may deem necessary for improvement, instruction and discipline, or to meet any special exigency of the state. At the encampments and drills of commissioned officers, he will appoint such competent persons as instructors, and will require such military service to be performed, as he may see fit, irrespective of all questions of rank.

28. The Staff of the Commander-in-Chief, and the several Staff Departments, shall rank as follows:

- | | |
|----------------------------|---------------------------|
| 1. Adjutant-General, | 6. Surgeon-General, |
| 2. Inspector-General, | 7. Quartermaster-General, |
| 3. Commissary-General, | 8. Paymaster-General, |
| 4. Engineer-in-Chief, | 9. Aids de Camp, |
| 5. Judge Advocate-General, | 10. Military Secretary. |

ARTICLE VIII.

COMMANDING OFFICERS.

29. An officer invested with command is responsible for the discipline of the troops under his orders, and for the good condition of everything entrusted to his charge. It is his duty to see that the regulations are strictly enforced, that the necessary arms, equipments and ammunition are procured from the Commissary-General, and kept in a proper state; that his command is properly instructed and exercised; that the required drills, improvement meetings and parades are ordered; and he will hold himself, and the forces subject to his control, ready at all times for active service, upon the shortest notice.

ARTICLE IX.

REGIMENTS.

30. The regiment is the unit of organization in the militia; companies are simply subdivisions of that unit.

Regiments.

81. Unanimity and good understanding amongst the officers, as connected with the character and discipline of a regiment, are objects peculiarly deserving the attention of the commanding officer. His timely interference to prevent disputes; his advice to the young and inexperienced; his protection of, and favor to the deserving; and his immediate reprehension of any conduct likely to interrupt the harmony of the corps, are the best means of securing these desirable ends, towards the attainment of which he has a right to demand, and ought to receive, the assistance of every officer. It is well known that perfect civility, and the most conciliatory manners, are compatible with the exercise of the strictest command; and it is to be observed, that the commanding officer is equally responsible for the maintenance of discipline and subordination in his regiment, whether on parade, at the mess, or in any other situation.

82. To promote the attainment of a knowledge of parade duties, the commanders of regiments will, at their discretion, but under their own eye, direct the field officers and captains to take command of the parade, without regard to their respective rank.

83. The battalion companies of regiments doing duty as infantry, will be drawn up in line from right to left, as follows: First, fifth, fourth, seventh, third, eighth, sixth, second, according to the rank of their respective captains; and after the companies once have their positions assigned, they will retain them for all subsequent formations, until a change is directed by the commanding officer.

84. In regiments doing duty as Light Infantry, the order from right to left will be, first, sixth, fourth, ninth, third, eighth, fifth, tenth, seventh, second. If there be nine companies, or a less number, the rule will be the same; the first and second captains on the right and left, and the third captain with the right centre company. All regiments having more than eight companies doing duty in the same arm, will follow the order prescribed in this paragraph.

85. Flank Companies doing duty in the same arm as the Battalion, will be uniformed and take post, as Battalion companies. But no flank company will be permitted to do duty with the regiment in any other arm than that in which it is organized, except by the special order of the Commander-in-Chief.

36. The section of Light Artillery authorized to be attached to a regiment, will consist of one First and one Second Lieutenant, one ordnance sergeant, one first and one second sergeant, two corporals, and not more than twenty-four nor less than fourteen privates. Applications for the organization of sections must be signed by at least eighteen persons liable to military duty in the regimental district; and must be consented to and approved in the manner required for companies. Ordnance sergeants take grade next before first sergeants.

37. Every article, excepting arms and accoutrements, belonging to the regiment, is to be marked with the number of the regiment.

Such articles as belong to companies are to be marked with the letter of the company and number of the regiment; and such as belong to men, with their individual numbers, and the letter of the company.

38. Sergeant standard bearers, trumpet-major and drum-major of a regiment, rank as first sergeants.

ARTICLE X.

COMPANIES — OFFICERS.

39. Captains or commanders of companies fill one of the most important situations in the service, when they are viewed in relation to the direct influence they exercise upon the soldiery; to them, therefore, attaches the high responsibility of the instruction, good order, efficiency, and discipline of their appropriate commands, and no one should be elected to that office unless well qualified, or willing to qualify himself, for the faithful performance of the duties of the station.

40. It is expected that every Commandant of a company, who has been commissioned one year, shall be capable of commanding and exercising his company in every situation, and perfectly acquainted with its interior management and discipline. Commandants of companies will be held responsible for the accuracy of the rolls of the uniformed members of their respective companies, and should carefully correct them before they issue notices for company elections.

41. In case of a vacancy in the office of Captain, or in his absence, the command of the company will devolve on the officer next in rank; and should a company be left without a commissioned officer, while on duty, the Commander of the regiment will order an officer of another company to take the command. Captains will require their Lieutenants to assist them in the performance of all company duties; the knowledge thus acquired being essential to every company officer.

42. It is the duty of Lieutenants to distribute such orders as the Commanding Officer may direct, and to assist him in making out rolls, reports and returns, in keeping the books of the company, and in all duties pertaining to its welfare. Each Lieutenant will be charged with a squad or squads of the company to which he belongs, for the supervision of order, cleanliness and discipline.

NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS.

43. It is of essential importance to the service that the station and respectability of the non-commissioned officer be upheld; and that none but judicious and well qualified persons be elected thereto. It is enjoined upon all officers to be cautious in reproving non-commissioned officers in the presence or hearing of privates, lest their authority be weakened; and non-commissioned officers are not to be sent to the guard-room and mixed with privates during confinement, but be considered as placed in arrest, except in aggravated cases where escape may be apprehended.

44. In case of neglect of duty, misconduct or inefficiency upon the part of any non-commissioned officer, authority is vested in the Commandant of the regiment to annul his warrant and reduce him to the ranks.

Companies — Internal Economy — Arms — Accoutrements, &c.

45. Uniform companies may, by their by-laws, prescribe the length of time for which any or all of their non-commissioned officers are elected.

46. Independent of the particular duties required of non-commissioned officers, when in the ranks, according to the systems of tactical instruction, it is also their duty, on parades or in camp, to observe the conduct of the privates, and to report to their immediate Commandant every breach of the regulations, or of the orders of the parade or camp.

INTERNAL ECONOMY OF COMPANIES.

47. The Captain will cause the men of the company to be numbered, in a regular series including the non-commissioned officers, and divided into four squads, each to be put under the charge of a non-commissioned officer.

48. As far as practicable, the men of each squad will be quartered together.

49. The utmost attention will be paid by commanders of companies to the cleanliness of their men, as to their persons, clothing, arms, accoutrements and equipments, and also as to their quarters or tents.

50. In armories, the arms should be placed in arm racks, stoppers in the muzzles, the cocks let down, the bayonets in their scabbards, the accoutrements suspended over the arms, and the swords (if any) hung by the belts on pegs, and the number of the soldier placed against them.

51. Commanders of companies and squads will see that the arms and accoutrements in possession of the men are kept in good order, and that proper care be taken in cleaning them.

52. Commanders of companies will see that belts are properly fitted to the body; and it is strictly forbidden to cut them without the sanction of the commander of the company, and then only when it is ascertained to be impossible to make them fit properly without. Pipe clay or whiting will be used to clean them, if the belts are white.

53. Cartridge boxes and bayonet scabbards should be polished with blacking—varnish is injurious to the leather.

54. All arms and equipments issued to the troops, when not in use, will be kept in proper armeries under the charge of suitable persons, and they will always be placed in condition for immediate use. The barrel of the musket or other fire-arm will constantly be kept clean and free from rust; great care should be taken in rubbing to prevent bruising or bending the barrel; it should never be rubbed lengthwise. After firing, it will be necessary to wash out the bore, to wipe it dry, and then to pass a bit of cloth, slightly greased, to the bottom. In these operations a rod of wood, with a loop in one end, is to be used instead of the rammer, which is never to be thus employed when it can be avoided. The bore of the barrel will at all times, except in exercise, be secured against the weather by means of a tompson. A rind of fresh pork, without salt, is better than oil for greasing the metallic parts of the musket. Arms, with percussion locks, require to be handled with much care to prevent the hammer (cock) from becoming loose, by which its direct fall on the cone (nipple) would be rendered uncertain; and snapping the piece without a cap upon the cone is prohibited, unless the cone is covered, or otherwise protected.

When unloaded, they will at all times be used with the hammer down upon the cone; but when loaded, and the cap or primer being on the cone, the piece will be carried half-cocked for safety. When there is no cap on the cone, the vent will be closed, with the hammer resting upon it. For exercise each soldier will keep provided a piece of sole leather to fit the cup or countersink of the hammer.

55. Troops having arms with the Maynard lock, will be careful to remove from the magazine of the lock, the primer or tape, when off duty, and replace it in the boxes to be provided for such purpose, to be kept in the cartridge boxes.

Companies — Internal Economy — Ammunition — Knapsacks — Drums, &c.

56. At no time, and under no pretence, are the arms to be left loaded in armories, quarters or tents, or when men are off duty, unless in expectation of an attack; and no person shall, while on duty, load his gun without orders.

57. No company or regiment, or any part thereof, shall, on any parade or occasion, appear with arms loaded or ball cartridges in their boxes, without permission or orders from the Commandant of their regiment or brigade, except in cases otherwise provided for by law.

58. To carry out the foregoing regulation, Commandants of companies, before appearing on parade, are required to cause the arms and accoutrements of their men to be examined, loads to be drawn, and cartridge boxes to be emptied.

59. Ammunition will be frequently exposed to the dry air, or sunned.

60. Ammunition issued to troops will, to prevent waste or injury, be inspected frequently; each man will be made to pay for the rounds expended without orders, or not in the way of duty, or which may be damaged or lost by his neglect.

61. The greatest precaution is necessary to ascertain that no ball cartridges are mixed with the blank cartridges issued to the men.

62. All knapsacks are to be painted black; those for the Artillery will be marked in the centre of the cover with the number of the regiment, in figures $1\frac{1}{2}$ inch in length, of the character called full face, with yellow paint; those for the Infantry and other corps, marked in the same way, with white paint. The knapsack straps will be black.

63. The knapsacks will also be marked upon the inner side with the letter of the company, and the number of the soldier, on such part as may be readily observed at inspections.

Companies—Internal Economy—Drums, Dress, Guns, Carriages and Implements.

64. Haversacks will be marked upon the flap with the number of the regiment, the letter of the company and number of the soldier, in black letters and figures. It will be worn on the left side on marches, guard, and when paraded for detached service—the canteen outside the haversack.

65. The front of the drums will be marked with the arms of the state, on a blue field for the Infantry, and on a red field for the Artillery. The letter of the company and number of the regiment, under the arms, in a scroll.

66. The prescribed dress for officers and soldiers will be strictly complied with, and no officer will be justified in making or allowing any alterations therein.

67. Officers, on duty with troops, will wear their proper uniform.

68. Soldiers on duty will wear the prescribed uniform. When on fatigue parties they will wear the proper fatigue dress.

69. When in camp or on parades, if the weather or circumstances should make it necessary for the comfort or health of officers or privates on duty, the Commandant, by special order, may authorize the use of additional clothing.

70. All field-pieces issued to companies or regiments should be kept clean and dry; their vents frequently examined to see that they are clear; the elevating screw wiped clean, worked and oiled. When tarpaulins are placed over them, they should occasionally be removed, the guns and carriages brushed off, and, if damp, allowed to dry.

71. An old sponge staff and head should be used for drill. The new sponges should never be used unless the gun is fired. The implements should all be kept under cover, and should be examined and cleaned as often as once a month. The harness and leather articles should be brushed and greased with neat's foot oil as often as their condition requires it; if they have a reddish hue, mix a little lamp-black with the oil. First brush the leather carefully, then pass over it a sponge wet with lukewarm water, then apply the oil with a soft brush before the leather is quite dry.

72. The ammunition should be frequently examined, and kept dry. Cartridge bags should be kept ready for filling; also port-fires, fuzes, tubes and primers ready for use.

73. In camp or barracks, the company officers must visit the kitchen daily and inspect the kettles, and, at all times, carefully attend to the messing and economy of their respective companies. The commanding officer of the post or regiment will make frequent inspections of the kitchens and messes.

74. On marches, and in the field, the only mess furniture of the soldier will be one tin plate, one tin cup, one knife, fork and spoon to each man, to be carried by himself on the march.

75. Messes will be prepared by privates of aquads, including private musicians, each taking his tour, unless other provision is made for cooking.

76. No persons will be allowed to visit or remain in the kitchens, except such as may come on duty, or be occupied as cooks.

ARTICLE XI.

DISABILITY AND EXPULSIONS.

77. Whenever any non-commissioned officer, musician or private shall become incapable of performing his duties, in consequence of disease or infirmity, and shall so continue for the space of one year, or whenever the surgeon of any regiment shall furnish the Commandant thereof with a certificate of the permanent disability of such person to perform military duty, the Commandant of such regiment may give to said non-commissioned officer, musician or private a discharge from further service in the company, and upon presenting the same to the commandant thereof, his name shall be stricken from the rolls.

78. For violation of the by-laws of any uniformed company, any non-commissioned officer, musician or private, by a vote of the company, may be expelled therefrom; and, upon the action of the company being confirmed in orders by the Commandant of the regiment, the name of such person shall be stricken from the roll of such company.

(See Title 5, Art. 1, § 82, Militia Law, passed 1854.)

79. Commandants of companies shall report immediately to the Commandant of the regiment the action of the company in relation to expulsions, for his approval or disapproval.

ARTICLE XII.

ABSENCE.

80. The Commander-in-Chief and the Commandants of Brigades may grant leave of absence to commissioned officers in the cases herein prescribed; and every officer who shall be absent from his command twelve months, without leave of the commanding officer of his brigade, shall be considered as having vacated his office, and a new election shall be held, without delay, to fill the vacancy so created.

[Title 2d, § 88, Militia Law of 1854.]

81. Commandants of Brigades may grant leave of absence for four months beyond the time contemplated by the foregoing regulation, but in no case will such leave be granted when a regimental district shall be left without a commissioned field officer in command.

82. When an officer shall design to be continuously absent from his command for the period of four months, or longer, at any one time, he shall apply for leave of absence to the Commander-in-Chief, if he be a general officer, or upon the staff of the Commander-in-Chief, or the staff of a division; and if he be not, then to the commandant of his brigade. If such application be granted, and the person so applying is a commanding officer, the officer next in rank entitled to such command shall be placed in command; and all orders shall thenceforth be issued to and by the officer so placed in temporary command, until the officer absent shall report himself for duty.

83. No such leave will be granted, unless the Commandant of the regiment, if the applicant be a field or company officer, shall consent thereto; and in the case of subaltern officers, the Commandant of the company, and the officer next in rank below the officer who may obtain such leave, must be forthwith notified thereof by the officer granting such leave.

84. In no case will leaves of absence be granted, so that a company be left without one of its commissioned officers, or that a garrisoned post or camp be left without two commissioned officers and competent medical attendance; nor shall leave of absence be granted to an officer during the season of active operations, except on urgent necessity.

85. Whenever an officer on duty is detached for the performance of a specified duty, that service being performed, he will return to his previous station, unless otherwise directed, and report immediately to the Commanding Officer.

FURLONGHS.

86. Every Colonel or other officer commanding a regiment, may give furloughs to non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates, in such numbers and for so long a time as he may deem proper, but the Commanding Officer of the force may prohibit the granting of furloughs.

87. Soldiers on furlough will not be permitted to take their arms or accoutrements.

88. If a soldier fail to rejoin his regiment, company or troop on the expiration of his furlough, and no satisfactory reason be rendered for his continued absence, he shall be returned for disobedience of orders, and in case of war, as a deserter, and proceeded against accordingly.

thereof; and whosoever shall refuse to obey such officer (though of an inferior rank), or shall draw his sword upon him, shall be amenable to trial by court martial.

99. An arrest is the suspension of the military functions of an officer, non-commissioned officer, musician or private, by the direction of some officer having authority to order such arrest.

100. A formal arrest is made by communicating to the person arrested the order of the officer directing the arrest.

101. A forcible arrest is only warranted when necessary to place the person arrested under guard or in confinement, as authorized by law.

102. None but Commanding Officers have power to place officers under arrest, except for offences expressly designated in the first section of this article.

103. Officers will not be put in arrest for light offences. For these, the censure of the Commanding Officer will, in most cases, answer the purposes of discipline.

104. Any person under guard or in confinement may have such limits assigned him as his Commanding Officer shall direct. Close confinement will not be resorted to unless under aggravated circumstances.

105. In ordinary cases, where inconvenience to the service would result from it, a Medical Officer will not be put in arrest until the court martial for his trial convenes.

106. The arrest of an officer, or confinement of a soldier, will, as soon as practicable, be notified to his immediate Commander.

107. All prisoners under guard, without written charges, will be released by the officer of the day, at guard-mounting, unless orders to the contrary be given by the Commanding Officer.

108. On a march, company officers and non-commissioned officers in arrest, when present, will follow in the rear of their respective companies, unless otherwise particularly ordered. Field Officers, commissioned and non-commissioned Staff Officers, under the same circumstances, will follow in the rear of their respective regiments.

109. An officer under arrest will not wear a sword, or visit officially his Commanding or other superior officer, unless sent for; and in case of business, he will make known his object in writing.

110. Individuals placed under arrest may be released, without being brought before a court martial, by the authority ordering the arrest, or by superior authority.

ARTICLE XVI.

OF COURTS MARTIAL FOR THE TRIAL OF COMMISSIONED OFFICERS.

111. The officer empowered to order a court martial, and wishing to do so, will issue an order, directing that a court martial shall assemble at a certain time and place, specifying the names of the members of the court and the object for which it is organized.

112. A copy of such order, and a copy of the charges and specifications, shall in all cases be served on the officer accused, either personally, or by leaving the same with some person of suitable age and discretion at his place of business or abode, at least ten days before the day named in such order for the convening of the court.

113. "No officer arrested shall be brought to trial, unless a copy of the charges and specifications, certified by the officer ordering the arrest, shall be delivered to him or left at his usual place of abode within three days after his arrest; nor, unless the officer ordering such court martial shall have ordered the same within thirty days after receiving notice of the arrest and a copy of the charges and specifications; nor until ten days after a copy of a list of the names of the officers detailed to form the court shall have been delivered to the officer arrested or left at his usual place of abode."

Courts Martial.

114. It shall not be necessary to designate the President of the court in the order; and in case the President is not designated in the order, the highest in rank has the right to preside. In case the President is named in the order, and he shall be challenged and set aside or otherwise prevented from attending, the court cannot proceed until the officer ordering the court designate another officer to supply the vacancy.

115. "If the officer accused shall have any cause of challenge to any member of such court, he shall, within a reasonable time after receiving a copy of the charges and a list of the members, deliver his cause of challenge, in writing, to the officer ordering such court, who shall, thereupon, determine as to the validity of such challenge; and if, in his opinion, the causes are sufficient, he shall appoint another member of such court."

116. Such challenges shall be submitted on proofs, which may be affidavits, duly sworn to, before any officer authorized to administer judicial oaths, or the oral testimony of witnesses sworn before the officer trying such challenges. No challenge to the President of a court martial can be made, except to the officer ordering the court. The causes of such challenges will be the same as are herein provided in cases of other challenges.

117. At the place and on the day appointed, the members of the court will assemble; but they cannot proceed to any business except to adjourn, unless the Judge Advocate be present. If the Judge Advocate does not appear, the President of the court may appoint a special Judge Advocate.

Each of the members will then report to the Judge Advocate the date of his commission and his office, who will prepare a roster, according to rank, previous to calling the several members for organization.

118. The Judge Advocate will then read aloud the order for holding the court; he will also call over the names of the members, commencing with the President and descending to the youngest, and the members will take their seats according to rank on the right and left of the President. The Judge Advocate will take his seat opposite the President. Staff rank, when actually held, will be as available as lineal rank in military courts.

119. The Judge Advocate will then call the prosecutor, if there be one, who will take his station on the left; and the accused, who will take his station on the right of the Judge Advocate; who will then, standing up, read again the order for assembling the court, and administer the oath prescribed by law to the President, who cannot at this stage of the proceedings be challenged.

120. If the number of members present be below the minimum prescribed by law, they can do no business except to adjourn from time to time to await the arrival of absent members, or to communicate the fact to the officer ordering the court, in order that their places may be filled.

121. The President will appoint, under his hand and seal, a Marshal; and when all, or a sufficient number of members are present at the calling of the roll of their names by the Judge Advocate, they may at once proceed to organize for business.

122. Accommodation should be afforded for the accuser and the accused; also, for any friend or legal adviser of the accused or prosecutor, the benefit of whose assistance they may respectively desire during the trial. But the Judge Advocate and the accused only, will be permitted to address the court; it being an admitted maxim in military courts, that counsel are not to interfere in the proceedings, or to offer any remarks, or to discuss or argue any question.

123. The Judge Advocate will then demand of the accused whether he has any exceptions or cause of challenge against any of the members present, other than the President, not known to him in time to deliver them to the officer ordering the court, as required by law; and if he has, he is required to state the cause of such challenge, confining the same to one member at a time. Peremptory challenges are not allowed at a court martial; the party must, therefore, assign his cause of challenge, which is to be regularly entered on the proceedings.

124. The accused may also object, at this stage of the proceedings, to the authority of the court, for any cause, to proceed to trial. And all he will be deemed to admit, by not objecting, is, that the court is a legal court. The privilege of challenges extends to the accused, to the prosecutor and to the Judge Advocate.

125. Sufficient causes of challenge are:

1. Having expressed or formed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused;

2. Having been a member of a court which gave an opinion in the case; or, of another court martial in which the subject-matter was investigated and decided;

3. Prejudice, malice or any like cause, which would disqualify a juror in a civil case.

And when a member of the court is challenged, the court shall be cleared, and the member challenged will retire, and the court will determine the challenge.

126. When the facts constituting the cause of challenge are not admitted by the opposite party, the same shall be established by proof; and the members of the court only, who are not challenged, shall participate in the trial and decision of the challenge.

127. In all cases where the vote is equally divided on a challenge, the decision shall be deemed to be in favor of the party challenging.

128. If, in consequence of challenges, the court shall be reduced below the legal number, all further proceedings in the case must be suspended, and the matter reported to the officer ordering the court; who may order a new court, or designate additional members of the same court; in which case the trial will be recommenced, allowing the like privilege of challenge to any such new court or additional member.

Courts Martial.

129. " After the court shall be assembled, and after all challenges, if any are made, shall have been determined, the Judge Advocate, whether commissioned or special, shall administer to each member the following oath: ' You, _____, do swear that you will faithfully discharge the duties of a member of a court martial now assembled, according to the best of your ability.' "

[Militia Laws of April 17, 1854, tit. 7, art. 1, § 9.]

130. After the members of the court have been sworn by the Judge Advocate, the President of the court shall administer the like oath to the Judge Advocate, if he has been specially appointed as such.

131. The court being thus regularly constituted, the President will order the Marshal to open the court, which may be done by proclamation, as follows:

Hear ye! Hear ye! Hear ye! All persons having any business to do before this court martial, here assembled, let them draw near, give their attention and they shall be heard.

Subsequent adjournments may be proclaimed in the following form:

Hear ye! Hear ye! Hear ye! All persons having any further business before this court martial, here assembled, let them depart hence and return to-morrow, at _____ o'clock, _____ noon, to which time the court stands adjourned.

132. Applications to put off or to suspend the trial may be urged before a court martial at any time subsequent to swearing its members. But all applications to delay the assembling of a court martial, from the absence or indisposition of a witness, the illness of the parties, or other cause, must be made to the authority ordering the court.

133. The court will always sit with open doors, except while deliberating, when the President will order the court to be cleared for deliberation; or for any incidental discussion, at the instance of any member or the Judge Advocate.

134. After a court martial has once assembled, it sits in pursuance of law; and neither the Commander-in-Chief nor the authority by which it was convened can in any manner interfere with its proceedings. The court exists until it be dissolved by the authority which appointed it, or a higher authority, after its decision shall have been approved or disapproved by the officer ordering it.

But should the court deem it proper to refer to the officer ordering the court, for instructions, any reply which he may make, or any consideration which he may think proper to lay before the court, in answer to this reference, will always be entitled to a respectful consideration, though it is in no way incumbent on the court to be governed thereby.

135. The organization of the court being completed, by all the members taking the oath required, the Judge Advocate will then proceed to read the charges and specifications; and to ask the accused, separately, on each charge and specification, if he be guilty or not guilty of the charge (or specification) just read.

136. The charges must state clearly and distinctly some military offence, of which the accused is alleged to be guilty, so that he may know precisely the offence of which he is accused.

137. The specifications to the charge must allege certain specified acts done by the accused, which are supposed to constitute the general offence named in the charge.

138. Both charges and specifications must be so distinctly alleged that neither the accused nor the court can have any difficulty in knowing what is the precise object of the investigation.

139. After the charges and specifications have been approved by the proper authority, and ordered to be investigated, neither the Judge Advocate nor any other person is competent to change them, except in the case of a plea in abatement, without the consent of such authority.

140. All charges shall be preferred in the name of the People of the State of New-York, and may be made:

1. On the relation of a Commissioned Officer;

Courts Martial

2. On the report of a Court of Inquiry ;

3. On the official return or report of an Inspecting Officer or officer of the Adjutant-General's department. Where, on the relation of an officer, the caption of the charges shall contain the name and office of the relator, who shall be considered as the prosecutor.

141. Charges, when made by a Commissioned Officer, shall be subscribed by him ; and when made on the report of a court or officer, or other official return, they shall be subscribed by the Judge Advocate. And all copies of charges, served on the accused, shall be certified by the officer ordering the arrest.

142. The accused must be properly described in the charges by his name and office ; stating the division, brigade and regiment to which he belongs.

143. The specifications must always charge the accused by name, and the addition of his office, held at the time of the alleged offence, with having at such a time, and at such a place, done certain acts which amount, or are alleged to amount, to the offence stated in the charge.

144. Time and place must be stated in each specification ; but if a doubt exist as to the precise time and place, it may be set forth that the fact occurred on or about such a time, and at or near such a place. The court will then judge what latitude of time and place may be covered by this form of expression ; and when the offence charged consists of language used, the precise words should be stated.

145. Officers and soldiers will be held amenable to the military law and tribunals for offences committed by them while on duty, whether in uniform or not ; and they will be deemed to be on duty during the performance of any service which may be lawfully required of them, and while going to and returning from the performance of such service.

146. Commissioned officers will also be amenable to the military courts upon charges for unofficer-like conduct, when such conduct has reference to, or connection with the military duties, in the discharge of which the accused, or the accuser may be, or may have been, engaged.

147. Military courts will also exercise jurisdiction, upon the proper charges, of unofficer-like conduct or disrespect to a superior officer, when the offence is committed by an officer while wearing his uniform or any part of it, though he may not be on duty.

148. No person shall be liable to be tried and punished by a court martial for any offence which shall appear to have been committed more than two years before the issuing of the order for such trial; unless the person, by reason of having absented himself from the state, or some other impediment, shall not have been amenable to justice within that period.

149. Where an officer, in commission, shall be proceeded against for an offence committed within two years before the commencement of the proceedings, a discharge or resignation, subsequent to the committing of such offence, shall not bar such proceedings.

150. When the charges and specifications are read to the accused, by the Judge Advocate, and he is asked whether he be guilty or not guilty, the accused must plead thereto, either:

1. Guilty; or,
2. To the jurisdiction; by alleging that the offence with which he is charged is not, by law, cognizable by the court; or, that he is not subject by law to be tried by a court martial; or,
3. In abatement; for misnomer, or a wrong or false addition to his name; in which case he is bound to state what his real name or addition is, and the court may then amend the charges and specifications to meet the objection, and proceed to the trial; or,
4. In bar; a former trial, and acquittal or conviction, for the same offence before a military court having competent jurisdiction; or any other plea assigning sufficient reason why he ought not to answer or be put on his trial; or,

Courts Martial.

5. He may demur; by pleading that if the facts stated in the specification were true, they would not amount, as stated, to the offence charged; or,

6. He may plead not guilty.

151. In case the charges which have been served upon the accused are altered, a certified copy of them, as so altered, shall be served upon the accused ten days before the day of trial, by direction of the officer ordering the court, except as provided in paragraph 150.

152. The accused cannot plead in bar that he has not been furnished with a correct copy of the charges and specifications; but in such case the court will adjourn, so as to admit of proper service.

153. There need not be any special form in making these pleas. When a plea other than guilty or not guilty, is pleaded, it shall be sufficient for the accused to state verbally, or in writing, that he objects to being tried on such a charge or such a specification, for such and such reasons, and that he, therefore, requests the court to dismiss the same at once. The plea of guilty or not guilty may be to the whole or any part of any charge or specification.

154. The accused may, in all cases, introduce evidence to support his preliminary pleas; so, also, may the Judge Advocate, in like manner, rebut the allegations of the pleas.

155. When the specifications do not amount to any offence cognizable by a military court, the accused may either take advantage of it by a demurrer, or by a plea to the jurisdiction, or under the plea of not guilty.

156. Though the accused may have made any or all of the preliminary pleas, he is yet at liberty, if they be not sustained by the court, or after a plea of abatement, if the charges be amended, to plead not guilty.

157. If, from obstinacy or design, the accused does not answer at all, or answers foreign to the purpose, he will be regarded as standing mute; and, in all such cases, and also whenever the accused neglects or refuses to appear for trial, the court will proceed to trial and judgment as if he had regularly pleaded not guilty.

158. If the accused plead guilty to all the charges and specifications, the court will proceed to determine what punishment shall be awarded, and pronounce sentence thereon accordingly. But, on motion of the accused, they may examine witnesses to ascertain more fully the nature of the offence, before passing sentence. If he plead guilty to only a part of the charges or specifications, the court will proceed with the trial upon the residue, and reserve the sentence until the trial is finally closed.

159. When the accused pleads not guilty, and the trial is ready to proceed, the witnesses should be ordered out of court, and the Judge Advocate then opens the case by making a general statement to the court, previous to the examination of witnesses, of the facts which he intends to prove, and the order in which he intends to prove them.

160. After the Judge Advocate has opened the case of the prosecution, and previous to the examination of any witnesses, the accused shall be permitted, if he desire it, to make to the court a statement of his theory of the case, and of what he expects to be able to prove, and what he will insist upon as repelling the charges and specifications, or as constituting his defence.

161. Reference is made to art. 4, tit. 7, of Militia Laws, passed April 17, 1854, where the manner of enforcing the attendance of witnesses and swearing them will be found.

162. A witness may not only be subpoenaed to appear, but also to bring with him any documents in his possession or under his control; and any person present in court may be required to give evidence, though not previously summoned. It shall be the duty of all military officers to obey all subpoenas issued by a court martial, when duly served on them; and the refusal to do so, without sufficient reason, will be treated as a military offence.

Courts Martial.

163. It shall be the right of either party to insist that all witnesses, except the one under examination, shall leave the court during such examination; and if either party apply for such an order, it will not be competent for the court to refuse it. No person who has been present at the examination of a witness, shall, himself, be afterwards examined as a witness, unless by special order of the court.

164. It is also a matter of right for either party to have a witness out of court, while a discussion of a legal question is going on as to his testimony; and either party is allowed to take exceptions to the competency of a witness; but these must be stated in open court and recorded in the proceedings, after which the court will decide on their validity.

165. The President must administer the oath to the witnesses, and it will be in the following form, if on the Gospels: "You do solemnly swear, in the presence of Almighty God, that," &c. If with uplifted hand: "You solemnly swear, by the ever-living God, that" &c. If the witness affirms: "You do solemnly, sincerely and truly declare and affirm, that the evidence you shall give in the case now in hearing, between the People of the State of New-York and the accused now on trial, shall be the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. So help you God."

166. When a witness has been sworn, he will be examined in chief by the party calling him; and upon such examination leading questions will not be allowed to be put to him.

167. Before a court martial, all questions to a witness must be proposed in writing, and recorded by the Judge Advocate, before being propounded to the witness; and when recorded, they cannot be erased. If objected to, the objection must be recorded, and after hearing any pertinent remarks from the objector, and from the party putting the question, the court should be cleared for deliberation, with closed doors, its decision recorded, and the court reopened, the decision made known to the parties, and the trial proceeded with.

Courts Martial.

168. The examination of witnesses must, invariably, be in the presence of each member of the court. The appearance and manner of a witness add to or take away from the weight of his testimony; and all evidence whatever should be recorded in the proceedings, in the order in which it is received by the court.

169. When a witness, examined in chief, by his conduct shows himself decidedly adverse to the party calling him, it will be in the discretion of the court to allow him to be examined as if he were on cross-examination.

170. The prosecution having closed the examination of a witness, the accused has the right to cross-examine him, or he may, by the custom of courts martial, defer his cross-examination until all the prosecutor's witnesses have been examined. The cross-examination need not be confined to matters alleged in the accusation, or to matters already stated in the evidence on behalf of the prosecution. If the cross-examination of the witness is deferred by the accused, he shall himself produce the witness for cross-examination, and in case he shall fail to do so, or to cross-examine him when produced, he shall be deemed to have waived the cross-examination.

171. Leading questions will be allowed on a cross-examination, in which greater latitude will be given to parties than in the original examination. The form of the cross-examination, however, should depend, in some degree, like that of an examination in chief, upon the bias and disposition evinced by the witness under examination; and leading questions should not be put to a witness clearly in the interest of the party cross-examining him.

172. Questions will not be allowed to be put, as to any distinct collateral fact, for the purpose of discrediting the witness, by calling other testimony to contradict him; nor should it be assumed that the witness has made statements in chief, which he has not made; nor should questions be put which assume a fact not in proof, excepting where the opinion of the witness is competent evidence.

Courts Martial.

173. After the accused has closed his cross-examination, the prosecutor may re-examine the witness; but this re-examination must be strictly and rigidly confined to new matter elicited by the cross-examination, unless by special permission of the court.

174. If a party examine a witness as to anything which may have been said by the adverse party, such adverse party shall have the right to call out all that was said by him in the same conversation; provided, only, that it relate to the subject matter of the trial.

175. The party calling a witness will not be allowed to give general evidence that he is not to be believed under oath; but may prove the facts by other witnesses, notwithstanding the contrary statements of any witness whom he may have called.

176. Courts martial should be cautious in receiving evidence as to opinion, except where matters of skill and judgment are involved; then, witnesses conversant with a particular trade or profession, and scientific persons, may give their opinion on matters of their profession or trade. In all other cases the witness should only speak of facts within his own knowledge.

177. Documentary evidence, before it can be received, must be duly authenticated, or proved to be genuine, unless admitted to be so.

178. A witness may refer to a memorandum, in order to refresh his memory; and if he can then speak to the facts from recollection of them, his testimony as to such facts shall be received.

179. A witness cannot be compelled to answer any question which has a tendency to expose him to any criminal prosecution. In such case, the witness must be allowed to judge for himself, and if he says on oath that he cannot answer without criminating himself, he should not be compelled to answer.

180. Military courts, will take notice of all laws and published rules and regulations established by the Commander-in-Chief, without the same being otherwise proved; and are governed in their proceedings, first, by the written military laws and regulations, and next by the customs of war. They will, therefore, disregard any discordant or unsuitable axioms or rules of civil courts, but will conform to the rules of evidence obtaining in such courts.

181. After all the evidence on the part of the prosecution has been produced, the accused will enter upon his defence. If he desire it, a reasonable delay will be allowed him to arrange and prepare his case. He may, if he choose, before calling his witnesses, make a general statement to the court of the evidence he proposes to offer and its bearing upon the case. In his defence he need not confine himself to rebutting the evidence on the part of the prosecution; he may produce in evidence any matter whatsoever which tends to exculpate himself or palliate his conduct.

182. In case the accused has introduced new matter in his defence, the prosecution may call witnesses to disprove or rebut the same.

183. Before any witness leaves the court, the record of his testimony should be read over to him, so that, if erroneous, he may correct or explain the same; but no erasure or obliteration will be admitted. Any remarks or explanation must be entered in the proceedings, in addition thereto; when the same is complete, the witness should sign it.

184. Should the accused, having closed his cross-examination, think proper subsequently to recall a witness for the prosecution in his defence, the examination will be held to be in chief, and the witness subject to cross-examination by the prosecution.

185. The parties having closed the evidence in the case, if the accused has called witnesses in his defence, the Judge Advocate will have a right to address the court, and to recapitulate and methodize the evidence and strengthen the case by argument, or show the weakness or insufficiency of the defence.

186. To this address, on the part of the prosecution, the court will permit the accused to reply. And the court is also bound to hear whatever address, in his defence, the accused may think fit to offer, not being in itself contemptuous or disrespectful. And the court may also permit the Judge Advocate to rejoin.

187. If the accuser be not an officer, he cannot appear in court as a prosecutor, but merely as an informant; and, in that case, the Judge Advocate alone conducts the prosecution; the informant being allowed merely to be present as an assistant, but not allowed to propose any questions or make any observations whatever. He may, however, make suggestions to the Judge Advocate; and when he is a witness, he must first be examined, or else excluded from the court until called to testify.

188. The closing address of the accused shall be in writing, and if he find himself unequal to the task of reading his address to the court, from any cause, the Judge Advocate or any friend of the accused, named by him, may be allowed to read it for him.

189. The court will be particularly guarded in adhering to the custom which obtains, of resisting any attempt on the part of counsel to address them. A lawyer, as such, is not recognized by a court martial, though his presence may be tolerated as a friend of the accused, to assist him by advice in preparing questions for witnesses, in taking notes and shaping his defence.

190. The Judge Advocate and the accused having laid their case before the court, the accused, the prosecutor and the witnesses will be dismissed and the court closed.

The court then proceeds to make up their finding. Each specification must be separately considered and each allegation exhausted, and the court must declare how far each is proved.

191. The Judge Advocate at this stage of the proceedings will simply act as register, and to advise the court on legal points when his opinion is required. He must carefully abstain from making any remark by which his judgment, as to the guilt or innocence, may be remark by which his judgment, as to the guilt or innocence of the accused, may be ascertained.

192. Military tribunals must uphold discipline at all hazards. They will, however, always justify the disobedience of an order which is clearly shown to be illegal; and, also, will severely punish him who issues an order contrary to law; but will never inflict disgrace on the subordinate who obeys it, unless it be evident that the accused well knew that, in conforming to it, he was violating law.

193. In a charge of disobedience of orders, it is requisite to show that the communication was an order from a superior to an inferior, in terms sufficiently explicit to disclose the intention of such superior that the inferior should, or not, do some certain act.

194. In a charge of violence, &c., against a superior on duty, it is requisite to show that the accused is to be presumed to have known the other party to be his superior; either by his uniform, knowledge of his person, or in some other manner.

195. When there are distinct and separate charges, the members of the court will deliberate separately on each charge and specification; discussing, in free and open conversation, the import of the evidence, and allowing its full weight to every argument or presumption in favor of the accused.

196. The question of the guilt or innocence of the accused should be put by the Judge Advocate to the members of the court, commencing with the youngest: "From the evidence given for and against the accused, and from what he has said in his defence, are you of the opinion that he is guilty or not guilty of the charge (or specification) preferred against him?"

197. If a majority of the members are for a conviction, the Judge Advocate will enter the decision of the court, finding the accused guilty of the charge (or specification), or of such part of the charge (or specification) as the court shall find him guilty. If a majority of the members are for acquittal, he will enter the decision accordingly. If the votes are divided equally, the accused will be acquitted.

198. The finding of the court need not be a general finding of guilt or acquittal. The accused may be found guilty of some portions of the charge and acquitted upon others. A portion of a specification may be found and the rest negatived; or, the entire circumstances set forth may be found to be proved, and yet the accused be declared to be without guilt. So also the finding may be special in regard to the facts; and the court may pass upon the motive with which an act was done, and find or negative criminality in such motive.

199. If the court should find the accused guilty upon a specification or part of a specification under a charge, while they acquit him of the whole charge, the accused should be acquitted. But where the offence named in the charge admits of lesser degrees of criminality, the court may find the specification to amount only to one of the lesser degrees of the same crime; and if the court convict the accused upon the specification, or so much of it as relates to such lesser offence and of the charge, or so much of it as embraces the lesser degree of the crime charged, the conviction will be proper. This will not, however, authorize the finding a higher offence than is charged; and the court will well define the degree of guilt of which the accused is convicted, whether it relate to the whole or a part of the charges, and state distinctly of what he is found guilty and of what acquitted.

200. If the court shall be of opinion that the accused is not guilty of the offence charged, it may acquit the accused, and such acquittal may be a simple finding of not guilty; or the court may acquit him fully, or fully and honorably; though the word "honorably" should never be used in acquitting the accused of charges in which his honor was not implicated.

201. If the court shall find the accused guilty of any or all the charges preferred against him, the Judge Advocate will proceed to take the opinion of the members on the punishment to be awarded, by putting to each member, beginning with the youngest, this question: "The court having found the accused guilty of such an offence, in your opinion what punishment ought to be awarded?" Each member of the court will state the sentence which he thinks should be given.

202. If a majority of the court have concurred in the same sentence, that is then recorded as the sentence of the court. If not, the mildest of the sentences proposed will be first considered and put to the vote, and, if not adopted, then the next mildest, and so on until one is found which unites a majority of the votes.

203. If the same identical act is alleged against the accused, under several distinct charges or specifications, as constituting as many separate offences, the court shall be careful to inflict only one penalty upon the accused, in case of his conviction, and the sentence of the court should in all cases conform as nearly as may be to the language of the statute provided in such cases.

204. An officer convicted of having signed a false certificate relative to the absence or pay of either officer or soldier, should be sentenced to be cashiered, and disqualified from holding any military office.

An officer convicted of making a false return of the state of the forces under his command, or of the arms, ammunition or stores thereto belonging, should be sentenced to be cashiered, and disqualified from holding any military office.

An officer convicted of having embezzled or wilfully misapplied any public money with which he may have been entrusted for any purpose, should be sentenced to be cashiered, and disqualified from holding any military office, and fined in a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars; and where such misapplication is not found to be wilful, he should be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.

An officer convicted of being found drunk on duty should be sentenced to be cashiered.

205. For other offences, the court may inflict any punishment not cruel or unusual, which may seem required by the nature of the case tried and authorized by law; and whenever a specific punishment is imposed by law for any offence, the court will have a care to conform to such provision of law.

206. Cashiering is the depriving an officer of his commission, breaking him of his office, and taking from him his military character.

Courts Martial.

207. Dismissal is a disgraceful discharge, depriving the officer of his military character.

208. Discharging an officer is another mode of depriving an officer of his military character, but the same ideas of disgrace do not attach to his sentence as cashiering or dismissal.

209. Suspension from rank and pay, for a specified time, deprives an officer of his military character, and suspends his functions and pay for a definite time, during which time he cannot rise by seniority.

210. Suspension from command leaves an officer in the full enjoyment of all rights and eligibility, depending on rank, excepting that he can exercise no military command whatever during the suspension.

211. Reprimand. The court may sentence an officer to be publicly reprimanded (which is done in orders), or to be privately reprimanded, which is done by the Commanding Officer, without the presence of witnesses.

212. Admonition. In some instances of trivial faults, courts martial may sentence officers to be admonished, or to be privately admonished.

213. The court may combine any of these punishments, which are not inconsistent with one another or contrary to law, in their sentence.

214. "The sentence of any such court martial shall be according to the nature and degree of the offence, and according to military usage; but shall not extend farther than cashiering the officer convicted, and disqualifying him from holding any office in the Militia of this state, and imposing a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars."

[Militia Laws of April 17, 1854, tit. 7, art. 1, § 11.]

215. The sentence recorded must not give any intimation of the majority by which it was pronounced, or how the members of the court stood on the question, and should avoid all argument or special reasons in its justification.

Courts Martial.

216. "Every Judge Advocate, whether commissioned or special, and every member of a court martial, shall keep secret the sentence of the court, until the same shall be approved or disapproved, according to law; and shall keep secret the vote or opinion of any particular member of the court, unless required to give evidence thereof by a court of justice."

[Militia Laws of April 17, 1854, tit. 7, art. 1, § 10.]

217. The sentence cannot be carried into effect until after the proceedings shall have been laid before the officer ordering the court martial, who is required by law to approve or disapprove of the same, within fifteen days thereafter. If he shall disapprove of the same, he may for good reasons send back the proceedings for revision.

218. In case the officer ordering the court be dead, or have resigned or otherwise vacated his office, these returns shall be laid before the Commanding Officer of the forces for the time being, who shall proceed thereon as though he was the officer ordering the court martial.

219. Proper causes for revision are :

1. When the sentence (being discretionary) is such that, in the particular circumstances of the case, it cannot be executed.

2. Illegality in the sentence, whether from being contrary to law or military usage, or whether from being found in consequence of the admission of illegal or the rejection of legal testimony.

3. Manifest incongruity between the finding and the sentence.

4. When the sentence is such that, from motives of public or military policy, it is not advisable to have it executed.

220. No witness can be examined on revision, nor can any illegality in the composition or constitution of the court, or in the charges, be cured. If the court be a legal court, which has acted illegally, the accused cannot be again tried. If it be an illegal court, all its proceedings are null and void, ab initio, and there has been no trial, and the accused may again be brought to trial before a legal court.

Courts Martial.

221. The court, on revision, may amend the finding and sentence, or either of them, in whole or in part, or correct them in any way to conform to the provisions of law or the justice of the case, or they may substitute a new finding or sentence in place of the former ones. In case of a new finding or sentence, the officer ordering the court may send the proceedings back for a second revision. If the court, on such second revision, should adhere to the judgment pronounced by it, the finding and sentence must be either approved or disapproved. If disapproved, the effect will be to nullify the sentence, but not to the extent of exposing the accused to a second trial.

222. After the record of the proceedings in a military court is once made up, it cannot in any manner be altered, but additions may be made to it.

In conformity to this rule, the original finding and sentence of a court martial cannot, on revision, be expunged. The revised finding and sentence should merely be added to the original record. No expunging, altering or otherwise amending any part of the original record will be tolerated.

223. "The proceedings and sentence of every such court martial shall, without delay, be delivered to the officer ordering the court, who shall approve or disapprove thereof within fifteen days thereafter, and shall give notice of his approval or disapproval to the President of such court martial and to the arresting officer, and he may, at his discretion, publish the sentence, as approved or disapproved, in Orders; but no part of such sentence shall be executed until after the time allowed for appeal has expired."

224. "He shall also transmit such proceedings and sentence, and his approval or disapproval thereof, to the Adjutant-General, to be kept in his office."

225. "The right of appeal to the Commander-in-Chief, as it now exists by military usage, is reserved; but no appeal shall be received, unless made within twenty days after the decision appealed from is made known to the person appealing."

Courts Martial.

226. "The President of such court martial shall issue his warrant for the collection of all fines imposed by said court, directed to the sheriff of the county in which the court was held (or in which the delinquent resides), whose duty it shall be to collect such fines in the same manner as he is authorized to collect any debt upon civil process, together with lawful costs and the amount of fine, to be paid into the state treasury."

[Militia Laws of April 17, 1854, tit. 7, art. 1, §§ 12, 18, 14, 15.]

227. Notice of every sentence of a court martial shall be officially communicated to the person having been on trial, by the officer ordering the court, within three days after said officer shall have finally approved or disapproved of such sentence. Such notice shall be served on the person so tried, either personally or by leaving the same, at his place or last place of business or abode, with some person of suitable age and discretion; or by inclosing it in a wrapper, and depositing it (postage paid) in the post-office, directed to such person at his place or last place of residence. The officer ordering the court shall also, within three days after such decision, transmit to the Adjutant-General the proceedings of said court, with a statement showing the date of such approval or disapproval, and the time and manner of giving such notice.

228. On the hearing of all appeals, the officers appealed to will include in their examination and decision all challenges of members of the court, made on the part of the accused; and if, on the final appeal, the officer appealed to shall set aside the proceedings of the court for errors, in disallowing such challenges, the trial and decision of the court shall not be a bar to another trial by a court martial legally constituted.

229. The officer hearing an appeal from a decision of a court-martial shall in all cases determine the same according to the law and justice of the case, without regarding formal or technical omissions, or any errors or defects in the proceedings before the court, which could not affect the merits.

Courts Martial.

230. An appeal suspends the execution of the sentence until the final decision of such appeal, the accused meanwhile remaining in arrest; and the Adjutant-General will immediately notify the officer ordering a court, of any appeal to the Commander-in-Chief from the proceedings and sentence of such court.

231. The proceedings of all courts of inquiry will be transmitted to the Adjutant-General, in the same manner as the proceedings of courts martial.

RULES APPLICABLE TO REGIMENTAL AND CERTAIN BRIGADE
COURTS MARTIAL.

232. So far as these rules and regulations are applicable to regimental courts martial, they shall be so applied. Except that no other charges or specifications shall be necessary for the trial of delinquents and deficiencies, than the return of the proper officer in regard to such delinquents or deficiencies; nor upon any such trial shall the attendance of a Judge Advocate be necessary.

233. Whenever any appeal shall be made from the sentence of any court martial to the officer ordering the court, such appeal shall be in writing, and specify distinctly the several grounds of appeal, and a copy of such appeal shall, without delay, be served by the appellant upon the President of such court martial, and also upon the Commandant of the military district for which such court martial shall have been held.

234. The officer to whom an appeal shall be made from the sentence of any court martial, shall, without delay, by order, fix a time and place when and where such appeal will be heard, and cause a copy of such order to be served at least ten days before the time of such hearing, upon the appellant and the President of such court, and on the Commandant of the military district for which said court may have been held.

235. "Whenever the sentence of any court martial shall be appealed from, the officer hearing the appeal shall require the court, or the President thereof, to furnish him forthwith with a statement of the case, and of the evidence touching the same; which statement and evidence shall, in case of an appeal to the Commanding Officer of the brigade, be forthwith, on notice of such appeal, transmitted to him."

Duties in Camp and Garrison.

236. "Such statement being furnished, the officer hearing the appeal may hear such further evidence, by affidavit or otherwise, as the nature of the case may require, and for that purpose he shall have power to administer the usual oaths to witnesses produced before him, except in cases where trials may have been had upon charges preferred."

237. "The last two sections shall extend to appeals made from the order of an officer approving the sentence of a court martial."

238. These rules and regulations, and also the provision of title 7 of the Militia Laws of this state, passed April 17, 1854, relating to regimental and battalion courts martial, so far as the same can be made applicable, shall apply to the brigade courts martial for the trial of delinquencies and deficiencies of Commissioned Officers and non-commissioned Staff Officers, provided for by § 35 of the act "In relation to the First Division and Fifth Brigade," passed April 14, 1855; but no arrest need be made of any officer brought to trial before said courts, nor shall any charges or specifications be necessary for the trial of such delinquencies and deficiencies, other than the return of the proper officer in regard to such delinquencies and deficiencies; nor shall the attendance of a Judge Advocate be necessary upon any such brigade court martial.

When the position of the escort is at a considerable distance from the point where he is expected to be received, as, for instance, where a court yard or wharf intervenes, a double line of sentinels will be posted from that point to the escort, facing inward, and the sentinels will successively salute as he passes

The music will not begin to play until the escort is clear of the inclosure.

321. At the funeral of an officer, as many in commission of the division, brigade or regiment, according to the rank of the deceased, as can conveniently attend the same, will join in procession, in uniform and with side-arms. The funeral of a non-commissioned officer or private will be attended, in like-manner, by the non-commissioned officers or privates of the regiment or company, according to the rank of the deceased, with side-arms only.

322. Persons joining in the procession follow the coffin in the inverse order of their rank.

INSPECTION OF THE TROOPS.

326. The inspection of troops, as a division, regiment or other body composing a garrison or command, not less than a company, will generally be preceded by a review.

327. There will be certain periodical inspections, to wit :

1. At the annual parade or encampments.
2. Biennially, by the Inspector-General or by any other officer ordered for such duty by the Commander-in-Chief.
3. At other parades specially ordered for inspection.

328. Besides these inspections, frequent visits will be made by the Commanding Officer, Company and Medical Officers, while in camp or garrison, to the men's quarters, the hospital, guard-house, &c.

FORM OF INSPECTION.

329. The present example embraces a battalion of infantry. The Inspecting Officer and the Field and Staff Officers will be on foot.

330. The battalion being in the order of battle, the Colonel will cause it to break into open column of companies, right in front. He will next order the ranks to be opened, when the color-rank and color-guard, under the direction of the Adjutant, will take post ten paces in front, and the band ten paces in rear of the column.

Inspection of the Troops.

831. The Colonel, seeing the ranks aligned, will command,

1. Officers and Sergeants, to the front of your companies. 2. MARCH!

The officers will form themselves in one rank, eight paces, and the non-commissioned officers in one rank, six paces in advance, along the whole fronts of their respective companies, from right to left, in the order of seniority; the pioneers and music of each company, in one rank, two paces behind the non-commissioned officers.

832. The Colonel will next command,

Field and Staff, to the front—MARCH!

The commissioned officers thus designated will form themselves in one rank, on a line equal to the front of the column, six paces in front of the colors, from right to left, in the order of seniority; and the non-commissioned staff, in a similar manner, two paces in rear of the preceding rank. The Colonel, seeing the movement executed, will take post on the right of the Lieutenant-Colonel and wait the approach of the Inspecting Officer. But such of the Field Officers as may be superior in rank to the Inspector will not take post in front of the battalion.

833. The Inspector will commence in front. After inspecting the dress and general appearance of the field and commissioned staff under arms, the Inspector, accompanied by these officers, will pass down the open column, looking at every rank in front and rear.

834. The Colonel will now command,

1. Order arms. 2. REST!

when the Inspector will proceed to make a minute inspection of the several ranks or divisions, in succession, commencing in front.

835. As the Inspector approaches the non-commissioned staff, color-rank, the color-guard and the band, the Adjutant will give the necessary orders for the inspection of arms, boxes and knapsacks. The colors will be planted firm in the ground, to enable the color-bearers to display the contents of their knapsacks. The non-commissioned staff may be dismissed as soon as inspected; but the color-rank and color-guard will remain until the colors are to be escorted to the place from which they were taken.

336. As the Inspector successively approaches the companies, the Captains will command,

1. Attention. 2. Company. 3. Inspection — ARMS!

The Inspecting Officer will then go through the whole company and minutely inspect the arms, accoutrements and dress of each soldier. After this is done, the Captain will command, when the ammunition and the boxes will be examined.

337. The Captain will then command,

- | | |
|----------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| 1. Shoulder — ARMS! | 6. To the rear, open order. |
| 2. Close order. | 7. MARCH! |
| 3. MARCH! | 8. Front rank — ABOUT — FACE! |
| 4. Order — ARMS! | 9. Unslung — Knapsacks. |
| 5. Stack — ARMS! | 10. Open — Knapsacks. |

338. The Sergeants will face inward at the 2d command, and close upon the centre at the 3d, and stack their arms at the 5th command; at the 6th command they face outward, and resume their positions at the 7th. When the ranks are closed, preparatory to take arms, the Sergeants will also close upon the centre, and, at the word, take their arms and resume their places.

339. The knapsacks will be placed at the feet of the men, the flaps from them, with the great-coats on the flaps, and the knapsacks leaning on the great-coats. In this position the Inspector will examine their contents, or so many of them as he may think necessary, commencing with the non-commissioned officers, the men standing at attention.

Inspection of the Troops.

840. When the Inspector has passed through the company, the Captain will command, when each soldier will repack and buckle up his knapsack, leaving it on the ground, the number upward, turned from him, and then stand at rest.

Repack—Knapsacks;

841. The Captain will then command,

1. Attention. 2. Company. 3. Sling—Knapsacks.

At the word sling, each soldier will take his knapsack, holding it by the inner straps and stand erect; at the last word he will replace it on his back. The Captain will continue,

4. Front rank—ABOUT—FACE!	8. Shoulder—ARMS!
5. Close order.	9. Officers and Sergeants, to
6. MARCH!	your posts.
7. Take—ARMS!	10. MARCH!

and will cause the company to file off to their tents or quarters, except the company that is to reëscort the colors, which will await the further orders of the Colonel.

842. In an extensive column, some of the rearmost companies may, after the inspection of dress and general appearance, be permitted to stack arms until just before the Inspector approaches them, when they will be directed to take arms and resume their position.

843. The inspection of the troops being ended, the field and staff will next accompany the Inspector to the hospital, magazine, arsenal, quarters, sutler's shop, guard-house and such other places as he may think proper to inspect. The Captains and subalterns repair to their companies and sections to await the Inspector.

844. The hospital being at all times an object of particular interest, it will be critically and minutely inspected.

Musters.

345. The men will be formed in the company quarters in front of their respective bunks, and on the entrance of the Inspector the word Attention! will be given by the senior non-commissioned officer present, when the whole will salute with the hand, without uncovering.

346. The Inspector, attended by the Company Officers, will examine the general arrangement of the interior of the quarters, the bunks, bedding, cooking and table utensils, and such other objects as may present themselves; and afterwards the exterior.

347. The inspection of cavalry and artillery will conform to the principles laid down in the foregoing paragraphs, regard being had to the system of instruction for those arms of service respectively.

ARTICLE XX.

MUSTERS.

348. Musters will be made by the Inspecting Officer present, and in the absence of such officer the muster will be made by an officer specially designated by the Commander of the forces on duty.

349. When one Inspecting Officer cannot muster all the troops himself on the day specified, the Commanding Officer will designate such other competent officers as may be necessary, to assist him.

350. All stated musters of the troops shall be preceded by a minute and careful inspection in the prescribed mode; and if the command be more than a company, by a review, before inspection.

351. The Mustering Officer having inspected the companies in succession, beginning on the right, returns to the first company to muster it. The company being at ordered arms, with open ranks, as when inspected, the Captain will, as the Mustering Officer approaches, command,

1. Attention.
2. Company.

3. Shoulder — ARMS!
4. Support — ARMS!

Forms of Parade.

The Mustering Officer will then call over the names on the roll, and each man, as his name is called, will distinctly answer, Here! and bring his piece to a carry and to an order.

352. After each company is mustered, the Captain will order it to be marched to the company parade, and there dismissed to quarters to await the Inspector's visit.

353. After mustering the companies, the Mustering Officer, attended by the Company Commanders, will visit the guard and hospital, to verify the presence of the men reported there.

354. The muster rolls will be made on the printed forms furnished from the Adjutant-General's office and according to the directions given on them. On the muster-roll, companies are designated by the name of the Captain, whether present or absent.

355. One copy of each muster-roll will be transmitted by the Mustering Officer to the Adjutant-General's office within thirty days after the muster.

ARTICLE XXI.

FORMS OF PARADE.

356. On all parades of ceremony, such as reviews, guard-mounting, at troop or retreat parades, instead of the word "Rest," which allows the men to move or change the position of their bodies, the command will be "PARADE—REST!" At the last word of this command, the soldier will carry the right foot six inches in rear of the left heel, the left knee slightly bent, the body upright upon the right leg; the musket resting against the hollow of the right shoulder, the hands crossed in front, the backs of them outward, and the left hand uppermost. At the word "ATTENTION!" the soldier will resume the correct position at ordered arms. In the positions here indicated, the soldier will remain silent and motionless; and it is particularly enjoined upon all officers to cause the commands above given, on the part of the soldier, to be executed with great briskness and spirit.

Dress Parade.

357. Officers on all duties under arms are to have their swords drawn, without waiting for any words of command for that purpose.

I. DRESS PARADE.

358. There will be, daily, when troops are on duty, at least one dress parade, at troop or retreat, or both, as the commanding officer may direct.

359. A signal will be beat or sounded, half an hour before troop or retreat, for the music to assemble on the regimental parade, and each company to turn out under arms on its own parade, for roll-call and inspection by its own officers.

360. Ten minutes after that signal, the Adjutant's call will be given, when the Captains will march their companies (the band playing) to the regimental parade, where they take their positions in the order of battle. When the line is formed, the Captain of the first company, on notice from the Adjutant, steps one pace to the front, and gives to his company the command, "Order — ARMS! PARADE — REST!" which is repeated by each Captain in succession to the left. The Adjutant takes post two paces on the right of the line; the Sergeant-major two paces on the left. The music will be formed in two ranks on the right of the Adjutant. The Pioneers, or Sappers and Miners, four paces on the right of the music. The Colonel or senior officer present will take the command of the parade, and will take post at a suitable distance in front, opposite the centre, facing the line, when the music begins to beat off, and at the same time the Lieutenant-Colonel and Major will take their positions in order of battle.

361. When the companies have ordered arms, the Adjutant will order the music to beat off, when it will commence on the right, beat in front of the lines to the left, and back to its place on the right.

362. When the music has ceased, the Adjutant will step two paces to the front, face to the left, and command,

1. Attention!

2. Battalion.

3. Shoulder — ARMS!

4. Prepare to open ranks!

5. To the rear, open order!

6. MARCH!

Dress Parade.

At the sixth command, the ranks will be opened according to the system laid down in the Infantry Tactics, the Commissioned Officers marching to the front, the Company Officers four paces, Field Officers six paces, opposite to their positions in the order of battle, where they will halt and dress. The Adjutant, seeing the ranks aligned, will command and march along the front to the centre, face to the right, and pass the line of Company Officers eight or ten paces, where he will come to the right-about, and command, when arms will be presented, officers saluting.

Present—ARMS!

363. Seeing this executed, he will face about to the Commanding Officer, salute, and report, "Sir, the parade is formed." The Adjutant will then, on intimation to that effect, take his station three paces on the left of the Commanding Officer, one pace retired, passing round his rear.

364. The Commanding Officer, having acknowledged the salute of the line by touching his hat, will, after the Adjutant has taken his post, draw his sword, and command, and add such exercises as he may think proper, concluding with

1. Battalion. 2. Shoulder—ARMS!

then return his sword, and direct the Adjutant to receive the reports.

365. The Adjutant will now pass round the right of the Commanding Officer, advance upon the line, halt midway between him and the line of Company Officers, and command,

1. First Sergeants, to the front and centre. 2. MARCH!

At the first command, they will shoulder arms as Sergeants, march two paces to the front, and face inward. At the second command, they will march to the centre and halt. The Adjutant will then order,

1. Front—FACE! 2. Report.

Dress Parade.

At the last word, each, in succession, beginning on the right, will salute by bringing the left hand smartly across the breast to the right shoulder, and report the result of the roll-call previously made on the company parade.

366. The Adjutant again commands,

1. First Sergeants, outward — FACE! 2. To your posts — MARCH!

when they will resume their places and order arms. The Adjutant will now face to the Commanding Officer, salute, report absent officers and give the result of the First Sergeants' reports. The Commanding Officer will next direct the orders to be read, when the Adjutant will face about and announce,

Attention to Orders.

He will then read the orders.

367. The orders having been read, the Adjutant will face to the Commanding Officer, salute and report; when, on an intimation from the Commander, he will face again to the line and announce,

Parade is dismissed.

All the officers will now return their swords, face inward, and close on the Adjutant, he having taken position in their line, the Field Officers on the flanks. The Adjutant commands,

1. Front — FACE! 2. Forward — MARCH!

when they will march forward, dressing on the centre, the music playing, and when within six paces of the Commander, the Adjutant will give the word, Halt!

The officers will then salute the Commanding Officer by raising the hand to the cap, and there remain until he shall have communicated to them such instructions as he may have to give or intimates that the ceremony is finished. As the officers disperse, the First Sergeants will close the ranks of their respective companies and march them to the company parades, where they will be dismissed, the band continuing to play until the companies clear the regimental parade.

368. All Field and Company Officers and men will be present at dress parades, unless especially excused, or on some duty incompatible with such attendance.

369. A dress parade, once a day, will not be dispensed with, except on extraordinary and urgent occasions, by troops on duty.

II. REVIEW OF A BATTALION OF INFANTRY.

370. Preparatory to a review, the Adjutant will cause a camp-color to be placed 80 paces, or more or less, according to the length of the line, in front of and opposite to where the centre of the battalion will rest, where the Reviewing Officer is supposed to take his station; and, although he may choose to quit that position, still the color is to be considered as the point to which all the movements and formations are relative.

371. The Adjutant will also cause points to be marked, at suitable distances, for the wheelings of the divisions; so that their right flanks, in marching past, shall only be about four paces from the camp-color, where it is supposed the Reviewing Officer places himself to receive the salute.

372. The battalion being formed in the order of battle, at shouldered arms, the Colonel will command,

1. Battalion, prepare for review!
2. To the rear, open order.
3. MARCH!

At the word March, the Field and Staff Officers dismount; the Company Officers and color-rank advance four paces in front of the front rank, and place themselves opposite to their respective places, in the order of battle. The color-guard replace the color-rank. The Staff Officers place themselves, according to rank, three paces on the right of the rank of Company Officers, and one pace from each other; the music takes post as at parade; the Pioneers, or Sappers and Miners, on the right of the music. The non-commissioned staff take post one pace from each other and three paces on the right of the front rank of the battalion.

373. When the ranks are aligned, the Colonel will command, and place himself eight paces, and the Lieutenant-Colonel and Major will place themselves two paces in front of the rank of Company Officers and opposite to their respective places, in the order of battle, all facing to the front.

374. When the Reviewing Officer presents himself before the centre, and is fifty or sixty paces distant, the Colonel will face about and command, and resume his front. The men present arms, and the officers salute, so as to drop their swords with the last motion of the firelock. The non-commissioned staff salute by bringing the sword to a poise, the hilt resting on the breast, the blade in front of the face, inclining a little outward. The music will play and all the drums beat according to the rank of the Reviewing Officer. The colors only salute such persons as, from their rank, and by regulation (see Article XVIII) are entitled to that honor. If the Reviewing Officer be junior in rank to the Commandant of the parade, no compliment will be paid to him, but he will be received with arms carried, and the officers will not salute as the column passes in review.

375. The Reviewing Officer having halted and acknowledged the salute of the line by touching or raising his cap or hat, the Colonel will face about and command, when the men shoulder their pieces; the officers and non-commissioned staff recover their swords with the last motion and the Colonel faces to the front.

Review of Battalion.

376. The Reviewing Officer will then go toward the right, the whole remaining perfectly steady, without paying any further compliment, while he passes along the front of the battalion and proceeds round the left flank and along the rear of the file-closers to the right. While the Reviewing Officer is going round the battalion, the band will play, and will cease when he has returned to the right flank of the troops. If the Reviewing Officer be accompanied by a staff or attendants, they will, in passing from the right along the front of the regiment, be formed in ranks four paces in the rear and to the right of the Reviewing Officer.

377. When the Reviewing Officer turns off to place himself by the camp-color, in front, the Colonel will face to the line and command,

1. Close order. 2. MARCH!

At the first command the Field and Company Officers will face to the right-about, and at the second command all persons, except the Colonel, will resume their places in the order of battle; the Field and Staff Officers mount.

378. The Reviewing Officer having taken his position near the camp-color, the Colonel will command,

1. By company, right wheel.

5. Guide right.

3. Pass in review.

6. MARCH!

The battalion, in column of companies, right in front, will then, in common time and at shouldered arms, be put in motion; the Colonel four paces in front of the Captain of the leading company; the Lieutenant-Colonel on a line with the leading company; the Major on a line with the rear company; the Adjutant on a line with the second company; the Sergeant-Major on a line with the company next preceding the rear, each six paces from the flank (left) opposite to the Reviewing Officer; the Staff Officers in one rank, according to the order of precedence, from the right, four paces in rear of the column; the music, preceded by the principal Musician, six paces before the Review of Battalion.

Colonel; the Pioneers, or Sappers and Miners, preceded by the Sergeant, four paces before the principal Musician; the Quartermaster-Sergeant two paces from the side, opposite to the guides and in line with the pioneers.

379. All other officers and non-commissioned officers will march past in the places prescribed for them in the march of an open column. The guides and soldiers will keep their heads steady to the front in passing in review.

380. The color-bearer will remain in the ranks while passing and saluting.

381. The music will begin to play at the command to march, and after passing the Reviewing Officer, wheel to the left out of the column, and take a position opposite and facing him, and will continue to play until the rear of the column shall have passed him, when it will cease and follow in the rear of the battalion, unless the battalion is to pass in quick time also, in which case it will keep its position.

382. The officers will salute the Reviewing Officer, if he be superior to the officer in command, when they arrive within six paces of him, and recover their swords when six paces past him. All officers, in saluting, will cast their eyes toward the Reviewing Officer.

383. The Colonel, when he has saluted at the head of the battalion, will place himself near the Reviewing Officer, and will remain there until the rear has passed, when he will rejoin the battalion.

384. The colors will salute the Reviewing Officer, if entitled to it, when within six paces of him, and be raised when they have passed by him an equal distance. The drums will beat a march or ruffle, according to the rank of the Reviewing Officer, at the same time that the colors salute.

385. When the column has passed the Reviewing Officer, the Colonel will direct it to the ground it marched from, and command, in time for the guides to cover. The column having arrived on its ground, the Colonel will command,

Guide left,

Review of Two or More Battalions.

1. Column. 2. HALT! 3. Left, into line—Wheel. 4. MARCH!

When the line is formed in order of battle, the ranks will be opened, the officers taking post in front, and the review will terminate by the whole saluting as at the beginning.

386. If, however, instructions have been previously given to march the troops past in quick time also, the Colonel will, instead of changing the guides, halting the column and wheeling it into line, as above directed, give the command,

1. Quick time. 2. MARCH!

In passing the Reviewing Officer again, no salute will be offered by either officers or men. The music will have kept its position opposite the Reviewing Officer, and, at the last command, will commence playing, and as the column approaches will place itself in front of and march off with the column, and continue to play until the battalion is halted on its original ground of formation. The review will terminate in the same manner as prescribed above.

387. The Colonel will afterward cause the troops to perform such exercises and manœuvres as the Reviewing Officer may direct.

388. When two or more battalions are to be reviewed, they will be formed in parade order, with proper intervals, and will also perform the same movements that are laid down for a single battalion—observing the additional directions that are given for such movements when applied to the line. The Brigadier-General and his Staff, on foot, will place themselves opposite the centre of the brigade; the Brigadier-General two paces in front of the rank of Colonels; his Aid, two paces on his right, and one retired; and the other Brigade Staff Officers, those having the rank of Field Officers, in the rank of Lieutenant-Colonels and Majors; and those below that rank in the rank of Company Officers.

Review of Two or More Battalions.

389. In passing in review, a Major-General will be four paces in front of the Colonel of the leading battalion of his division; and the Brigadier-General will be on the right of the Colonels of the leading battalions of their brigades; Staff Officers on the left of their Generals.

390. When the line exceeds two battalions, the Reviewing Officer may cause them to march past in quick time only. In such cases the mounted officers only will salute.

391. A number of companies less than a battalion will be reviewed as a battalion, and a single company as if it were with the battalion. When required, the companies may pass in column of platoons.

392. If several brigades are to be reviewed together, or in one line, this further difference will be observed: the Reviewing Personage, joined by the General of the division, on the right of his division, will proceed down the line, parallel to its front, and when near the Brigadier-Generals respectively, will be saluted by their brigades in succession. The music of each, after the prescribed salute, will play while the Reviewing Personage is in front or in rear of it, and only then.

393. In marching in review, with several battalions in common time, the music of each succeeding battalion will commence to play when the music of the preceding one has ceased, in order to follow its battalion. When marching in quick time, the bands of the regiments will remain with the column; and the music will begin to play when the rear company of the preceding battalion has passed the Reviewing Officer. (See par. 1648, et seq.)

394. When several battalions pass successively in review, the officer commanding the whole will alone join the Reviewing Officer, and will place himself on his right.

395. The battalions will take, in marching, intervals between them of forty paces. In line, the intervals are twenty-two paces, Guard-Mounting.

396. The Reviewing Officer or Personage will acknowledge the salute by raising or taking off his cap or hat, when the Commander of the troops salutes him; and, also, when the colors pass. The remainder of the time occupied by the passage of the troops, he will be covered. The Staff, or attendants of any Reviewing Officer will be posted, in one or more ranks, four paces in the rear, and to the left of such officer.

397. The review of Cavalry and Artillery will be conducted on similar principles, and according to the systems of instruction for those arms of service.

III. GUARD-MOUNTING.

398. Camp and garrison guards will be relieved every twenty-four hours, and oftener if the Commanding Officer shall so direct. The guards at outposts will, ordinarily, be relieved in the same manner; but this must depend on their distances from camp, or other circumstances, which may sometimes require their continuing on duty several days. In such cases, they must be previously warned, to provide themselves accordingly.

399. At the first call for guard-mounting, the men warned for duty turn out on their company parades for inspection by the First Sergeants; and, at the second call, repair to the regimental or garrison parade, conducted by the First Sergeants. Each detachment, as it arrives, will, under the direction of the Adjutant, take post on the left of the one that preceded it, in open order, arms shouldered and bayonets fixed; the supernumeraries five paces in the rear of the men of their respective Companies; the First Sergeants in rear of them. The Sergeant-Major will dress the ranks, count the files, verify the details, and when the guard is formed, report to the Adjutant, and take post two paces on the left of the front rank.

400. The Adjutant then commands Front! when the officer of the guard takes post twelve paces in front of the centre; the Sergeants, in one rank, four paces in the rear of the officers; and the Corporals, in one rank, four paces in the rear of the Sergeants, all facing to the front. The Adjutant then assigns their places in the guard.

Guard-Mounting.

401. The Adjutant will then command,

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. Officers and Non-commissioned Officers. | 2. ABOUT — FACE! |
| | 3. Inspect your guards — MARCH! |

The Non-commissioned Officers then take their posts. The Commander of the guard then commands, and inspects his guard. When there is no Commissioned Officer on the guard, the Adjutant will inspect it. During inspection the band will play.

1. Order — ARMS! 2. Inspection — ARMS!

402. The inspection ended, the officer of the guard takes post as though the guard were a company of a battalion, in open order, under review; at the same time, also, the officers of the day will take post in front of the centre of the guard; the old officer of the day three paces on the right of the new officer of the day, one pace retired.

403. The Adjutant will now command, when the music, beginning on the right, will beat down the line in front of the officer of the guard to the left, and back to its place on the right, where it will cease to play.

1. Parade — REST! 2. Troop — Beat off!

404. The Adjutant then commands,

1. Attention! 2. Shoulder — ARMS! 3. Close order — MARCH!

At the word "Close order," the officer will face about; at "March," resume his post in line. The Adjutant then commands, at which he will face to the new officer of the day, salute, and report, "Sir, the guard is formed." The new officer of the day, after acknowledging the salute, will direct the Adjutant to march the guard in review, or by flank, to its post. But if the Adjutant be senior to the officer of the day, he will report without saluting with the sword then, or when marching the guard in review.

Present — ARMS!

Guard-Mounting.

405. In review, the guard march past the officer of the day, according to the order of review, conducted by the Adjutant, marching on the left of the first division; the Sergeant-Major on the left of the last division.

406. When the column has passed the officer of the day, the officer of the guard marches it to its post, the Adjutant and Sergeant-Major retiring. The music, which has wheeled out of the column, and taken post opposite to the officer of the day, will cease, and the old officer of the day salute, and give the old or standing orders to the new officer of the day. The supernumeraries, at the same time, will be marched by the First Sergeants to their respective company parades, and dismissed.

407. In bad weather or at night, or after fatiguing marches, the ceremony of turning off may be dispensed with, but not the inspection.

408. Grand guards and other brigade guards are organized and mounted on the brigade parade by the Staff Officers of the parade, under the direction of the Field Officer of the day of the brigade, according to the principles here prescribed for the police guard of a regiment. The detail of each regiment is assembled on the regimental parade, verified by the Adjutant, and marched to the brigade parade by the senior officer of the detail. After inspection and review, the officer of the day directs the several guards to their respective posts.

409. The officer of the old guard, having his guard paraded, on the approach of the new guard, commands,

Present — ARMS!

410. The new guard will march, in quick time, past the old guard, at shouldered arms, officers saluting, and take post four paces on its right, where, being aligned with it, its commander will order, Present — ARMS!

The two officers will then approach each other and salute. They will then return to their respective guards, and command,

1. Shoulder — ARMS! 2. Order — ARMS!

Guard-Mounting.

411. The officer of the new guard will now direct the detail for the advanced guard to be formed and marched to its post, the list of the guard made and divided into three reliefs, experienced soldiers placed over the arms of the guard and at the remote and responsible posts, and the young soldiers in posts near the guard for instruction in their duties, and will himself proceed to take possession of the guard-house or guard-tent, and the articles and prisoners in charge of the guard.

412. During the time of relieving the sentinels and of calling in the small posts, the old commander will give to the new all the information and instruction relating to his post.

413. The first relief having been designated and ordered two paces to the front, the Corporal of the new guard will take charge of it, and go to relieve the sentinels, accompanied by the Corporal of the old guard, who will take command of the old sentinels, when the whole are relieved.

414. If the sentinels are numerous, the Sergeants are to be employed, as well as the Corporals, in relieving them.

415. The relief, with arms at a support, in two ranks, will march by a flank, conducted by the Corporal on the side of the leading front-rank man; and the men will be numbered alternately in the front and rear rank, the man on the right of the front rank being No. 1. Should an officer approach, the Corporal will command, Carry arms, and resume the support arms when the officer is passed.

416. The sentinels at the guard-house or guard-tent will be the first relieved and left behind; the others are relieved in succession.

417. When a sentinel sees the relief approaching, he will halt and face to it, with his arms at a shoulder. At six paces, the Corporal will command, when the relief will halt and carry arms. The Corporal will then add, "No. 1," or "No. 2," or "No. 3," according to the number of the post, Arms—PORT!

1. Relief! 2. HALT!

Guard-Mounting.

The two sentinels will, with arms at port, then approach each other, when the old sentinel, under the correction of the Corporal, will whisper the instructions to the new sentinel. This done, the two sentinels will shoulder arms, and the old sentinel will pass, in quick time, to his place in rear of the relief. The Corporal will then command, and the relief proceeds in the same manner until the whole are relieved.

1. Support — ARMS! 2. Forward. 3. MARCH!

418. The detachments and sentinels from the old guard having come in, it will be marched, at shouldered arms, along the front of the new guard, in quick time, the new guard standing at presented arms; officers saluting, and the music of both guards beating, except at the outposts.

419. On arriving at the regimental or garrison parade, the Commander of the old guard will send the detachments composing it, under charge of the non-commissioned officers, to their respective regiments. Before the men are dismissed, their pieces will be drawn or discharged at a target. On rejoining their companions, the chiefs of squads will examine the arms, &c., of their men, and cause the whole to be put away in good order.

420. When the old guard has marched off fifty paces, the officer of the new guard will order his men to stack their arms, or place them in the arm-racks.

421. The Commander of the guard will then make himself acquainted with all the instructions for his post, visit the sentinels, and question them and the non-commissioned officers relative to the instructions they may have received from other persons of the old guard.

Guards.

GUARDS.

422. Sentinels will be relieved every two hours, unless the state of the weather or other causes should make it necessary or proper that it be done at shorter or longer intervals.

423. Each relief, before mounting, is inspected by the Commander of the guard or of its post. The Corporal reports to him, and presents the old relief on its return.

424. The countersign or watchword is given to such persons as are entitled to pass during the night, and to officers, non-commissioned officers, and sentinels of the guard. Interior guards receive the countersign only when ordered by the Commander of the troops.

425. The parole is imparted to such officers only as have a right to visit the guards and to make the grand rounds, and to officers commanding guards.

426. As soon as the new guard has been marched off, the officer of the day will repair to the office of the Commanding Officer and report for orders.

427. The officer of the day must see that the officer of the guard is furnished with the parole and countersign before retreat.

428. The officer of the day visits the guards during the day, at such times as he may deem necessary, and makes his rounds at night, at least once after twelve o'clock.

429. Upon being relieved, the officer of the day will make such remarks in the report of the officer of the guard as circumstances require, and present the same at head-quarters.

430. Commanders of guards leaving their posts to visit their sentinels, or on other duty, are to mention their intention, and the probable time of their absence, to the next in command.

Guards.

431. The officers are to remain constantly at their guards, except while visiting their sentinels, or necessarily engaged elsewhere on their proper duty.

432. Neither officers nor soldiers are to take off their clothing or accoutrements while they are on guard.

433. The officer of the guard must see that the countersign is duly communicated to the sentinels a little before twilight.

434. When a fire breaks out, or any alarm is raised in a garrison, all guards are to be immediately under arms.

435. Inexperienced officers are put on guard as supernumeraries, for the purpose of instruction.

436. Sentinels will not take orders or allow themselves to be relieved, except by an officer or non-commissioned officer of their guard or party, the officer of the day or the Commanding Officer; in which case the orders will be immediately notified to the Commander of the guard by the officer giving them.

437. Sentinels will report every breach of orders or regulations they are instructed to enforce.

438. Sentinels must keep themselves on the alert, observing everything that takes place within sight and hearing of their post. They will carry their arms habitually at support, or on either shoulder, but will never quit them. In wet weather, if there be no sentry-box, they will secure arms.

439. No sentinel shall quit his post or hold conversation not necessary to the proper discharge of his duty.

440. All persons, of whatever rank in the service, are required to observe respect toward sentinels.

441. In case of disorder, a sentinel must call out, The guard! and if a fire takes place, he must cry "Fire!" adding the number of his post. If, in either case, the danger be great, he must discharge his firelock before calling out.

Guards.

442. It is the duty of a sentinel to repeat all calls made from posts more distant from the main body of the guard than his own, and no sentinel will be posted so distant as not to be heard by the guard, either directly or through other sentinels.

443. Sentinels will present arms to General and Field Officers, to the officer of the day, and to the Commanding Officer of the post. To all other officers they will carry arms.

444. When a sentinel, in his sentry-box, sees an officer approaching, he will stand at attention, and, as the officer passes, will salute him, by bringing the left hand briskly to the musket, as high as the right shoulder.

445. The sentinel, at any post of the guard, when he sees any body of troops, or an officer entitled to compliment, approach, must call, "Turn out the guard!" and announce who approaches.

446. Guards do not turn out, as a matter of compliment, after sunset; but sentinels will, when officers in uniform approach, pay them proper attention, by facing to the proper front and standing steady at shouldered arms. This will be observed until the evening is so far advanced that the sentinels begin challenging.

447. After retreat (or the hour appointed by the Commanding Officer), until broad daylight, a sentinel challenges every person who approaches him, taking, at the same time, the position of arms port. He will suffer no person to come nearer than within reach of his bayonet, until the person has given the countersign.

448. A sentinel, in challenging, will call out "Who comes there?" If answered "Friend, with the countersign," and he be instructed to pass persons with the countersign, he will reply: "Advance, friend, with the countersign." If answered "Friends," he will reply: "Halt, friends! Advance, one, with the countersign." If answered "Relief," "Patrol," or "Grand rounds," he will reply: "Halt! Advance, Sergeant (or Corporal), with the countersign," and satisfy himself that the party is what it represents itself to be. If he have no authority to pass persons with the countersign, if the wrong

countersign be given, or if the persons have not the countersign, he will cause them to stand, and call, "Corporal of the guard!"

449. In the daytime, when the sentinel before the guard sees the officer of the day approach, he will call, "Turn out the guard! Officer of the day!" The guard will be paraded, and salute with presented arms.

450. When any person approaches a post of the guard at night, the sentinel before the post, after challenging, causes him to halt, until examined by a non-commissioned officer of the guard. If it be the officer of the day, or any other officer entitled to inspect the guard and to make the rounds, the Non-commissioned Officer will call, "Turn out the guard!" when the guard will be paraded at shouldered arms, and the officer of the guard, if he thinks necessary, may demand the countersign and parole.

451. The officer of the day, wishing to make the rounds, will take an escort of a non-commissioned officer and two men. When the rounds are challenged by a sentinel, the sergeant will answer: "Grand rounds!" and the sentinel will reply: "Halt, grand rounds! Advance, Sergeant, with the countersign!" Upon which the Sergeant advances and gives the countersign. The sentinel will then cry: "Advance, rounds!" and stand at a shoulder till they have passed.

452. When the sentinel before the guard challenges, and is answered "Grand rounds," he will reply, "Halt, grand rounds! Turn out the guard; grand rounds!" Upon which the guard will be drawn up at shouldered arms. The officer commanding the guard will then order a Sergeant and two men to advance; when within ten paces, the Sergeant challenges. The Sergeant of the grand rounds answers, "Grand rounds!" The Sergeant of the guard replies, "Advance, Sergeant, with the countersign!" The Sergeant of the rounds advances alone, gives the countersign, and returns to his round. The Sergeant of the guard calls to his officer, "The countersign is right!" on which the officer of the guard calls, "Advance, rounds!" The officer of the rounds then advances alone, the guard standing at shouldered arms. The officer of the rounds passes along in front of the guard to the officer, who keeps his post on the right, and gives him the parole. He then examines the guard, orders back his escort, and, taking a new one, proceeds in the same manner to other guards.

453. All material instructions given to a sentinel on post, by persons entitled to make grand rounds, ought to be promptly notified to the Commander of the guard.

454. Any General Officer, or the Commander of a post or garrison, may visit the guards of his command, and go to the grand rounds, and be received in the same manner as prescribed for the officer of the day.

Commanding the Guard.

ARTICLE XXIII.

ORDERS AND CORRESPONDENCE.

455. All orders emanating from the Commander-in-Chief will be styled orders from general head-quarters.

456. The orders of Commanders of armies, divisions, brigades and regiments, are denominated orders of such army, division, &c., and all orders are either general or special. Orders are numbered, general and special, in separate series, each beginning with the year.

457. General orders provide for the organization, discipline, instruction and movement of the troops; announce the hours for roll-calls and duties; the number and kind of guard, and the time when they shall be relieved; police regulations, and the prohibitions required by circumstances and localities; returns to be made, and their forms; laws and regulations for the forces; promotions and appointments; eulogies or censures to corps or individuals, and, generally, whatever it may be important to make known to the whole command.

458. Special orders are such as do not concern the troops generally, and need not be published to the whole command; such as relate to the march of some particular corps, the establishment of some post, the detaching of individuals, the granting requests, &c., &c.

459. A general order, and an important special order, must be read and approved by the officer whose order it is before it is issued by the staff officer.

460. An order will state, at the head, the source, place and date, and at the foot, the name of the commander who gives it; as for example :

General Head-Quarters — State of New-York, }
Adjutant-General's Office, }
 ALBANY, — January, 18—. }

By order of the Commander-in-Chief,
 A. B.,

For a Division :

By order of Maj. Gen. C. W. S., R. B.,
Division Inspector.

For a Brigade :

 ———, — January, 18—. }

General (or special) Orders, }
 No. 3. }

By order of Brig. Gen. J. W.,
 J. D.,
Brigade Inspector.

For a Regiment:

Head-Quarters, — Regiment N. Y. S. M.,
— January, 18—.

General (or special) Orders, }
No. 2. }

By order of Col. J. M.,
1. R.,
Adjutant.

461. A similar form will be observed in the orders of a command, consisting of more than one company. A company order will omit the words "Head-Quarters," and in lieu of them will give the letter of the company and the number of the regiment to which it belongs, as follows :

For a Company :

[], Company, — Regiment N. Y. S. M., } —, —, 18—. }

Company Orders, }
No. —. }

By order of Captain. ———,
O. B., Sergeant.

462. It is important that the place at which the order is issued should be very particularly mentioned.

463. Orders may be put in the form of letters, but generally in the strict military form, through the office of the Adjutant-General, or officer of the Adjutant-General's department connected with the command.

464. Orders are ordinarily transmitted through all the intermediate commanders in the order of rank. When an intermediate commander is omitted, the officer who gives the order shall inform him, and he who receives it shall report it to his immediate superior.

465. Orders for any body of troops will be addressed to the Commander, and will be opened and executed by the Commander present, and published or distributed by him when necessary.

Orders and Correspondence.

466. Orders from the general head-quarters will be sent from the Adjutant-General's office to the head-quarters of each division and brigade to be affected thereby. Printed general orders, of general interest and importance, will be sent to all Commandants of divisions, brigades and regiments. Such orders as may affect any portion of the troops in a brigade will be sent from brigade to regimental head-quarters, and will be distributed to companies by the Commanders of regiments.

467. All orders or copies of orders, to which the signatures of the officer issuing the same may be printed, when transmitted through the channel recognized by military usage, will be deemed sufficiently authentic. Orders and communications may be transmitted by mail, except in cases otherwise provided by law, if properly directed and postage paid. Officers receiving written or printed orders by mail, shall immediately acknowledge their receipt to the officer issuing them.

468. Commanding officers, intending to be temporarily absent from their commands, will make arrangements for the opening of orders and official letters and communications which may be received in their absence, to the end that those requiring immediate attention may be transmitted to the officer next in command, or, if time will permit, to themselves; and they will also make provision for such transmission.

469. All written or printed orders will be recorded or filed by the officer issuing and receiving the same, and will be kept with the head-quarters of each division, brigade and regiment, and with each company, and will be regularly turned over by the Commander, when relieved, to his successor.

470. If general orders are not received in regular succession, Commanding officers will report the missing numbers to the proper head-quarters.

471. The orderly hours being fixed at each head-quarters, the staff officers and chiefs of the special services either attend in person, or send their assistants to obtain the orders of the day; and the First Sergeants of companies repair for that purpose to the regimental or garrison head-quarters.

472. During marches and active operations, and when the regular orderly hours cannot be observed, all orders will be either sent direct to the troops, or the respective Commanders of regiments or corps will be informed when to send to head-quarters for them. Under the same circumstances, orders will be read to the troops during a halt, without waiting for the regular parades.

473. Orders to any officer to make a tour of travel on duty, as for the inspection of troops, &c., shall designate the troops and places he shall visit, and the order in which he shall visit them, and the route of travel.

474. Copies of all orders of the Commanders of brigades, regiments, &c., will be forwarded at their dates, or as soon thereafter as practicable, in separate series, on full sheets of letter paper, or as printed, to the next superior in command. (See also paragraph 732.)

475. Written communications from a Commander to those under his command may be made by his staff officer or by the Commander himself.

476. In signing an official communication, the writer shall annex to his name his rank and corps. When he writes by order, he shall state by whose order.

477. Official communications intended for the Commander-in-Chief will be addressed to the Adjutant-General, and transmitted to him at general head-quarters.

478. Communications from the Commandants of divisions and brigades, and the chiefs of the staff departments, shall be made direct to the Adjutant-General.

479. Communications from officers in a regiment will be sent to the Commandant of a regiment for his action and transmission to the Order Books.

Commandant of the brigade, if intended for such Commandant of brigade or a superior officer. If the communication be intended for an officer superior to the Brigadier-General, he will transmit the same to the officer for whom it was intended, with his approval or disapproval, if required. Each officer through whose hands communications are required to pass will use due diligence in making such transmission.

480. In transmitting rolls and returns, a letter is to accompany them; and when more than one roll or return are transmitted at a time, they will be enumerated in the same letter, and the whole placed under one envelope. On all official letters and packages will be endorsed the words "Official business."

481. No communication, within the competency of an intermediate Commander to decide upon, should be forwarded for action of the higher authority, except by way of appeal.

482. Communications, in which the interest of the service or of an officer are concerned, will be accompanied by the expression of an opinion or remark, endorsed upon them, by the Commander, who forwards them to a higher authority.

483. In communicating information, based upon reports, in detail, received from juniors, Commanders, as a general rule, should embody in their own report, by way of extract, all that may be of interest to the higher authority, rather than transmit the same information spread out in divers papers and statements.

ARTICLE XXIV.

ORDER BOOKS.

484. Each Commandant of division, brigade, regiment and company will enter in an order book, or file and preserve, all general and special orders from general head-quarters, and all other orders relating to his division, brigade, regiment or company, emanating from a superior authority.

Rosters.

485. Each of such Commandants will also keep an order book, in which shall be entered all orders made by himself.

486. Commandants of divisions, brigades and regiments may require their order books to be kept by their respective chiefs of the staff, or other staff officer.

ROSTERS.

487. The Commandant of each division, and each Division Inspector, shall keep a roster of all the commissioned officers in his division.

488. Each Commandant of Brigade, and Brigade Inspector, shall keep a roster of the commissioned officers in the brigade and non-commissioned staff officers of the regiments.

489. The Commandant of each regiment, and the Adjutant thereof, shall keep a roster of the officers, non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates belonging to such regiment.

490. Each Commandant of a company, and First Sergeant, shall keep a roster of the officers, non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates of the company.

491. The Superior Officer of Engineers in each brigade, and the Engineer Officer of each regiment, shall keep a roster of the officers and men belonging to the corps in such brigade or regiment.

492. The Superior Officer of the Quarter-Master department in each brigade, and the Quarter-Master of each regiment, shall keep a roster of the officers and non-commissioned officers in such brigade or regiment, belonging to or assigned to duty in the department.

493. Such rosters shall contain the name, office, date of rank or grade, or time of enlistment, and the place of residence of each officer, non-commissioned officer, musician and private, required to be entered thereon.

494. The necessary blank books and forms of rosters, required by the foregoing regulations, will be furnished by the Adjutant-General; and all such books and rosters will be carefully preserved by every officer, and transmitted to his successor in office, with the other property belonging to the state.

495. To insure the accuracy of such rosters, the Commandant of each brigade shall annually, on or before the first day of June, and oftener if required, transmit to his Major-General a correct return of the names, rank and residence of all officers in the brigade. Like returns shall be made, by each Commandant of a regiment, of his officers and non-commissioned staff officers, to his Brigadier-General.

496. Like returns shall be made, by each Commandant of a company, of his officers, non-commissioned officers, musicians and uniformed privates, to the Commandant of the regiment.

497. Like returns, for the making and correcting of the roster, shall be made by each Regimental Engineer Officer and Quarter-Master, to the Brigade Engineer and Quarter-Master respectively.

498. It will be the duty of any officer who may be required by a superior in command, or in his department or corps, to furnish such superior with any returns or information necessary for the making or correction of the roster, or which may relate to the service or department.

PARADES, ETC.

499. The order of troops at parades, at camps for instruction and in battle, will be as follows:

1. The regiments in a brigade, if of the same arm, shall take precedence according to number, the first or lowest number taking the right. Regiments parading together, not belonging to the same brigade, or not on duty as part of a brigade, will observe the same rule.

2. Brigades and divisions take precedence according to the same numerical order.

3. The arrangement of regiments of different arms, in their respective brigades, will be: first, the light infantry; second, the infantry; third, the riflemen; fourth, the foot artillery; fifth, the light or horse artillery; and sixth, the cavalry.

Parades, &c.

500. Regiments organized as riflemen, armed with muskets or with rifles with bayonets, and uniformed alike throughout the battalion, will be deemed light infantry. Regiments of infantry having the same uniformity of dress in all the battalion companies, and doing duty as light infantry by the order of the Commander-in-Chief, will also be deemed light infantry.

501. Regiments organized as artillery, having the same uniform throughout the regiment, and doing duty as infantry or light infantry by order of the Commander-in-Chief, will rank as of the arm in which they do duty.

502. The Sappers and Miners, or Pioneers, attached to a regiment, will take post on its right; but in parades by brigade or division, the whole Engineer force on duty may be concentrated on the right or in the centre, or any other part of the brigade or division, by order of the Commandant of the brigade or division.

503. The troops of artillery in a brigade or division may be placed together in the centre of the brigade or division, or at any other point which may be directed by the Commanding Officer.

504. The riflemen or cavalry of a brigade or division may also be united according to the arm, and formed on the right or left of the brigade or division, by order of the Commanding Officer.

505. On parade and in the order of battle, the posts of flank companies of regiments, not doing duty as battalion companies or formed together for division or brigade purposes, will be on the left of the battalion companies, in the order following: 1st. The riflemen; 2d. The foot artillery; 3d. The light or horse artillery; 4th. The cavalry. Where the flank companies are of the same arm, that commanded by the senior officer will take the right of the two. A section of light artillery will take post as if it was a company.

506. The order of parade prescribed in this article will not be understood to prevent the Commanding Officer from making any disposition of the forces under his command, which he may deem necessary or proper, for any purpose connected with the instruction or practice of his command or service in the field. For manœuvre, the flank companies which are not doing duty as battalion companies will ordinarily be detached.

507. No officer inferior in rank to the Commandant of the regiment or other force on parade, will give directions to or interfere with the Adjutant or other officer engaged in the forming of the parade. This, however, will not prevent a superior officer of the Adjutant-General's department, from giving such instruction to the Adjutant or other officer forming the parade, as the occasion may require.

508. All officers ordering parades will immediately transmit a copy of such orders to the next superior in command.

509. For parade as well as for manœuvre, the battalion companies and flank companies doing duty as battalion companies will always be equalized.

510. Parades and meetings of the uniformed forces of the state may, unless as otherwise provided by law, be ordered at any time of day or night, according to the exigency of the case, and the troops will be held to duty wherever they may be lawfully ordered, subject, however, to the accountability of the officer making such orders for an arbitrary or improper exercise of his powers.

511. In route marches in vicinity of an enemy, the band and field music are in rear of the column. On occasions of ceremony, as when entering a town, or when troops require to be revived by music during a fatiguing march, the band and field music may be ordered to the front. In passing a defile to the front in presence of an enemy, the band and field music are in rear of the column. In passing a defile in retreat, the band and field music wheel into column first after the pioneers, and pass through at the head of the column.

512. When a battalion is in line of battle for review, it is customary for the Adjutant to present it to the Colonel or Commander of the review, who is in front. The Adjutant then retires, on an intimation from his Commanding Officer, to his post on the right. The Colonel or officer in command then commands as in paragraph 372, dismounts and goes to the right of the battalion to observe if the ranks are properly aligned. He then commands as in paragraph 373, and passes down the front to his position. The Commanding Officer may, however, take his place in rear of his battalion, in which case it will not be presented to him, and when he commands as in paragraph 372, he goes to the right to witness the alignment, and after giving the command Front! passes down the battalion to his place, as prescribed in paragraph 373.

513. Commanding officers of regiments will have especial care to see that the bands, the field music, the Engineers or Pioneers, and the colors and standards, are at all times properly posted.

514. For posting the music at Reviews and Dress Parades, the Infantry will refer to the proper regulations. The Cavalry will refer to 1st Vol. Cavalry Tactics (promulgated by the War Department of the United States, February 10, 1841), p. 18, &c. The Artillery will refer to Instructions for Field Artillery (promulgated by the War Department, March 6, 1845), p. 146.

515. For posting music, colors and standards in line of battle, reference will be made to 1st Vol. Scott's Tactics, pp. 14-16; 1st Vol. Hardee's Tactics, pp. 9, 10; 1st Vol. Cavalry Tactics, pp. 5, &c.

516. For posting music in column of manœuvre and en route, reference will be made to 1st Vol. Scott's Tactics, p. 189; 1st Vol. Hardee's Tactics, p. 217.

517. For reception of color and standard, reference will be made to 2d Vol. Scott's Tactics, pp. 5-7; 2d Vol. Hardee's Tactics, pp. 5-7; 1st Vol. Cavalry Tactics, pp. 8-11.

518. For posting music at Inspections, and manner of Inspection, the Infantry will refer to article "Inspection of Troops," in these regulations. The Cavalry will refer to 1st Vol. Cavalry Tactics, pp. 22-25. The Artillery will refer to Instruction for Field Artillery, pp. 146-149.

519. For posting Pioneers, reference will be made to 1st Vol. Scott's Tactics, pp. 14, 15, 194. For posting music and Pioneers in square, reference will be made to 2d Vol. Scott's Tactics, p. 166; 2d Vol. Hardee's Tactics, p. 182. For the posting of music, pioneers, &c., attention is likewise called to a close examination of the explanation of the various evolutions attached to each diagram of manœuvres in Scott's Tactics. The manual of arms for sergeants, corporals, for relieving sentinels, of the sword or sabre for officers, for color salute, will be found in 1st Vol. Scott's Tactics, pp. 179-189; 1st Vol. Hardee's Tactics, pp. 214-216.

520. For the various signals and calls, reference will be made to these regulations; 1st Vol. Scott's Tactics, pp. 190, 191; 1st Vol. Hardee's Tactics, pp. 217. &c.; 1st Vol. Cavalry Tactics, pp. 82, 83; Instructions for Field Artillery, p. 164, &c.

ARTICLE XXV.

INSTRUCTION.

521. All manœuvres and forms of parade, not prescribed in the books of tactics adopted by the United States, or in these regulations, are expressly prohibited.

522. Each General Officer and Colonel will be held responsible to his next superior, and also directly to the Commander-in-Chief, for the instruction of his division, brigade or regiment.

523. The Commander-in-Chief will annually, by orders, to be issued through the Adjutant-General, announce a course of military instruction, to be pursued in each division, brigade and regiment, agreeably to the prescribed systems of tactics for the several arms of the service.

524. In the orders for such course, no more manœuvres will be designated to be practiced than can be thoroughly acquired, with ordinary diligence, during the year; and care will be taken to make the course progressive, and, as nearly as may be, uniform throughout the state. Reference will also be had, as far as practicable, to the previous practice and advancement of the command for which the course is prescribed, and at proper periods the practice of the earlier lessons will be resumed.

525. The prescribing of a course of instruction from the general head-quarters is not to be understood to relieve Commanding Officers from the duties or responsibility of discipline and instruction in their commands. Although the designated manœuvres will be required to be practiced, other exercises may be added, at the discretion of Commandants; and the directions for instruction applicable to Commanders, contained in the books of tactics, will be regarded by them.

526. Nor will the prescribing or practice of any course of instruction relieve the officers, non-commissioned officers or privates from the necessity of a diligent personal study of the books of tactics. It is only by this study, and the superior intelligence and aptitude of the rank and file, that the volunteer forces of the state can expect to attain in any considerable measure the efficiency which, in regular forces, is the result of continuous and systematic training.

527. Each Commandant of a regiment will, between the first and fifteenth days of November in each year, return to the Commandant of his brigade a statement in writing, subscribed by him, of the particular manœuvres and exercises practiced in his regiment during the year; and each Commandant of brigade will transmit such returns, together with a report of the evolutions practiced in his brigade during such year, under his own directions, to the Adjutant-General, on or before the first day of December in each year.

528. A similar report will be made by the Commandant of each division, in respect to his division parades and meetings, as is above required of the Commandant of brigade.

529. Suitable blanks and forms will be prepared and furnished by the Adjutant-General, for the making of the reports and returns required by this article.

530. It will be the duty of the Adjutant-General to examine such returns and reports, and annually, before the first day of January, to issue the orders herein required, prescribing the course of instruction and exercise, during the year ensuing, in each regiment, brigade and division.

531. The orders for instruction in brigades and regiments will be transmitted to the Commandant of the brigade, and by him each Regimental Commander will, on or before the fifteenth day of January in each year, be furnished with the orders which relate to the brigade and to his regiment.

532. The Adjutant-General will also transmit copies of the orders, sent to the Commandant of each brigade, to the Brigade Inspector therein; and the Commandant of Brigade will cause to be executed, for the inspection of the Brigade Inspector, the manœuvres and exercises therein prescribed, at the annual inspection parade of such brigade or regiment; and the Brigade Inspector will report to the Commander-in-Chief, in his annual inspection returns, whether the exercises and manœuvres, required by such orders to be practiced in the brigade and by the regiments thereof, have been so practiced, and the proficiency exhibited therein by the troops.

533. It will be the duty of Commandants, to whom such orders for instruction shall be communicated, to promulgate such orders, and to instruct and practice their several commands in the manœuvres and exercises designated therein, during the year for which such orders are issued.

534. Each Commandant of Division will call together the General and Field Officers, Division Staff, and Brigade Inspectors in his division, once in each year, and for a period not exceeding two consecutive days, at some place in his division district, for theoretic instruction in the evolutions of the Line. It will be the duty of the officers named to attend upon such call, and, when assembled, to study, and illustrate by diagrams, the principles and details of practice laid down in the books of tactics for such evolutions.

535. The Commandant of each brigade will call together, at some place in the brigade district, the Field Officers and Brigade Staff Officers in his brigade for theoretic instruction, for a period of not less than two consecutive days in each year. Such Commandant shall also, at least twice in each year, require the attendance of all Commissioned officers of the brigade, residing in any city of the state, at meetings to be held in such city, for instruction and drill.

536. Commandants of regiments will call together their commissioned and non-commissioned officers, for improvement and instruction, at least twice in each year. Non-commissioned officers will be specially instructed in their duties; and particular care will be taken fully to explain to the non-commissioned staff, the color bearer, the chief musician, and the general and company guides, the positions which they will occupy in the manœuvres, and the service required of them in their several stations.

537. At such meetings the Commandant may require any military service from any officer or non-commissioned officer, without regard to rank or grade.

538. Each Brigadier-General is the principal instructor in his brigade. Colonels will be the principal instructors of their regiments, when the Brigadier-General does not act as such.

539. The Brigadier-General, or other officer acting as principal instructor at brigade meetings for instruction and improvement of officers and non-commissioned officers, will frequently substitute Field Officers and senior Captains as instructors. The substitute will always be superintended by the principal instructor or other officer designated to act as such.

540. The same rule of substitution will prevail in the instruction of regiments, squadrons, companies and squads.

541. An officer acting as principal instructor should from time to time change the officer in charge of the subdivisions, as well as the substituted instructors. The opportunities thus afforded are of great service to junior officers, as well by increasing the range of ordinary practice, as also by enabling them to acquire the method of command, and the ease, accuracy and promptitude indispensable in the giving of orders in the field.

Instruction.

542. The principal instructor will designate the order of the exercises and the method of performance, point out and correct any error or mistake which may occur, and, if acting without a substitute, he will give the commands to the troops.

543. If there be a substituted instructor, he will give the commands to the troops, and also rectify all faults of detail in the execution of the manœuvres. He will also direct what exercises are to be practiced, unless such direction is given by the principal instructor. If the manœuvres are executed in parts, or with pauses, at such pauses, or when the particular movement is concluded, the principal instructor may direct attention to such errors as have escaped the attention of the substitute.

544. It is the first duty of an instructor to explain fully what he proposes to teach; and this duty will not be omitted, unless where the movement proposed has already been introduced or is presumed to be understood. Such explanations may be made either by the principal instructor or substituted instructor.

545. At drills and parades, the explanations will be in as few words and concise a form as possible; but at a course of theoretic instruction, they will be full, and accompanied with a reference to the books of tactics, which will be carefully examined, and the instructor will point out the essential features and peculiarities of each manœuvre, and especially those particulars upon which the accuracy of execution depends; also its principles, uses and analogies to other movements.

546. The movements introduced will be at first executed slowly, and frequently in parts, or with pauses, in order that the principles and mechanism may be better understood; and the principal instructor will aim to inspire confidence and self-command in substitutes, and especially in young officers who may be called upon to exercise a new position in the presence of superior officers. To the attainment of this end, he will be careful to avoid all expressions or conduct which may tend to disconcert or embarrass them in the discharge of

547. An officer ordering an encampment, parade for exercise, drill or improvement meeting, may announce in orders the course of instruction and practice to be pursued thereat, subject, however, to his responsibility to cause to be executed in his command the orders relative to instruction issued from the general head-quarters; and all officers who may be in command, at such encampment, parade, drill or meeting, will cause such orders to be strictly observed and obeyed.

548. An officer ordering drills or improvement meetings of officers or non-commissioned officers may designate, in orders, the officers who are to act as principal or substituted instructors at the same; and the superior officer present at such drills or meetings shall see that such orders are carried into execution.

549. The sappers and miners will be instructed and practiced in the drill of the light infantry, and also of the artillery. Staff Officers of divisions and brigades will be instructed in all the arms, and Regimental Staff Officers in the arm of the regiment.

550. The Lieutenant-Colonel of each regiment will select two or more persons from the sappers and miners, or from the corporals in the line, to act as markers in the exercises of the regiment. They will be carefully instructed by the Lieutenant-Colonel in the duties required of them in the practice of the school of the battalion (in the cavalry, of the squadron and regiment), and they will be under the special direction of the Lieutenant-Colonel during the manœuvres.

551. Brigade Inspectors may be required by their Brigadier-Generals to superintend the exercises and manœuvres, and introduce the system of tactics and discipline at brigade drills and other meetings for instruction of officers and non-commissioned officers; and such Inspectors may act thereat, according to their instructions, either as principal or substituted instructors.

Instruction.

552. Brigade Inspectors will act as instructors, only when put on duty for that purpose, as provided in these regulations or by law.

553. Brigade Inspectors, in introducing the system of tactics and discipline pursuant to law, as drill officers, will carefully avoid any assumption of general command, and strictly observe these regulations as to the method of exercising their functions.

554. A Brigade Inspector acting as drill officer, pursuant to the provision of law, at encampments or parades, has the powers of a substituted instructor. His functions extend to the practice of a regiment or less body of troops; and during such practice the Brigadier-General, or the Commandant of the regiment or less force, if a field officer, will act as principal instructor. The Brigade Inspector will give notice of his intention to act as drill officer to the Commanding Officer present, who will give the necessary directions to the troops.

555. When the regiment is formed ready for exercise, the Commanding Officer will give notice to the Brigade Inspector, who will then, in the presence and under the supervision of the officer acting as principal instructor, instruct and practice the troops in the manœuvres prescribed from general head-quarters, or ordered by the officer ordering the encampment or parade, or if none shall have been so prescribed or ordered, then such manœuvres as the officer acting as principal instructor shall direct. The Brigade Inspector will give the commands for the execution of the manœuvres, and they will be obeyed in the same manner as if issued by the Commandant. The exercises will be terminated by order of the Commanding Officer, upon consultation with the Brigade Inspector.

556. In correcting the errors and inaccuracies of officers and non-commissioned officers, care will be taken, as far as may be, not to impair their authority or relax discipline. To this end, it is desirable that they should be separately instructed; and also, when circumstances will permit, that they should be separated from the men when instruction is required to be imparted to them in the presence of their commands.

Instruction.

557. For the purpose of facilitating instruction and practice in the school of the battalion, the Commanding Officer or instructor may desire to explain the manœuvre to the officers and guides before attempting it, or he may desire to correct mistakes which have already occurred. To this end he may call them together in front of the battalion, in the manner prescribed in the following paragraphs.

558. The battalion having been brought into line, and at ordered arms, the Commandant or instructor will, after ordering "Parade—Rest," command,

1. Officers, Color and Guides.
2. To the front and centre.
3. MARCH!

At the second command, the officers acting as Captains and First Lieutenants of companies will advance four paces to the front; the First and Second Sergeants of companies and General Guides will shoulder arms, as Sergeants, and advance two paces in front, the whole facing inwards; the Color Bearer will also advance two paces, and remain faced to the front. At the third command, the officers and non-commissioned officers will march to the centre, the rank of non-commissioned officers forming upon the Color Bearer, with the General Guides on its flanks. The Adjutant will place himself in the centre of the rank of officers, and command,

1. Front—FACE!
3. HALT.

At the first command, the officers and non-commissioned officers will face to the front and be aligned by the centre; at the second, the two ranks will advance twelve paces, and at the third will halt, and the Lieutenant-Colonel and Major will take post on the right and left of the rank of officers.

After communicating the instructions, the Commanding Officer or Instructor will command,

1. Officers, Color and Guides.
2. About—FACE!
3. To your posts—MARCH!

Camps for Instruction — Camps.

At the first order the Field Officers will retake their proper positions ; at the second, the officers and non-commissioned officers will face to the rear, and at the third they will advance twelve paces and halt, by command of the Adjutant ; the Color Bearer will take his post, and the officers and non-commissioned officers will face outward, and resume their several places in the line. If there be no Adjutant, the officer on the right of the rank of officers will give the commands herein prescribed for the Adjutant.

559. The officers only, or the non-commissioned officers, may be brought to the centre by the same method, by confining the order to those who are required.

560. When the designated officers shall be called to the centre, the officers and non-commissioned officers remaining with the companies will see that perfect order and silence are preserved in the ranks.

The same method may be used in the cavalry and artillery, to bring the officers and non-commissioned officers to the front and centre, for the same purposes.

ARTICLE XXVI.

CAMPS FOR INSTRUCTION — CAMPS.

561. All encampments of the military forces of this state, for martial exercise, improvement and discipline, will be called Camps for Instruction, and are embraced under the provisions of this article.

562. The site of the camp will be selected by the officer ordering the encampment, who will examine it with a view to its fitness as to size, location, healthiness and convenience of access and water. The General will also determine whether the regiments are to encamp separately or together.

563. A camping party will be detailed to prepare the camp. The party will consist of the officers and men of the Engineer Department, and the officers of the Quartermaster's Department, and a Corporal and two men from each company. This party may be put on duty preceding the encampment, and at such time as the officer ordering the encampment shall direct.

564. The Chief Quartermaster will receive his directions from the General, and call on the regiments for their camping parties; and it will be the duty of the Commandants of regiments to see that they are furnished.

565. The Engineer Corps, on duty, will be charged with the laying out the camp, and guarding it until taken possession of by the troops. They will designate, by stakes or other marks upon the ground, the lines of streets, sites of tents, and all other details. They will act under the direction of the officer ordering the encampment.

566. The Quartermasters and their assistants will be charged with the custody and conveyance of the tents, camp equipage, &c. They will preserve the property in their charge, and deliver it to the troops at the time and in the quantity required. They will also pitch the tents of the Generals and Field and Staff, Non-Commissioned Staff, Guards, Engineers, Musicians, and those required for the use of the Quartermaster and Medical department, and also prepare the sinks for the officers and men. In this duty they will be assisted by the men of the Engineer Corps. The Quartermaster's men will also aid in guarding the camp at night, under the orders of the Officers of Engineers.

567. The baggage train, under the immediate charge of the Quartermaster-Sergeant and his assistants, may proceed to the camp in advance of the troops or with them, as may be directed by the Commanding Officer.

568. When the troops arrive at the camp, the men not detailed for guards, or fatigue or working parties, will immediately pitch the company tents, including those of the company officers.

569. If the Commanding Officer shall so elect, the pitching of all the tents may be delayed until the arrival of the troops; and fatigue and working parties may then be detailed, under the direction of the Camps for Instruction — Camps.

Engineers and Quartermasters, to perform the labors required of the camping party, and also to procure the necessary supplies, and put the camp in order.

570. On reaching the ground the troops form on the color front, cavalry regiments in the rear of their camp. The number of men to be furnished as guards, orderlies and fatigue and working parties, and other details of duty in camp, are then announced by the Brigadier-General, or other commanding officer, and promulgated to the Field Officers and troops. The Adjutant and Captains form in front of each regiment, the First Sergeants taking post behind their Captains to receive the orders. The Adjutant then makes the details, and the First Sergeants warn the men. The Regimental Officer of the day sends the guards to their posts. The colors are then planted and arms stacked on the color line; and the fatigue and working parties are formed by the Regimental Officer of the day in rear of the arms, and turned over to the proper officers.

571. All the dispositions, after the troops arrive on the ground, will be made with the utmost promptness, in order that the troops may be established in camp as rapidly as possible.

572 After the troops are established in camp, no non-commissioned officer or soldier is to quit the camp without a furlough, pass or order, except to procure water or other necessities. [See par. 648, &c.] Furloughs are granted by the Commanding Officer of the regiment, and will be signed by him. Passes may be issued by the Commandants of companies, and must be signed by the Commander of the regiment, or by the Adjutant under the authority of such Commander. Every such furlough or pass will state the name of the person to whom it is given, and the length of time for which he may be absent; and no such furlough or pass will be issued contrary to the directions of the Commandant of the camp. An order to any body of troops to pass the guard can only be made by the Commanding Officer of the camp, or by his authority.

573. No officer belonging to the force encamped is to pass out of the camp, or sleep in any house upon the camp grounds, unless by the order or permission of the Commandant of the camp. All leaves of absence will state the period for which they are granted. The issuing of any leave of absence or furlough will be promptly notified by the officer granting the same, through the proper channel of communication, to the immediate Commandant of the person to whom the same is given. Every person receiving such leave of absence or furlough, will, before leaving the camp, report to his immediate Commandant, and also to the proper Staff Officer of the day, in order that his absence may be duly noted; and upon his return to camp he will again report to the officer issuing such leave of absence or furlough, and also to such Staff Officer and to his immediate Commander.

574. Arms will not be loaded in camps for instruction, by sentinels or others, without the special order of the Commanding Officer of the camp.

575. The sale of spiritous liquors upon any camp ground is strictly prohibited; also all gaming, and the bringing within the camp grounds of cards or other gaming materials.

576. The troops are to be encamped in the order of battle. The tents will be arranged in ranks and files; and the terms rank and file, front, rear, flank, right and left, have the same meaning when applied to camps as to the order of battle.

577. The front of the camp is usually equal to the front of the troops when drawn up in lines according to their established formation. The number of ranks of tents varies with the strength of the companies and size of the tents.

578. Generals will take post at the centre of their commands, in the interval between regiments or brigades, and on the best ground on or near the line of tents of Field Officers. The Staffs of General Officers will encamp near them.

579. Every officer in camp will provide himself with stationery and writing materials; Engineers and Surgeons with the materials, instruments and medicines necessary for the discharge of their respective duties.

580. Each Commandant of a company, in camp, will see that his company is provided with one axe, one spade or shovel, one hammer or mallet, and four pails (one to each squad), all of which are to be kept under the special charge of the First Sergeant of the company, subject to the control of the Quartermaster of the regiment.

581. Such deviations from the directions for encampments, herein contained, as the nature of the ground or other special circumstances may render necessary, will be made by order of the Commanding Officer.

INFANTRY CAMPS.

582. In an Infantry camp the front will be about two-fifths, in paces, of the number of men encamped. Thus a regiment of five hundred men, in two ranks, will occupy a space of about two hundred paces. The front of any regiment, of greater or less numbers, may be ascertained upon the same principle. The intervals between regiments will be twenty-two paces.

583. A main street will be run through the centre of the camp of each regiment from its front to the tent of the Colonel. The main street will be fifteen paces wide. The residue of the front of the camp is divided into streets for the companies. Each company has its tents in two files, facing inwards on a street. All the streets are perpendicular to the color line. The width of the company streets will be equal, and depends on the front of the camp, but should not be less than five paces, exclusive of the space occupied by the tents; and if it is desirable to make the streets of less width, the companies will encamp in single files—a division occupying a street. The intervals between the ranks of tents is two paces, and between the files of tents of adjacent companies, two paces.

584. The color line and regimental parade is ten paces in front of the front rank of tents. The kitchens are twenty paces behind the rear rank of company tents. The Non-Commissioned Staff and Sutlers, twenty paces in rear of the kitchens; the Company officers, twenty paces farther in rear; and the Field and Staff, twenty paces in rear of the Company officers.

585. The Sergeants of companies are located in the first rank of company tents; the Corporals with the men; the color guard with the color company, in the first rank, next to the main street. The men of the Engineer Corps and the Musicians encamp on the line of the non-commissioned staff. The Police Guard are on the same line, and on the left of the main street, the tents facing to the front, the stacks of arms in front of the tents. The Company officers' tents are on the sides of the streets, in rear of the respective companies; the Captain's tent on the right; the Colonel's tent will be in the centre of the main street, on the line of the Field and Staff; the Lieutenant-Colonel's, in the centre of the right wing; the Major's, in the centre of the left wing; the Adjutant's, equi-distant between the Colonel's and Lieutenant-Colonel's; the Engineer's and Surgeon's on the right of the Lieutenant-Colonel's, and half way between it and the flank; the Quartermaster's and Paymaster's half way between the Colonel's and Major's; the Chaplain's and Assistant-Surgeon's on the left of the Major's, and half way between it and the flank. The tents of all the Commissioned Officers will face to the front; also those of the Non-Commissioned Staff, Sutlers, Musicians and Engineers.

586. The Officers' kitchens and attendants are twenty paces in rear of the line of Field and Staff; the horses of the Staff Officers and of the baggage train twenty paces farther to the rear; the wagons parked on the same line, and the men of the train camped near them.

587. Mess tents, if used, and also the kitchens for the companies, may be placed on the line of officers' kitchens, if the Commandant of the camp shall so direct; and in that event the line of non-commissioned staff will be twenty paces in rear of the company tents.

588. The sinks are fifty paces in rear of the baggage train; those of the officers near the main street; those of the men near the same line, in rear of the wings or on the flanks, or one of them. The sinks are concealed by bushes, boards or tents; and at least every day a portion of the earth, dug out for the sinks, should be thrown back into them to cover the filth.

589. The advanced post of the Police Guard is about two hundred paces in front of the color line, and opposite the centre of the regiment or on the best ground; the prisoners' tent about four paces in rear of the tents of the advanced post.

590. If the troops encamp in two lines, the advanced posts of the Police Guard of the regiments, in the second line, will be two hundred paces in rear of the line of the Field and Staff of such regiment.

591. Regiments doing duty as Infantry, Light Infantry or Riflemen, will encamp in the manner herein prescribed for the Infantry.

592. Flank companies doing duty as Infantry, Light Infantry or Riflemen, will encamp on the flanks or with the regiment, as their place may be in the order of battle, and in the manner prescribed for the Infantry.

CAVALRY CAMPS.

593. Flank Cavalry companies, attached to foot regiments, will encamp on the same line as the regiment, in their position in order of battle, and in the same manner as the Infantry, except as otherwise directed. The front of the company will be equal to its front when formed in line; the company tents will face inward, and be arranged on both sides of the company street, as in the Infantry; but allowing sufficient distance between the ranks of tents for the forage of the horses. The horses are picketed in two lines facing to the tents; the pickets are firmly fastened in the ground, at from three to six paces from the tents. Each horse picketed, requires about two paces, and the depth of the files of tents will depend on the number of horses. The tents of the stable attendants are in the rear of the company tents.

594. The company kitchen will be twenty paces in rear of the attendants' tents, or on a line with the kitchens of the battalion companies, if those are placed on the line of officers' kitchens.

Artillery Camps.

595. The non-commissioned officers occupy the tents of the front rank. The horses of the officers, and the teamsters and wagons, will be on the line of the baggage train. The officers' kitchens and the sinks are on a line with those of the battalion.

596. The tents of Company Officers are on the prolongation of the files of the company tents, and on the line of the tents of the Company Officers of the battalion if practicable; the tent of the Captain on the right. The parade ground will be in front, on a line with the regimental parade.

597. If the company street is not twenty paces wide after deducting the space occupied by the tents, the company will encamp in a single file on the left side of the street, the tents opening to the right, and the horses will be picketed on one line on the right of the tents, facing to the left. The Lieutenants' tents will be twenty paces in rear of the file of company tents; the Captains, twenty paces in rear of the Lieutenants. The stable guard and the attendants upon the horses will, in this case, have a separate file of tents on the right of the company street. The tents of this file will face to the left, and those of the stable guard will occupy the front rank of this file. The company kitchen will be in the rear of this file, unless located, as above provided, on the line of officers' kitchens.

598. A squadron of Cavalry may be encamped as a company, each company occupying a file of tents on a side of the street. Regiments of Cavalry, or any less force, not attached to a foot regiment, or encamping therewith, will encamp according to the directions for camps of Cavalry contained under the article entitled "Troops in Campaign."

ARTILLERY CAMPS.

599. Flank companies of Artillery attached to foot regiments will encamp on the same line as the regiment in their position in the order of battle, and after the same manner as the Infantry, unless as otherwise provided. The company street will be of the width of the front of the company, when in line, with the prescribed intervals. For a battery of two sections, or a less number of pieces, the tents will be placed on the sides of the street. If there be more than two sections, each section will occupy a file of tents, and a central file of tents will be added, facing to the right. The horses will be picketed as directed in Cavalry companies; and if the number of horses makes it necessary, the files of tents will be so arranged as to allow the horses to be picketed both on the right and left of the tents.

600. The Park is opposite to the centre of the street or streets, forty paces in rear of the Officers' tents. Sentinels for the Park are furnished by the Artillery, and, when necessary, by the other troops. The carriages in files, four paces apart; distance between ranks of carriages sufficient for the horses when harnessed to them. The harness is in the tents of the men. The Park Guard is twenty-five paces in rear of the Park. The camp in other respects is the same as for flank companies of Cavalry.

601. Sections of Light Artillery attached to foot regiments will encamp as above directed. Batteries of Artillery encamping by themselves will observe the directions for camps of Artillery, under the article entitled "Troops in Campaign." Artillery, attached to Cavalry regiments, conform to the general arrangements for the Cavalry.

OFFICERS AND DUTIES OF THE DAY.

602. The daily duties must be announced in orders, and the officers to perform them are to be appointed or detailed as herein provided.

603. Such orders should be written or printed, and will be issued on or before the evening preceding the duty, if practicable.

604. The parole and countersign will be communicated from the head-quarters of the Officer in principal command to the Officer of the day in time to be given to the Officers of guards before retreat.

605. The number and rank of the officers for daily duty are to be regulated by the strength or circumstances of the camp; and the officers appointed or detailed are to remain in camp during their tours of duty.

Officers and Duties of the Day.

606. Beside the officers detailed for guard duty, the officers for daily duty in large camps, will be as follows: A General Officer of the day for each division; a Field Officer of the day for each brigade; a Captain of the day for each regiment; and such General and Regimental Staff Officers of the day as may be necessary to attend to the various details.

607. In camps of one regiment, or less, the officers will be as follows: Officer of the day, Adjutant of the day, and Officer of police guard.

608. The General of the day is to superintend the regularity and discipline of the camp of the division, visit the guards and outposts, call out and inspect the guards as often and at such times as he thinks proper; to receive all reports of guards, and make immediate communication of any extraordinary circumstance to his Commanding Officer and to the General Commanding-in-Chief.

609. The Field Officer of the day has the immediate superintendence of the camp of the brigade; he is to be present at the mounting and dismounting of the brigade guards; he is to call them out to inspect them; to order such patrols from them as he may judge necessary to insure the regularity and order of the camp; to see that the proper posts are established; that the guard are vigilant, that none are absent, and that their arms and accoutrements are in order; that the officers and non-commissioned officers are acquainted with their duty, and that the sentinels are properly posted, and have received proper orders.

610. The Captain or Officer of the day of each regiment, and in camps of less than a regiment, is charged with the order and cleanliness of the camp; he has the calls beaten by the drummer of the police guard; he attends the parading of the guards, and orders the roll to be called frequently and at unexpected periods, and reports everything extraordinary to the Commander of the regiment or camp; he is to visit the hospital at various hours, and make a report of its state to the Commander of the regiment or camp. He will satisfy himself frequently during the night of the vigilance of the police guard and its post or posts; and prescribes patrols and rounds to be made by the Officer of the guard. He will give attention to the condition of the sinks, the regulation of camp fires, the removal of rubbish, &c. ; and for these purposes a fatigue will be furnished him when necessary.

611. The General Staff Officer of the day, at the head-quarters of the Commanding Officer, attends, under the direction of such Commandant, to the making and keeping of the rosters required to be kept at the head-quarters, to the issue and service of orders, to the receipt and consolidation of reports and returns, to the requisition for and inspection of guards ordered from those head-quarters, and the mounting of such guards ; to the entry of the names of all persons who receive leave of absence from the principal head-quarters, noting the time of absence and return ; to the timely communication of the countersign and parole to officers entitled thereto ; and, generally, to the discharge of all duties devolving upon officers of the Adjutant-General's department, in camp or in the field.

612. The Staff Officer of the day, of the division or brigade, is to attend to all the duties, in his division or brigade, required of the General Staff Officer of the day at the chief head-quarters ; and will also attend for orders at the head-quarters of the Commandant next superior to his General, and deliver there at the proper times all required returns and reports.

613. The Staff Officer or Adjutant of the day of a regiment, or camp of less than a regiment, is appointed to relieve the Adjutant, or act as Adjutant, when necessary ; and he will, while so acting, perform any duty which may be required of him which would otherwise devolve upon the Adjutant. Under the supervision of the Commandant of the regiment, the Adjutant, or the Adjutant of the day, will see that the required returns and reports are duly and promptly made to him, and by him to the Commandant of the regiment or smaller force, and also to the brigade head-quarters, in a large camp ; that the proper orders are issued and communicated ; that the necessary rosters are kept, and that the details for guard and other duty are regularly made, and notice thereof given ; and that the requisitions from superior head-quarters are complied with accurately, and in proper time. also keep a record of all leaves of absence, furloughs and passes given to officers and men belonging to the regiment, and of their return to duty, and period of absence. He will attend for orders at the proper head-quarters.

614. The Officer of the day in each division, brigade and regiment will be appointed by the Commandant thereof, and the names of those appointed will be announced in orders. The rules of the roster will, as far as may be, govern in making such selections.

615. The selection for Field Officers of the day will be made from the roster of Lieutenant-Colonels and Majors, and, when necessary, Captains may be put on the roster for this service.

616. The Staff Officer of the day will be usually the officer of the Adjutant-General's department belonging to the command; but, in case of a vacancy, or to relieve that officer, the Commanding officer of the division, brigade or regiment may select a Staff Officer of the day from any other department of the Staff, except the Medical department, or from the Lieutenants of the line not in command of companies or detailed for other duty.

617. Besides the Staff Officers of the day above referred to, there will be always on duty, in camp, the Staff Officers (other than those of the Adjutant-General's department) attached to the force encamped, who will discharge the several duties devolving upon officers of their respective departments. The same course will be pursued to provide for the absence, or inability to act, of an officer in any of the Staff departments, as is indicated in respect to the Staff Officer of the day.

OFFICERS OF GUARDS.

618. The Officers of Guards are detailed according to the rules of the roster, subject, however, to the right of selection in special cases. The detail for Officers of brigade guards will be made at brigade head-quarters—for regimental guards, at regimental head-quarters.

Camp Guards.

619. Officers of Guards make report of their tour of service, including the reports from all posts, and send it, after the guard is marched off, to the Officer of the day.

620. Officers of Guards will also keep lists of the names of all officers, non-commissioned officers and soldiers who pass the guard under leaves of absence, furloughs and passes; and upon such lists will be stated the time of going and returning of each person. The lists will be appended to the reports of the Officers of Guards, and delivered therewith to the Officer of the day.

621. It is the duty of officers on all guards to inspect all reliefs of sentinels, both when they go on and come off their posts; to call the rolls frequently, and by every means in their power to keep the men under their command in the most perfect state of vigilance and preparation. They will be responsible for the security of the prisoners and property committed to their charge; and it will be their duty to suppress all riots and disorders, and in case of fire to give the alarm, and be instrumental in extinguishing it. They are also watchfully to superintend the conduct of the non-commissioned officers, taking care that they are correct in the performance of their duty, that they maintain a proper authority, and prevent any species of irregularity among the men. They must particularly ascertain that the non-commissioned officers are well informed with respect to the orders they are to deliver to the several sentinels; and they must frequently visit the sentinels, to be assured that they know their duty and have received the proper instructions.

CAMP GUARDS.

622. A guard, to be called the Grand Guard, will be posted at every encampment for instruction when the encampment consists of more than one regiment.

623. The numbers and positions of the Grand Guard are regulated by the Commandants of brigades; in detached corps by the Commanding Officer. They will be formed of detachments from the regiments, according to their strength, and will be of such force as the nature of the duty may require.

Camp Guards.

624. The Grand Guard of a brigade will be usually commanded by a Captain; and, under the supervision of the Generals of division and brigade, the Grand Guards are specially under the direction of the Field Officer of the day in each brigade.

625. The Grand Guard will be posted at the principal access to the camp; and posts may be established in the rear and on the flanks, at suitable distances, so as to command the approaches to the camp. Between these posts and the main guard a line of sentinels may be thrown, outside of the sentinels of the Police Guards, so as to form a second line around the camp. The posts may be commanded by a commissioned or non-commissioned officer, as their strength or importance may demand.

626. The distance at which the Grand Guard and its posts should be placed from the lines of sentinels of the Police Guard will depend on the situation of the ground and the intention of the Commanding Officer.

627. The Commander of a Grand Guard receives detailed instructions from the General and Field Officer of the day of the brigade, and he instructs the Commanders of the small posts as to their duties.

628. The General of Division, if he thinks proper, changes the stations and orders of the Grand Guard, and establishes posts to connect the brigades or protect the exterior flanks.

629. Staff Officers sent from division head-quarters to inspect the posts of Grand Guards give them orders only in urgent cases, and in the absence of the Field Officer of the day of the brigade.

630. The Commander of the Grand Guard reports to the General of brigade, and Field Officer of the day of the brigade, all matters of importance or requiring attention.

631. Such subaltern and non-commissioned officers will be detailed for duty on the Grand Guard as its force and number of posts may require.

Camp Guards.

632. From the Grand Guard will be detailed, ordinarily, the Orderlies and Sentinels for general officers, at the camps for instruction. A Major-General will be furnished with two Sergeants as orderlies, and two Sentinels at his marquée, by his own division, each brigade furnishing them by turns. A Brigadier-General will be furnished with one Sergeant as an orderly, and one Sentinel at his marquée, by his own brigade. Generals may make selections of non-commissioned officers, other than First or Second Sergeants of companies, for Orderlies, and continue them on duty for such period as they may determine, and they may increase the number of their Orderlies or Sentinels as occasion may require, or they may order a separate detail for the same.

633. In each regiment is detailed every day a Police Guard, to consist of two Sergeants, three Corporals, two Drummers and men enough to furnish the required Sentinels and Patrols. The men are taken from all the companies, from each in proportion to its strength.

634. The Police Guard is commanded by a Lieutenant, under the supervision of the Officer of the day of the regiment, and furnishes ten Sentinels at the camp, viz. : one over the arms of the Guard ; one at the Colonel's tent ; two on the color front, one being opposite each wing ; two, twenty paces in rear of the sinks, one opposite each wing ; two on each flank, between it and the next regiment. If it is a flank regiment, one additional Sentinel may be posted on the outer flank, and if the regiment is encamped alone, on each flank.

635. An advanced post is detached from the Police Guard, composed of a Sergeant, a Corporal, a Drummer, and nine men to furnish Sentinels and a Guard over the prisoners. It furnishes three Sentinels, two a few paces in front of the post, opposite the right and left wing of the regiment, posted so as to see as far as possible to the front, and one over the arms and prisoners.

636. In the cavalry, dismounted men are employed in preference on the Police Guard. The mounted men on duty are sent in succession, a part at a time, to groom their horses. The advanced post is always formed of mounted men.

Camp Guards.

637. Where a Grand Guard is posted, at brigade or division encampments, the advanced posts of regiments may be dispensed with, in which case the duties required of the advanced post will be discharged by the Grand Guard.

638. When a regiment is encamped alone, or whenever it may be deemed necessary, the camp may be covered at night with small out posts, forming a double chain of Sentinels. These posts are under the orders of the Commander of the Police Guard, and are visited by his patrols and rounds.

639. The Sentinels on the color front have orders not to permit the colors to be moved unless by the Color Bearer or Sergeant of the Guard; nor will they permit any person to take arms from the stacks, except by order of some officer or a non-commissioned officer of the guard. The Sentinel at the Colonel's tent has orders to warn him, day or night, of any unusual movement in or about the camp. The Sentinel over the arms, at the advanced post, guards the prisoners and keeps sight of them, and suffers no one to converse with them without permission.

640. The Sentinels on the front, flanks and rear, see that no person during the day enters or leaves the camp, but at a post of the guard, unless such person be the Commanding Officer of the regiment, brigade, division or camp, or the Officer of the day or Officer of the guard, or is passed over the chain by one of these officers. At night they prevent all persons from entering or quitting the camp, except at the advanced post. They report to the Officer of the guard, at any time, suspicious persons prowling about the camp; and at night they arrest every one who attempts to enter or leave the camp surreptitiously or forcibly; or, except by the advanced post after being warned so to do. Arrested persons are sent to the Officer of the guard, who sends them, if necessary, to the Officer of the day.

641. The Sentinels in front of the advanced post have orders to permit no person to pass the line without reporting at the advanced post, and to warn the post of the approach of any officer or body of troops. The Sergeant notifies the Officer of the guard of the approach of an officer entitled to compliment, or of a body of troops.

642. No non-commissioned officer or soldier is to quit his guard without leave, which is to be granted only on particular occasions and to very few at a time. If water or other necessaries are wanted for the guard, they must be sent for, at a time when the sentinels are not relieving, by a non-commissioned officer.

643. During the day the reliefs off post may be allowed to rest themselves as much as may consist with duty. But during the night no man will be suffered to sleep, unless it be expressly permitted by the Officer of the day; and the guard must be always ready to fall in at the least alarm, with arms in hand.

644. If any one is to be passed out of the camp at night, the Officer of the guard will send him under escort to the advanced post of the camp, and the officer or non-commissioned officer on duty there will have him passed over the chain.

645. At retreat the advanced post takes arms. The Officers of guards have the rolls of their guards called and inspect arms, and visit the posts for the same purpose. A Sergeant of the guard folds, or lowers, the colors. The Sergeant of the Police Guard sees that the sutlers' stores are closed and the men leave them, and that the kitchen fires are put out at the appointed hour.

646. After the countersign is given to the guard, should one of the guard desert, or the countersign be otherwise lost, the Commander on the spot will substitute another, notify his guard and sentinels, and report the case at once to the proper superior, that notice may be immediately transmitted to the other guards and head-quarters.

647. At reveille the Camp Guards take arms; the Officers of guards inspect them and the several posts; the colors are replanted or hoisted.

648. If water is required to be brought into camp by the men, the drummer of the Police Guard will beat the necessary signal, at the hours prescribed for water calls, on which a man from each squad in which water is wanted will immediately parade before the tent of the Police Guard, where the Officer of the Police Guard will form them, and send them off under the care of a non-commissioned officer of the guard, who will be answerable for the good order and return of the party. If water is wanted at other than the regular hours, application will be made to the Officer of the day or of the Police Guard, either of whom may cause the call to be beaten and dispatch a party or person for the required supply. Wood and other necessities may be sent for and brought into camp in the same manner. Except in case of necessity, not more than one detachment is to be absent at a time.

649. Every such party, or any person, sent for the same purpose, not conducted by a non-commissioned officer of the guard, must have the written direction or permission of the Commandant of the regiment, or Officer of the day or of the Police Guard, without which he is not to be permitted to pass the chain.

650. For convenience, a post may be established in the day time, and continued until one hour after retreat, on the flank or rear, for the passage in or out of the camp of sutlers and camp attendants, and provisions and other necessities. An officer or non-commissioned officer of the guard will be in attendance at such post.

651. Passes may be given to sutlers and camp attendants by the Commandants of regiments, brigades, divisions and the Commandant of the camp. The Commandant of the camp may regulate the admission of sutlers, camp attendants, and all other persons to the camp.

652. Besides the Grand Guard and Police Guard, there shall be such other guards in camp as may be necessary for protection of the magazine, supplies, &c., and for preservation of order at the hospitals.

653. In each company of Cavalry and Light Artillery there is a Stable Guard, under the charge of a corporal. The Stable Guard tour begins at retreat, and ends at morning stable call. The Stable Guard should be large enough to relieve the men on post every two hours; and the number of posts will be fixed by the Captain. They sleep in their tents (unless tents are specially provided for the guard), and are called by the corporal when wanted. At retreat, the guard close the company street or streets with cords, or use other precautions to prevent the escape of loose horses.

654. The number of the officers, non-commissioned officers and men, upon guard, may be increased or diminished according to circumstances; but all guards, except those which are honorary, should ordinarily be of force proportioned to the number of sentinels required, allowing three reliefs to each post.

DETAILS FOR DUTY.

655. The duties performed by detail are of three classes. The first class comprises: 1st. Grand Guards and out posts; 2d. Interior Guards, as of magazine, hospitals, &c.; 3d. Orderlies; 4th. Police Guards. Detachments and working parties are in the second class. In the third class are all fatigues without arms, in or out of camp. In the Cavalry, Stable Guards form a distinct roster and count before fatigue.

656. The rosters are distinct for each class of duties. Officers are named on them in the order of rank, and the details are taken in succession, in the order of the roster, beginning at the head.

657. It will be understood that the Commanding officer of the camp may depart from the order of the roster in making selections of officers for duty, if, in his opinion, the circumstances should require such departure.

658. Commandants of regiments, whether so permanently or temporarily, are exempt from detail.

659. The roster of Lieutenant-Colonels and Majors is kept at division and brigade head-quarters. They may be detailed for duties of the first and second classes when the importance of the guards and detachments require it. If the officer whose tour it would be is Field Officer of the day, his tour shall pass.

660. The Captains form one roster, and are exempt from fatigues, except to superintend issues. If a Captain should be Officer of the day, his tour for any other duty shall pass. This roster is kept at brigade and regimental head-quarters.

661. Lieutenants form one roster, and First and Second Lieutenants are entered on it alternately—the senior First Lieutenant being the first, and the senior Second Lieutenant the next, &c.; but a requisition for officers of one of these grades will be answered by a detail of officers of the particular grade designated. The roster is kept at brigade and regimental head-quarters.

662. In the company, Sergeants, Corporals and Privates form separate rosters for service and camp, which are kept at regimental head-quarters, and by the First Sergeants of companies.

663. Officers, non-commissioned officers and soldiers take duties of the first class in the order stated, viz.: the first for the detail, takes the Grand Guards; the next, the Interior Guards; the last, the Police Guard; and the same rule in regard to the details and duties of the second class. In the details for the third class the senior officer takes the largest party. The party first for detail takes the service out of camp.

664. When the officer, whose tour it is, is not able to take it, or is not present at the hour of marching, the next after him takes it. When a guard has passed the chain of sentinels, or an Interior Guard has reached its post, the officer whose tour it was cannot then take it. He takes the tour of the officer who has taken his. When an officer is prevented by sickness from taking his tour, it passes. These rules apply equally to non-commissioned officers and soldiers.

665. Duties of the first and second class are credited on the roster when the guards or detachments have passed the chain of sentinels, or an Interior Guard has reached its post; fatigue duties when the party has passed the chain or begun the duties in camp.

Returns and Reports.

666. Every officer, non-commissioned officer or soldier, on duty, of the first class, or who is of the next detail for such duty, takes, when relieved, the duty of the second or third class that has fallen to him during that time, unless he has marched for detachment of more than twenty-four hours.

667. All the foregoing rules for camps of instruction will apply, as far as they can be made applicable, when no other special direction is given, to duty in Garrison, and to all other services of the troops.

ARTICLE XXVII.

RETURNS AND REPORTS.

668. The Commandants of regiments will make to the Adjutant-General, in accordance with the blanks furnished by him, a yearly special return of their respective regiments, on or before the first day of May in each year, setting forth the names of the Field and Staff and Non-Commissioned Staff of their respective regiments; the names of the Captains and Lieutenants of the flank companies attached to the same; the character of the arm, whether of Light Artillery, Cavalry, Artillery or Rifles; also the names of the Captains and Lieutenants of the battalion companies of such regiment, and the total number of Non-Commissioned Officers, Musicians and Privates of every company of such regiment, under the respective letter of such company; and the number of Sappers and Miners of such regiment; also the number and kind of ordnance, arms, accoutrements, musical instruments and colors owned by the state, in possession of each of said companies respectively, or in possession of such regiment; and the number of Musicians attached to the band thereof.

669. To enable the Commandants of regiments to make the special return required by the preceding section, the Commandants of companies shall, on or before the first day of April in each year, in accordance with the blanks furnished by the Adjutant-General, make to the Regimental Commandants a similar return of their respective companies, setting forth the letter of the company, the names of the Company Officers, the number of Non-Commissioned Officers, Musicians and Privates, and the number and kinds of ordnance, arms, musical instruments, guidons and accoutrements owned by the state and in possession of such company.

670. The Inspectors of each brigade shall, within thirty days after the annual inspection of their respective brigades, transmit to the Adjutant-General, in accordance with the blanks furnished by him, a return of such inspection. They shall also, at the same time, transmit to the Adjutant-General a statement of the number of parades, reviews and inspections of the several regiments, in their respective brigades, and whether they were attended by the Commanding Officer of the Division, and the Division Staff, armed and equipped and uniformed according to law and regulation, and also by the Commanding Officer of Brigade, with the Brigade Staff, armed and equipped according to law and regulation; and may report such other information as they may deem calculated to enure to the benefit of their brigades.

671. To enable the Inspectors of Brigade to make such annual return and statement, the Commandants of companies, at the annual inspection, shall furnish the Brigade Inspector with a return in accordance with the blank prepared by the Adjutant-General, which shall show:

1. The number of Commissioned, Non-Commissioned Officers, Musicians and Privates of their respective companies present on parade, designating the number of each.
2. The number thereof absent from parade.
3. The uniforms, ordnance, arms, musical instruments, guidons and equipments inspected.
4. The number of uniforms belonging to such company.
5. The ordnance, arms, musical instruments, guidons and equipments in the possession of such company.

672. The Commandants of regiments in each brigade also shall, within twenty days after the annual inspection, furnish their respective Brigade Inspectors with a return of the Field and Staff Officers, and Non-Commissioned Staff Officers, Musicians and Sappers and Miners of their respective regiments, present and absent, armed and equipped and uniformed according to law and regulation.

673. Officers making inspections will have special care to return all deviations from the regulations prescribing the uniform.

674. In those Brigade Districts or any part thereof where the enrolment of the ununiformed Militia is required by law to be made by the military authorities, the Brigade Inspectors thereof shall, on or before the first day of December in each year, report to the Adjutant-General the whole number of such ununiformed Militia, enrolled as aforesaid; and to enable the Inspectors to make such report, every Commanding Officer of each Company District where the enrolment is so made shall, on or before the first day of November in each year, return the whole number of able-bodied white male citizens, between the ages of eighteen and forty-five years, residing within his district, enrolled in pursuance of law, to the Commandant of his regiment, who shall, on or before the tenth day of November in each year, consolidate such returns from the various Company Commandants of his regiment, and transmit the same to the Inspector of the Brigade.

675. The Clerk of the Board of Supervisors of each county in which the Assessors shall make the enrolment, or any part thereof, will be required by the Adjutant-General, each year, carefully to ascertain, from the corrected assessment and military rolls, the whole number of persons enrolled as liable to perform military duty, including all members of volunteer companies, and all members of fire companies; and to report the same to the Adjutant-General on or before the first day of December in each year.

676. Commanding Officers may at any time require reports to be made to them, by subordinate officers, as to the state of their respective commands, the condition of their arms and equipments, and of all other facts necessary to give them information respecting the efficiency of the forces within their respective districts, or in relation to any other matter incident to the command.

Organisation.

ORGANIZATION.

677. No person who is at the time a member of a military company will be suffered to join any other company; and company officers are strictly prohibited from entering or continuing the name of any such person upon the company roll, or suffering such person to participate in any company meeting, or otherwise in any way to act as a member of such other company.

678. No person being a member of any military company shall be permitted to parade or drill with any other company, without the consent of his Captain; and if such other company shall belong to a different regiment, without permission, also, of his Colonel.

679. No officer shall accept or retain as a member of his company or regiment, brigade or division, or suffer to parade or drill with his company or regiment, brigade or division, any person who is not a citizen of the United States, and a resident of his military district, city or village, and who is not permitted by the provisions of law to join or be retained as such member.

680. Commandants of regiments and companies are required to strike from their rolls the names of all persons who have been received or retained as members of such regiments or companies contrary to the provisions of law and of these regulations; and they are strictly forbidden to grant to any such person a certificate of service, or of exemption or discharge from military service.

681. No certificate of service or of exemption for service shall be issued to any honorary member of any company, or to any person who does not do active duty as a regular member of the company; nor shall any commutation or payment of any sum of money by any such person, for any purpose whatever, be received in lieu of actual duty, except as allowed by law.

682. No person shall be considered a member of a company, who does not enlist for actual service therein, and whose name is not duly entered on the rolls as such, and who may not be duly returned, for absence from drills and parades required by law, to the proper court-martial or court of appeals.

683. No certificate of service or exemption, or discharge from military duty, shall be issued to any person for or by reason of service in any office or station not created by law, and all officers are prohibited from issuing such certificates.

684. No person shall be appointed or elected to any office not created by law, in the military forces of the state.

685. Transfers of men from one company to another in the same regiment can only be made, by the Commander of the regiment, upon the written consents of the Commandants of both companies.

686. Discharges of non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates from a regiment, can only be made by the Colonel or permanent Commander in accordance with forms to be transmitted from the Adjutant-General's Department.

687. Transfers of companies and regiments are made only by order of the Commander-in-Chief. Such transfers will carry with them all commissioned officers as well as non-commissioned officers and men; but where the transfer is from one regiment to another, new commissions in the regiment to which the transfer is made will be issued to all commissioned officers with the same rank which they held in the regiment from which they were transferred.

688. Any person holding a military office, who shall accept any other military office to which he shall be legally appointed or elected, shall be deemed to have vacated the office held by him at the time of such acceptance.

Elections.

ARTICLE XXIX.

ELECTIONS.

689. No election for officers shall be held on Sunday, nor on days appointed by law for any general, state or town election, nor on days appointed for company or regimental drills or parades.

690. Arms shall not be worn at elections for officers.

691. All returns for commissions shall be made by the Commanding Officers of divisions or brigades to the Adjutant-General; and in case of elections, such returns shall be made as soon as practicable after the expiration of ten days from the day of election, or the final decision of the appeal, where any has been made; and such returns shall be printed, or written at full length and in a plain and legible hand, specifying name and residence and cause of vacancy, and the date of election, and the letter of the company, if a company officer.

692. Commandants of brigades will not approve of the election to * military office of any person who is ineligible, whether the proceedings at such election have been appealed from or not. The election or appointment of an ineligible person is entirely void, and he is not entitled to be commissioned. An appeal lies to the Commander-in-Chief, from the approval or disapproval of the Brigadier-General, as to the eligibility of any person claiming to be elected.

693. To be eligible to election or appointment to office in the military forces of this state, the person must be a white male citizen of the United States, of the age of eighteen years or upwards, and a resident of the proper military district, city or village, agreeably to law. No person is eligible to military office who is under a sentence of disability or incapacity to hold office or command, or of suspension from command, in the Military forces of the state.

Appeals.

ARTICLE XXX.

APPEALS.

694. All appeals from election, or otherwise, shall be in writing, subscribed by the person appealing, and shall briefly set forth the grounds of appeal. On appeals to the Commander-in-Chief, statements of fact and arguments connected with the appeals will also be submitted in writing.

695. Every appeal to the Commander-in-Chief, from the election of a Brigadier-General, shall be made within twenty days after said election; and a copy thereof shall be served on the officer presiding at such election, and on the person declared elected, within ten days after such election.

696. Every appeal from the proceedings at any election, other than that of a Brigadier-General, shall be made to the Commanding Officer of the brigade, and a copy thereof served on the officer who presided at the election, and on the person declared elected, within ten days after the day of holding such election; and the Commanding Officer of brigade, on receiving such appeal, shall forthwith issue his orders, appointing the time and place for the hearing thereof, which time shall not extend beyond fifteen days after the issuing of such order; and within four days after the hearing the appeal shall determine the same.

697. The Commanding Officer of any brigade, after having heard and determined any appeal, shall immediately make the same known by an order to be by him issued, a copy of which said order shall be forwarded to the person appealing, to the officer who presided at the election, and to the person who was declared elected.

698. Every appeal to the Commander-in-Chief, from the decision of the Commanding Officer of a brigade, upon any appeal from an election, shall be made within twenty days after the decision appealed from is made known to the person appealing, and a copy of the appeal shall be served, by the person appealing, on the officer making the decision, and on the adverse party, within ten days after such order appealed from shall have been received by him.

699. Persons whose elections shall be appealed from shall be allowed ten days, after the final determination of the appeal, in which to signify their acceptance; and no new election shall be ordered, after the decision of any appeal by the Commanding Officer of brigade, until the time for an appeal to the Commander-in-Chief shall have expired, or until ten days after such appeal, if made, shall have been finally determined.

700. No appeal from the proceedings of any election for Commissioned Officers shall be allowed, unless the person making the same shall have been qualified to vote at such election, or shall have been voted for as a candidate thereat.

701. On appeals from the proceedings or sentence of any court martial, the appellant shall serve a copy of his appeal upon the Judge-Advocate, within five days after the making of such appeal. He shall, also, within the same time, serve a written notice of his appeal upon the President of the court, and upon the prosecutor, if there be one. In order that an appeal shall be operative, a copy and notice must be served as above provided. No appeal will be entertained at general Head-Quarters unless upon proof of the service herein required. The Judge-Advocate, if he deem it advisable, may, within ten days after the required service, reply to the appeal. (See par. 225)

ARTICLE XXXI

OFFICES VACATED BY REMOVAL.

702. Commissioned Officers will be considered as having removed out of the bounds of their commands and vacated their offices (unless otherwise provided by law), under the following circumstances, viz: Major-Generals and their Staffs, on removing beyond the bounds of their respective divisions; Brigadier-Generals and their Staffs, on removing beyond the bounds of their brigades; Field Officers and Regimental Staff, on removing beyond the bounds of their regiment;

Boards of Auditors.

Company Officers, on removing beyond the bounds of their company, except when the company is made up from the different districts, and then, upon removing from the regimental district. It is the duty of officers charged with ordering elections and making appointments to attend promptly to the filling of any vacancies occasioned by such removals. The removal here contemplated is a permanent change of residence. (See "Miscellaneous," at end of volume.)

ARTICLE XXXII.

BOARDS OF AUDITORS.

703. The Colonel of each regiment shall be the Secretary of the Board of Auditors of the regimental district, whereof Commandants of brigades are the Presidents, unless the Board shall designate some other member. In other regimental districts the Lieutenant-Colonel shall be the Secretary of the Board. It shall be the duty of such Secretary to enter at large, in the book to be kept by the Commandants of regiments for that purpose, the proceedings of each meeting of said Board, and note the action taken upon each account or claim presented thereat, and enter in such book, item by item, said account or claim, and the disposition made thereof. If the Secretary be absent from any such meeting, the officer next in rank present shall act as such Secretary.

704. Such book shall be open at all reasonable times for inspection by the Brigadier-General, Officers of the regiment, and the Inspecting Officers.

705. Timely notice of the meetings of the Board shall be given to all the members thereof.

706. Warrants issued by such Boards for the payment of money shall be signed, where Commandants of brigades are the Presidents of such Boards, by the majority of the members present at any meeting thereof at which the account was audited, and countersigned by the Commandant of the brigade, and in cases where the Colonels are Presidents of such Boards, by the President and Secretary thereof, and shall specify upon their face the nature of the account for the payment of which they are drawn, and be made payable to the order of the person to whom the money is due, or to some person authorized to receive the same. The Secretary of the Board shall keep and file the several accounts so passed.

707. No account shall be audited or allowed by any Board of Auditors unless the particular items are given, and it is duly verified by affidavit, in the form prescribed by law for accounts presented to Boards of Supervisors.

708. GENERAL OFFICERS.

724. To the General Officers entrusted with the command of divisions and brigades, the Commander-in-Chief will look, not only for the discipline of the uniformed forces therein, and their constant preparation for active service, but likewise, in case of insurrection, invasion, call in aid of the civil authorities, or other emergency, for the immediate and most advantageous disposal of every force placed under their control.

725. With a view to these objects, it is necessary that officers in these important commands should be well instructed in their duties, and that they should carefully select competent Staff Officers to aid them in the staff departments and upon the field.

General Officers.

726. General Officers in command will be expected to render themselves competent to manœuvre their commands in the evolutions of the Line, and to instruct their officers in the duties of their stations and the tactics of the arm to which they belong. They will also be expected to understand the details of duty in camp and on marches, and the method of handling troops in the field, so as to develop the highest efficiency of the various arms.

727. As part of their duty, they will make themselves acquainted with the force and range of artillery and small arms, the principles applicable to the construction of field fortifications and defensive works, the composition and duties of guards, outposts, pickets and light troops, and the quantity of military stores required for the use of the troops when on duty.

728. Officers in command of division and brigade districts will also keep themselves well informed of the number and description of the uniformed forces of the militia in their respective districts, so as to be able to afford to the Commander-in-Chief promptly, at any time, a correct statement of the strength, discipline, equipment and preparation for immediate service, of any corps in their command.

729. General Officers, in command of districts on the frontiers and sea coast, will also obtain an accurate military knowledge of the features of the country in their respective districts; of its means of defence and assailable points; of all fortified places therein, and positions which may be advantageously fortified or strengthened; and of every particular which may increase the power of acting against an enemy.

730. Brigadier-Generals, on disbanding any company in their respective brigades, will report the fact to the Adjutant-General's office, specifying in such report the letter of the company and the number of the regiment, and the names of the officers of such company.

731. Commandants of brigades, before they approve of the organization of companies, will cause them to be inspected and mustered by the Brigade Inspector of the brigade, or other officer to be designated by the Brigadier-General. The muster roll will show the age, residence and nativity of each volunteer, and whether he is a citizen or belongs to any other military organization. Such muster roll will be appended to the application for organization, and transmitted to the Adjutant-General.

732. General Officers in command will transmit to the Adjutant-General copies of all general orders, issued by them respectively, within five days after such issue. (See paragraph 474.)

733. Notice of all encampments for instruction and annual parades, by brigade or regiment, of the uniformed military forces of the state, shall be given by the officer ordering the same to the Commandant of the division, at least fifteen days prior to such encampment or parade.

ARTICLE XXXVI.

GENERAL STAFF.

734. The General Staff comprises all the officers concerned in regulating the details of the service and furnishing the forces with the means necessary for their subsistence, comfort, mobility and action. These officers act in the name of the Commanders under whom they are placed, or perform their functions according to the rules and regulations for the government of their respective departments.

735. The General Staff is :

1. The Adjutant-General's Department.
2. The Inspector-General.
3. The Commissary-General's Department.
4. The Department of Engineers.
5. The Judge-Advocate's Department.
6. The Medical Department.
7. The Quartermaster's Department.
8. The Pay Department.

Theory of the Staff—Summary of its Duties.

THEORY OF THE STAFF—SUMMARY OF ITS DUTIES.

736. The General Staff may be considered the central point of military administration.

737. It is the source whence proceed all general orders for the forces, the orders of detail, of instruction, of movement; and whence issue the general regulations for the service.

738. The source likewise of all general measures relative to the construction of fortifications.

739. For providing and distributing all the various articles under the denomination of ordnance, ordnance stores, small arms and military equipments.

740. For providing medical supplies.

741. For the supply of quarters, of fuel, and the transportation required for the forces; and finally

742. For all supplies requisite for the use of the military service and the land defence.

743. The officers of the General Staff accordingly embrace that class of commissioned officers who are appointed to perform such duties pursuant to the laws and regulations governing the military service, and devolving on each respectively according to their rank and the nature of their appointments.

744. Staff Officers, as such, are the organs through which their respective Commanders or Chiefs communicate orders and instructions, either verbally or in writing; and a Staff Officer will add "by order of," or "by command of," such a one, or premise "I am commanded or instructed by," &c. These forms may be dispensed with if the person to whom the order is addressed be junior to the Staff Officer, and always in mere matters of course, as on parades. This paragraph is applicable to Chiefs of Staffs and to their assistants, also to Aids-de-Camp and Adjutants. The officers of the administrative or disbursing departments of the Staff, as such, are not contemplated by it.

745. The duties of a Chief of Staff, including always his assistants, whatever may be the corps to which he is attached, are active and sedentary.

746. Active duties consist principally in establishing camps, visiting guards and posts, inspecting troops, inspecting guards and detachments, forming parades and lines of battle, the conduct or control of deserters and prisoners (from the enemy), making reconnoissances, and in general the performance of such other active duties as may be specially assigned.

747. Sedentary duties, or the business of the bureau, as publishing orders in writing, making up written instructions and the transmission of them, reception of reports and returns, disposing of them, forming tables showing the state and position of the corps or its several parts, regulating details of service, corresponding with the corps, detachments, or individual officers serving under the orders of the same Commander, corresponding with the administrative or disbursing departments relative to the wants of the troops, and finally, the methodical arrangement and care of the records and papers of his office.

748. A Staff Officer, charged with a particular expedition or reconnoissance, accompanied by a detachment, the Commandant of which may or may not be his superior, will, without assuming the command, have a right to require that the latter should make all proper dispositions of the detachment to protect him in his operations; and the Commandant of the detachment shall refer to the Staff Officer for the route of march and the periods of halting and of marching, no matter which of them be the superior.

749. All Staff Officers draw their swords and salute at review, both when the battalion is brought to a present, and when passing the Reviewing Officer.

Theory of the Staff—Summary of its Duties.

750. Staff Officers, when not otherwise engaged in the duties of their departments, will attend dress parade and take post and salute as at review with the exception of the Adjutant whose post is already assigned.

751. In columns of manœuvre and en route, the Adjutant is the only officer of the regimental staff, and the officers acting as Assistant Adjutants-General, and the Aides-de-Camp, are the only officers of the division and brigade staffs who draw their swords.

752. With the exception of the Adjutant, whose place is prescribed, the Staff Officers of a division, brigade or regiment in column, en route, are near their respective Commanders, unless their duties should require their attendance elsewhere; Medical officers may be required with the sick or their supplies; Officers of Engineers with their corps, and of the Quartermaster's department with their trains. The senior Staff Officers in each department should be habitually with the Commander of a column en route, or of manœuvre.

753. In a column of manœuvre for instruction, Staff Officers, when required, will act as aids and assistants in the manœuvres; and when not so required, will accompany their respective Commanders, or take such other positions as may be assigned them.

754. Staff Officers, on parades in the streets of a city or town and other occasions of ceremony, where no other position is assigned to them, will take post according to the order of precedence of their departments; division and brigade staffs, in one or more ranks, two paces in rear of their Generals; the aids de-camp on the left of the front rank; regimental staffs (with the exception of the Adjutant and Engineer), in the rear of the regiment, in one rank, the chaplain on the left; the Engineer officer will be in charge of his corps.

755. The Staff Officers of divisions, brigades and regiments, although arranged in departments and liable to be detached for duty in such departments, are considered as officers of their respective divisions, brigades and regiments. Regimental Staff Officers are therefore entitled to vote at elections for field officers of regiments.

Adjutant-General's Department — Adjutant-General.

THE ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT.

1. Adjutant-General.

756. The Adjutant-General is the Chief of the Staff of the Commander-in-Chief.

757. He accompanies the Commander-in-Chief in all his reviews and inspections. Everything relating to the effective state of the troops, to formation, instruction and discipline, and to ordinary or extraordinary and official returns relative to these different matters, falls within the department over which the Adjutant-General presides.

758. He is the regular channel through which Commanders of corps and Chiefs of departments communicate with the Commander-in-Chief; and all orders, special instructions and general regulations, issued by the Commander-in-Chief relative to the organization, discipline or instruction of the militia, are prepared, addressed to the Commanders of corps, and published by the Adjutant-General conformably to the direction of the Commander-in-Chief.

759. It is the duty of the Adjutant-General, on or before the fifteenth day of January in each year, to report in writing, to the Commander-in-Chief, the state of the militia, as to its strength in officers, non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates; the number of companies, regiments, brigades and divisions of the same, and the total strength of each; and the strength of each arm, as organized; and also so as to show whether each corps is doing duty in the arm in which it is organized. He will report, also, the number, character and quality of the arms, accoutrements and other property of the state in the possession of the militia, describing the same under the head of the respective division, brigade, regiment and company.

760. He shall also report, in connection therewith, the amount of commutation tax and fines collected in each regimental district of the state, and how the same has been expended, as shall appear from the returns of the Regimental Boards of Auditors and from the reports of the Treasurers of the various counties of the state; and may make, generally, such recommendations and suggestions as he may deem calculated to enure to the benefit of the service.

761. It is the duty of the Adjutant-General, under the laws of the United States, to make a return of the militia, uniformed and ununiformed, and of their arms and equipments, to the President of the United States on or before the first Monday of January in each year.

762. The Adjutant-General is charged with the duty of prescribing the annual course of military instruction for the military forces of the state, and supervising the execution of the same. He will scrutinize all the reports and returns required to be made to him in respect thereto, and make a statement of all delinquent officers to the Commander-in-Chief. Should he deem it desirable, he will give his personal attendance and services at parades and encampments, to advance the improvement of the troops in tactics and discipline, on which occasions he will act as principal Instructor.

763. To the Adjutant-General will be sent, and in his office will be deposited, all bonds for the issue of arms, munitions of war or other property of the state; all reports and returns of heads of Staff departments and Inspecting Officers; all returns of elections and appointments to office; the proceedings of all Courts of Inquiry, Courts Martial and Military Boards; applications for the organization of companies; applications and communications from officers, and all other writings and papers which are required to be transmitted to the Commander-in-Chief, or to be returned to or preserved at general head-quarters.

764. The Adjutant-General will prepare and distribute all the proper blanks to be used by officers of the Line or in his own department.

765. It is the duty of the Adjutant-General to prepare and transmit to the various Commissioned Officers of the service their proper commissions, and in a book, which shall be the roster of the militia, to register the same, and to note therein, as they occur, all changes by promotions, resignations, removals, cashiering and deaths; by consolidations and disbanding of subdivisions of the forces, or from any other cause.

Adjutant-General's Department — Adjutant-General.

766. The Adjutant-General, in a book to be provided for that purpose, shall preserve in his department a record of all the ordnance, arms, accoutrements and munitions of war issued under the orders of the Commander-in-Chief to the troops, specifying in each case the number and date of the order of issue, the number and character of the arms, &c., issued, the name of the officer or person to whom issued, the letter of the company, the number of the regiment, brigade or division for which issued, the number, date and penalty of the bond for issue, and the name and title of the bondsmen.

767. The Adjutant-General, before filing any bond for the issue of arms, &c., will require, in every instance, that there be a proper surety or sureties thereto, and that the approval thereof by the General of the Brigade in which the arms, &c., are required, or by the Commissary-General, is endorsed thereon, and that such surety or sureties have properly justified.

768. The Adjutant-General shall also, in a book to be kept in his department, preserve a record of all the ordnance, arms, accoutrements, munitions of war and other military property belonging to the state in the various arsenals of the state, and shall keep the same current by corrections from the monthly returns of the Commissary-General.

769. The Adjutant-General will, from time to time, as the occasion arises, issue the proper orders for the return of ordnance, arms or military stores, or for the prosecution of bonds given as security for the same, where it shall appear from the records in his office that such property is liable to injury or loss, or is not properly secured, or where it is no longer required for the purpose for which it was issued.

770. Upon the reception, by the Adjutant-General, of the receipt provided for in § 22 of these Regulations, he shall forthwith note the same upon the bond given for the safe keeping of the property surrendered under said section, and direct the successor receiving said property to file his bond, with sufficient sureties, approved as provided by law, in the office of the Adjutant-General within twenty days thereafter.

Inspectors of Divisions, Brigades, and Adjutants of Regiments.

2. Inspectors of Divisions, Brigades and Adjutants of Regiments.

771. The Division and Brigade Inspectors are the chiefs of the Division and Brigade Staffs, and they act as Assistant Adjutant-Generals of the respective divisions and brigades in which they serve. As such, they form the division or brigade line; transcribe, issue and serve orders, and keep the order-books and other necessary books, when required; inspect and form guards; prepare and keep the necessary rosters, and regulate the duties depending upon the roster, under the direction of their respective Generals. In manoeuvres, they are specially charged with the duty of posting the markers, and marking the alignments in evolutions of the Line, and in this duty they will be assisted by the other officers of the Staff. They will also perform such other duties as devolve upon Assistant Adjutant-Generals, according to military usage.

772. Division and Brigade Inspectors make such inspections and inspection returns as are provided for by law or required by regulation, or as may be ordered, from time to time, by the Commander-in-Chief, the Commandants of the divisions or brigades to which they are attached, or the Adjutant-General or Inspector-General.

773. As the duty is devolved on the Adjutant-General, by the laws of the United States, to make a return of the Militia, with their arms, accoutrements and ammunition, to the President of the United States, on or before the 1st Monday of January in each year, the several Brigade Inspectors will be prompt in making full returns at the earliest practicable day, on or before the first day of December in each year, to enable him to comply with the provisions of said laws.

774. In case of the absence of the proper Inspector of the Brigade (or other Brigade Inspector specially assigned), from an encampment or annual parade for inspection, the Division Inspector, if present, shall act as Inspector of the Brigade, and if he be not present, it shall be the duty of the Commanding Officer to designate some officer to perform the duties of Brigade Inspector.

Inspections — Generally.

775. The Adjutants of regiments are chiefs of the Regimental Staffs, and perform within their regiments the duties required of them, by the books of tactics and these regulations, in all parades and manœuvres, and in the forming of guards, &c. They will also attend to such duties in the regiment as are imposed upon officers of the Adjutant-General's department attached to divisions and brigades; and do such other service as may be ordered by the Commandant of the regiment, or a superior officer in the department, consistent with the nature of the office.

INSPECTIONS — GENERALLY.

776. It is through the Inspecting Officers that the Commander-in-Chief is to be made acquainted with the actual state and condition of the forces, and, more especially, the character and proficiency of the officers.

777. It being an object of the highest importance to the efficiency of the service that the Inspecting Officer should make a complete and thorough examination of the uniform, arms, equipments, numbers and discipline of the forces, Commanding Officers will see that he has every facility for such examination afforded to him.

778. The Inspecting Officer should have an intimate acquaintance with the regulations and rules of the service, especially those relating to his own functions; and an accurate and familiar knowledge of tactics. He should conduct himself with firmness, discretion and independence; but while rigidly scrutinizing all matters directed to be inspected, it is indispensable also that he have a sensitive regard to the rights of others. He will not, therefore, assume to himself, a command of the forces inspected, or censure any officer or soldier upon the field; but will make a fearless, frank and impartial report of the results of the inspection to the officer by whom it was ordered, or to whom returns are required to be made.

It is obvious, from the nature of the duties required of the Inspecting Officer, that the office is one of peculiar delicacy and responsibility; and Officers in command, and Inspecting Officers, are expected to manifest those qualities of courtesy and forbearance which should always characterize the officer and gentleman.

ARTICLE XXXVIII.

OF THE INSPECTOR-GENERAL.

779. It shall be the duty of the Inspector-General to visit, at least once in every two years, each regimental district in the state. He shall critically inspect, as often as he may deem necessary, every branch connected with the military service, including armories, arsenals and military store-houses; and he shall also attend to the organization of the militia, and report to general head-quarters the improvement in discipline and tactical instruction of the uniformed forces.

780. Commandants of regiments and companies shall furnish to the Inspector-General, such information as he may require as to the number and kind of arms, equipments and military property of the state issued to their respective regiments and companies; and, at the conclusion of the inspection of any armory, arsenal or military store-house, if he find the property which ought to be kept therein, or any part of it, missing, injured, unfit for use or deficient in any respect, he shall forthwith report the facts in respect thereto to the Commander-in-Chief.

781. It shall be his duty, after the first day of November in each year, to inspect the tents and camp equipage belonging to the state, and report any deficiency therein, to the Commander-in-Chief, on or before the first day of January thereafter.

782. In his annual report he shall state what General and Field Officers have been in command of parades or encampments, what changes of General or Field Officers have been made, and what degree of improvement has been attained by both officers and men, and whether the general regulations have been observed, together with such suggestions as he may see fit to make.

783. To the Inspector-General will be referred, by order of the Commander-in-Chief, such matters as require an examination at a distance from the general head-quarters, for the information of the Commander-in-Chief; and it will be the duty of the Inspector-General, upon such reference, to report upon the qualifications of persons named to the Commander-in-Chief, for appointment to military office, and also upon the possession of the necessary requisites by the applicants for the organization of companies.

784. The Division and Brigade Inspectors, whenever required by the Inspector-General, shall report to him the condition of their respective divisions or brigades.

785. To ascertain whether the troops have been properly instructed in the exercises and evolutions of the field, the Inspector-General will cause them to be exercised in the manœuvres required to be practiced during the year, as prescribed by regulations; and he will give his instructions, as to the exercises, to the Commanding Officer, who will issue all necessary orders and directions to the troops for their execution.

786. The Inspector-General shall, at least once in every two years, examine the book of proceedings of the Board of Auditors of each regiment, and the accounts filed with the Secretary of such Board during the two years previous, or since the last examination made by the Inspector-General; and he shall carefully compare the book of proceedings with the accounts. He shall also examine the warrants drawn by the Board of Auditors, in the possession of the County Treasurer; and he shall specially report to the Commander-in-Chief whether the proceedings of the Board of Auditors are regularly and properly entered; and whether the warrants are in due form; and whether any military funds have been drawn from the county treasury for improper purposes, or by persons not entitled thereto; and the amount paid into the county treasury for commutations and fines during the two years previous, or since the last preceding report of the Inspector-General.

The Commissary-General.

ARTICLE XXXIX.

788. He is specially charged with the preservation, issue and transportation of the arms, equipments and other military property belonging to this state.

789. It is his duty, by authority of the Commander-in-Chief, to issue arms, equipments, camp equipage and ammunition, from the several arsenals and armories under his charge, and to make monthly reports, of all issues made by him, to the general head-quarters.

790. The Commissary-General shall take receipts for arms, equipments and property issued by him; and officers to whom the same shall be delivered are enjoined to execute and promptly transmit the proper receipts to the Commissary-General.

791. The Commissary-General will transmit to the Commander-in-Chief duplicates of his statements of accounts, as audited from time to time by the Comptroller of the state, within ten days after they shall have been thus audited. He shall also transmit to the Commander-in-Chief statements of the sales of old arms and military stores, and of the sums received therefor, within ten days after any such sales.

792. It is also his duty, when ordered by the Commander-in-Chief, to cause prosecutions to be instituted upon bonds given for arms or other military property, whenever there shall be a refusal or neglect to obey the order for the return of the same; and he shall report all prosecutions, commenced by him upon any such bond, to the Commander-in-Chief.

793. He may also employ counsel or attorneys to conduct such prosecutions, in the name of the people of this state, and may compromise the claim upon such bonds, or discontinue the prosecution thereof, with the consent of the Commander-in-Chief.

The Commissary-General.

794. He shall also take the proper measures to recover the possession or the value of arms, or other military property of this state, in the hands of any person or persons who shall not have given bonds for the same.

795. No arms or equipments shall be issued to any officer, person or body of men, not belonging to the uniformed and organized militia of this state, unless,

1. In cases of invasion or insurrection, or imminent danger thereof.

2. To arm a guard for the protection of a jail or prison, or to arrest, detain or have in safe keeping a prisoner or prisoners, or to enforce the judgment or decree of a court.

796. All applications from others than the organized militia, made in pursuance of any law, for arms or military equipage, shall be made to the Commander-in-Chief, and shall specify the particular exigency or cause of such application, and the purpose for which, and the person for whom, the same are required; and such application shall be verified on oath of the person making the same.

797. Arms and equipage issued or loaned to any person or persons, other than the uniformed and organized militia, shall be returned, to the arsenal or place from whence they were issued, within ninety days from such issue, unless otherwise specially ordered by the Commander-in-Chief, for additional periods of ninety days each.

798. The Commissary-General shall keep a correct roster of all officers of the Quartermaster's department, attached to divisions, brigades and regiments, and may correspond with them and require the performance by them of such duties connected with his office, within the commands to which they are attached, as are imposed by these regulations.

brigades, regiments and uniformed companies of the militia of this state, and in the same shall note the quantity and kind of arms and equipments issued to each officer, when they were issued, and where they are deposited or kept; and the Commandants of brigades shall, from time to time, as changes shall take place in the command of regiments and companies in their brigades, report the same to the Commissary-General, with the name, rank and residence of the person who shall be elected or appointed to fill any vacancy, as Commandant of a regiment or company.

800. If any change in command shall take place in any regiment or company furnished with arms or equipments belonging to this state, the Commissary-General shall immediately require a renewal of the bond given therefor; and, unless a new bond shall be given, approved according to law, for such arms or equipments, within ninety days thereafter, he shall order the return thereof forthwith to such arsenal or officer as he may designate. But this paragraph shall not apply to cases where a city or incorporated village of this state shall have become surety for such arms or equipments.

801. The Commissary-General shall also, in like manner, require bonds given for arms or equipments to be renewed whenever the surety thereto shall die or become insolvent, or remove out of the state, and shall forthwith give notice to the Commander-in-Chief of the making of such requirement.

802. All commissioned officers to whom any arms or military property of this state shall be issued, or who shall come into command of any regiment or company to which the same may have been issued, or otherwise in the possession thereof, shall make reports to the Commissary-General, in respect thereto, at such times and in such manner as he shall require.

803. The officers to whom tents and camp equipage shall be issued for any encampment, or for other special purpose, shall, unless otherwise ordered, at the close of the encampment or special service for which they were issued, deliver the same to the officer and at the place designated by the Commissary-General; and unless otherwise specially ordered, such tents and camp equipage shall be returned to the Commissary-General forthwith, at the close of such encampment.

804. In case of invasion or insurrection, or whenever the military forces are called to aid the civil authority, the Commissary-General is authorized to issue, upon the requisition of the Commandant of the military forces on duty, such arms, equipments and ammunition as may be required by such Commandant for the use of the military forces so on duty during such emergency. The Commissary-General will take a receipt for the property of the state so issued, and immediately report such issue to the Commander-in-Chief; and he will require the arms and equipments so issued, and such of the ammunition issued as shall not have been required for use by the troops, to be returned to him immediately upon the ceasing of the exigency upon which they were issued. It will be the duty of the Commandant of the troops to see that such return is promptly and accurately made.

805. The Commissary-General is also authorized to issue ammunition for the practice of the troops under these limitations:

1. To the Artillery, annually, for practice, three kegs of gun-powder and twenty balls for each gun, for batteries of four pieces or less; and two kegs of powder and fifteen balls for every gun exceeding four, in batteries of more than four guns. Where cartridges are made up for Artillery, the cost of making will be deducted—the cartridges furnished will be about forty for six pounder guns. The Commandants of companies will make the requisitions upon the Commissary-General for ammunition for the Artillery.

2. To the Infantry and Riflemen, annually, for practice, twenty rounds of blank cartridge, or ten rounds of ball cartridge, or ten of blank and five of ball, for each man. The requisitions for ammunition for the Infantry and Rifles will be made by the Commandants of regiments upon the Commissary-General, and will specify the number of men, duly uniformed and equipped, belonging to and doing duty in such regiment.

Engineers' Department.

3. If more ammunition is required for use or practice by the troops than is above authorized to be issued by the Commissary-General, application must be made to the Commander-in-Chief.

806. The Commissary-General will see that no issue or loan of arms, equipments, ammunition or other military property of the state, is made from any arsenal, armory or storehouse in his charge, except as provided in the two preceding sections, without the special order of the Commander-in-Chief.

807. To a section of light artillery, when duly organized and uniformed, will be issued by order of the Commander-in-Chief, two pieces of artillery, with the other proper arms and equipments, upon the giving of the required security.

ARTICLE XL.

DEPARTMENT OF ENGINEERS.

808. This department consists of the Engineer-in-Chief, Division Engineers, Brigade Engineers, Regimental Engineers, and one Sergeant and nine Sappers and Miners to each regiment.

809. The duties of this department comprise reconnoitering and surveying for military purposes; the planning, laying out and superintending works for attack and defence of places; for the passage of rivers; for the movements and operations of armies in the field; the laying out of camp grounds; the collection, arrangement and preservation of all reports, memoirs, plans and drawings relating to these specific duties, or any other duties which may be assigned to them.

810. It is recommended that all appointments of Division, Brigade or Regimental Engineers be made from those only who are practical Engineers or otherwise competent to perform all the duties which may be imposed upon or expected of them.

811. The Engineer intrusted with the laying out of any camp or the construction of any works, where the same is practicable, shall make a plan or diagram thereof, embracing a topographical view of the surrounding country, which plan or diagram shall be delivered to the Commanding Officer, if of a camp, previous to such encampment, or otherwise as soon as it can be completed; and shall, within thirty days thereafter, make a copy of such plan or diagram, with explanatory notes, and forward the same to the Engineer-in-Chief, at his place of residence.

812. The Sappers and Miners, attached to the command in which the service is required, shall be under the direction of the senior Engineer in charge, subject, however, to the orders of the Commanding Officer.

813. Officers and men in the Engineer department may be required to do duty previous and preparatory to encampments for discipline and instruction; and also to attend meetings for instruction and improvement, in the various duties of their department; as well as at the parades, encampments and drills provided by law, when so ordered by the Commandant of the brigade or force to which they are attached, or the Officer of Engineers of the brigade or regiment to which they belong. These duties are in addition to other duties which may be required in active service.

814. The superior Officer of Engineers, serving with an army, corps, division, brigade or smaller body, will receive his orders from the Commandant thereof, and will communicate to him any orders he may receive from a superior officer in his own department. If the Engineer Officer be acting under orders from his department, issued by authority of a Commanding Officer, on duty, superior in rank to that of the Commandant of the force with which such Engineer is serving, it will be the duty of such Commandant to make such dispositions of his forces, to aid the Engineer Officer in the performance of the duty required of him, as may be necessary.

815. An Officer of Engineers, directed to superintend any works to be constructed by troops, will point out what is to be done and how it is to be done, and will maintain such a supervision as will enable him to see that it is done correctly. It will be the duty of the officer having charge of the detachment to execute the work accordingly. The command of the troops will be with the Officer of the Line, unless otherwise specially ordered, according to the nature of the case. The detail of troops, for works to be carried on under the superintendence of Officers of Engineers, will be furnished on the requisition of the senior Engineer, addressed to the Officer in command of the troops. The requisition will specify the number of men required for labor, the time and place of assembling for service, and the duration of such service.

816. When connected with a force in the field, Engineers engaged in surveys and reconnoissances will report their operations therein, and also the execution of all other duties, to their immediate superior of the department at the head-quarters of the force, and such superior will report directly to the Commanding officer.

817. The Chief of the Corps of Engineers, or any superior officer of said corps, may require from a junior officer thereof reports of any particular service upon which such junior may be or may have been engaged.

818. Orders for the Engineers may be transmitted from general head-quarters, by the Chief of the department, to any subordinate officer therein, by direction of the Commander-in-Chief.

819. The Officers and men of the Engineer Corps require, for the proper discharge of their duties, a careful course of instruction in the general principles of engineering, as applied to the military service, in the construction of fortified places, field works, bridges and roads; the attack and defence of military posts, towns, villages, &c.; and also, as a special duty required of them in peace, the proper and practical laying out of camps of instruction and discipline, including any particular duties, connected therewith, that may be required of them. The superior Officer of Engineers, in each brigade and regiment, will be responsible for the instruction of his corps and its efficiency.

The Judge-Advocate.

820. The men of the Engineer Corps should be selected with a reference to their intelligence, activity and skill in the arts connected with the duties of the corps.

821. The tools and implements of each regimental corps of Sappers and Miners will be, four axes, two saws and two pickaxes. The Commandants of regiments will see that provision is made for the furnishing of the Engineer Corps with these tools and implements, and that they are kept in a safe place, at all times ready for immediate use.

822. The Engineer-in-Chief, on or before the 15th day of December, in each year, shall report to the Commander-in-Chief the operations of his department for the preceding year, together with such suggestions relative to its affairs as he may deem expedient; to which he shall append all the maps, plans, diagrams, profiles, projections, or other sketches, which may have been forwarded to him, by the various officers of his department, during the year. Should he vacate his office by resignation, or otherwise, previous to his annual report, he will deliver all maps, plans, sketches, diagrams, &c., as shall then be on file in his department, together with all books, papers and other property pertaining to such office, and a record of all the official transactions of his department, to his successor, if he shall have been appointed, who is required to make such annual report. If no successor shall have been appointed, then he shall forward the same to the Adjutant-General's department.

830. As the Law Officer of the court, he must on no account intimate his opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused.

831. He may point out in what manner the evidence applies to the facts in issue ; but this should be done in an address delivered in open court, so that the accused may have an opportunity to reply.

All the evidence must be recorded as given ; and any incidental questions raised, and the decision of the court thereon, must appear, and the finding and sentence of the court must also be recorded.

835. After the adjournment of a court-martial, at the close of the business of each day, and before the next meeting of the court, the Judge-Advocate shall make a fair copy of the proceedings, which he shall continue thus regularly to engross till the conclusion of the trial, when the whole shall be read over by him to the court, before the members proceed to deliberate and form their opinions.

836. The record, duly authenticated by the signature of the President and Judge-Advocate, he will transmit without delay to the Officer ordering the court.

The order appointing the court, or a certified copy thereof, must be attached to the bill, together with a receipt, or an order on the treasurer, signed by all the persons interested. Directions to whom the money is to be transmitted must in all cases be given. The bill will be inclosed by the Judge-Advocate to the Adjutant-General.

839. No charge being allowed for mileage or travel, the bills should embrace the time actually employed on duty, at the rate of two dollars for each day so employed.

840. Each Division and Brigade Judge-Advocate shall annually, on the first day of December in each year, make a report to the Judge-Advocate-General of all courts martial (other than Regimental and Brigade Courts for the trial of delinquencies, &c.) ordered by the Commandants of their respective districts, the names of the members composing the same, the names of the persons accused, the nature of the charges preferred against them, and the result of the trial.

841. The Judge-Advocate-General shall, on the fifteenth day of December in each year, make his annual report to the Commander-in-Chief, through the Adjutant-General's department, of all courts martial ordered and held within the state, which may have been reported to him, or at which he shall have acted as Judge-Advocate, stating by whom such military courts were ordered, when and where held, the names of the person or persons accused, the nature of the charges preferred, and the result of the trial, accompanied with such suggestions and recommendations as to him may seem fit and proper in regard to the nature and character of the proceedings, and whether any, and (if any) what legislation or further regulations may be necessary to a full and fair administration of justice.

ARTICLE XLII.

THE MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

842. The health and lives of the officers and soldiers are too important to be committed to those unskilled in their profession. In the appointment or promotion, therefore, of any person in the Medical Staff, the appointing power will rigidly scan the pretensions of such person, taking into consideration his physical qualifications and moral habits, as well as his professional acquirements and education.

843. The Surgeon-General is charged with the administrative details of the Medical department, and general oversight and charge of all the officers belonging to it; and will issue the necessary instructions, from time to time, relating to their professional duties.

844. He may also require, from time to time, reports from Medical Directors, Surgeons of divisions, brigades and regiments, relative to the condition of the forces in service under their charge, with such remarks as may be necessary to explain the nature of the disease or injury claiming their attention, and the probable cause thereof, and the treatment adopted.

845. He will, as often as required, or as often as he shall deem necessary, make such report to the Commander-in-Chief as will explain the condition of the department under his charge, with suggestions of such improvements in practice and police, clothing, subsistence, &c., of the forces, as may seem to be required for the preservation of health, the comfort and recovery of the sick, and the good of the public service.

846. The senior Medical Officer, on duty with any corps in the field or any encampment or annual parade or other service, unless otherwise specially ordered by the Commandant of such forces, will be, ex officio, the Medical Director; and will have the general control of the Medical Officers, and the supervision of the hospitals under their charge.

847. The senior Medical Officer, when on duty as specified in the preceding section, will, with the approbation of the Commanding Officer, select a suitable site for the erection of a hospital or hospital tent; and upon him will devolve the responsibility for order, regularity and cleanliness, the diet and care of the patients, and the general conduct and economy of the whole establishment.

848. The Medical Director will inspect the hospitals under his charge, ascertain the manner in which each subordinate performs his duty, see that the necessary supplies are provided for the sick, that they are of good quality and properly expended, and enforce the general rules and regulations given for the government and direction of the Surgeons and Assistant Surgeons.

849. Commanding Officers are enjoined to furnish such military assistance as may be necessary for the attainment of these objects; and all Commissioned Officers, and others, placed in the hospital, are commanded to yield the most implicit obedience to the instructions they may receive from the Medical Director, and to enforce in every instance the observance of the hospital regulations.

850. The Surgeons of regiments will obey the instructions of the Medical Director, be responsible for the order and neatness of the hospital, for the manner in which the Assistant Surgeon and Attendants perform their respective duties, and for the comfort and convenience of those sick in quarters.

851. They will receive written morning reports, of any who are sick, from the Orderly Sergeant of each company, who will see that those reported present themselves at the place appointed by the Surgeon, and be present himself at their examination.

852. They will immediately report all cases of feigned sickness to the Commanding Officers of companies, prescribe for those who are able to remain in quarters, and send those whose cases may require other accommodations where the same may be obtained.

853. They will at all times be within call in case of accident, and have the necessary medicines, instruments and dressings ready at hand to attend to the sick and wounded.

854. The Assistant Surgeons will accompany the Surgeon in his morning visits, make out the proper entry in a prescription book, attend to the preparation and distribution of the medicine, see that the diary of the weather and other noticeable incidents be properly kept, assist in making out the proper reports and returns, see that the nurses are attentive to the sick and regularly administer the medicine prescribed, and that all regulations are strictly attended to.

855. When medical or surgical aid may be required at any encampment, annual parade, or upon other service, and no competent Surgeon or Assistant Surgeon of the military forces is on duty, or in case the Commanding Officer deem it necessary, he may appoint any physician to discharge such duties as are required of a Surgeon or Medical Director.

856. Whenever cases arise, making it advisable, in the opinion of the Commanding Officer, that any sick or wounded should be removed to safer or more comfortable quarters, he shall direct such removal.

857. Surgeons and Assistant Surgeons, and Physicians acting as such, will attend all Officers, Non-commissioned officers, Musicians, Privates and other persons who may be on duty or connected with the command in which the service is required.

858. No certificate of a private physician or surgeon, as to the sickness or inability of any Officer, Non-commissioned Officer, Musician or Private of any of the military forces in this state, shall excuse such person from the performance of military duty or exempt him from enrolment therefor; but the certificate of the commissioned Surgeon of the forces will be presumptive evidence of the facts stated therein.

ARTICLE XLIII.

QUARTERMASTER'S DEPARTMENT.

859. The objects of this department are, to insure an efficient system of supply for the troops, and to give facility and effect to the movements and operations of a force in service.

860. This department will have charge, at encampments, in the field and on marches, of all tents and camp equipage and baggage trains; of all laborers and persons serving in camp or with the trains; of the transportation of the troops and military stores, and the providing of quarters, forage, fuel, straw and stationery for service in camp, garrison and in the field.

861. The Quartermaster-General is the head of this department; but, for certain purposes herein prescribed, the officers of this department will act under the directions of the Commissary-General, and perform such duties, within the divisions, brigades and regiments with which they respectively serve, as he may be authorized to require of them.

862. Except when otherwise herein provided, officers of the Quartermaster's department will be subject to the orders of the Commandants upon whose staffs they respectively serve.

863. In all matters connected with the discharge of their duty, while serving with troops in camp or in the field, and preparatory thereto, and for instruction in their duties, Quartermaster's will obey the direction of the senior officer of the department present on duty, who will himself act under the orders of the Commanding Officer of the force or camp.

864. In the procuring, distribution and disposal of fuel, straw and forage for encampments for instruction (excepting encampments ordered by the Commander-in-Chief), the Regimental Quartermasters will act for their respective regiments, and under the directions of the Commandants thereof.

865. All expenses incurred by the Quartermaster's department, in the discharge of their duties at any encampment or annual parade required by law, not properly chargeable to the Commissary-General's department, shall be paid by the regiment, for whose benefit the same were incurred, out of the regimental funds, as part of the incidental expenses of such encampment or parade; and all moneys received by a Quartermaster, from the sale of any articles purchased with the regimental fund, not used at such parade or encampment, shall be paid by him forthwith to the proper county treasurer, to the credit of the regimental fund of the regiment for whose use such articles were purchased.

866. Regimental Quartermasters shall receive, distribute and safely keep all tents and camp equipage furnished to their respective regiments for encampment, subject to the control and responsibility of the officer to whom the same were issued; and shall cause the same to be promptly returned to the place designated by the Commissary-General, and pursuant to his order. Brigade and Division Quartermasters shall perform the like duties at brigade and division encampments.

867. Quartermasters will carefully examine all tents and camp equipage which they may so receive, before using the same, and supply any deficiency in tent poles, pins or cords required for the use thereof, and may also cause any necessary repairs to be made to such tents; and the charges proper therefor shall be paid by the Commissary-General, upon the certificate of the Commanding Officer of the camp or force. All articles supplied pursuant to this paragraph shall belong to the state, and shall be returned to the Commissary-General with the camp equipage received from him.

868. The officers of the Quartermaster's department, serving on regimental staffs, will annually inspect the regimental and company armories in the regimental district, and the arms and equipments issued to the regiment or any company therein ; and, on or before the first day of November in each year, make, subscribe and forward to the Commissary-General a report of the condition and quantity of such arms and equipments, stating the place or places where the same are kept, and whether such place or places are proper and safe armories ; the name and residence of the armorer or armorers ; the name of the officer to whom such arms or equipments were issued, and whether he is still in command, and, if not, the name, rank and residence of his successor ; and particularly whether any of the arms or equipments originally issued by the Commissary-General are missing or injured, and, if so, the description and quantity of the property so missing or injured ; and also whether there are any arms or other military property of the state, in his regimental district, which are in the possession of any person or body other than the regularly organized Militia belonging to such regiment.

869. In case of a vacancy in the office, or disability of the Quartermaster of any regiment, the Commandant of the regiment shall designate some competent officer to perform the duty above required of the Regimental Quartermaster ; and such Commandant shall be responsible for its performance.

870. The Third Sergeant of each company, or other Sergeant designated by the Commandant of the company, shall be charged with the duties of a Sub-Quartermaster Sergeant, in camps for instruction and for other service, when required by the Commanding Officer, and the Sub-Quartermaster Sergeant in each company shall take care of the baggage of such company, and of the transportation and proper distribution thereof, subject to the orders of the Quartermaster of the regiment.

871. In camps for instruction, and upon other service when required, the Quartermaster Sergeant of the regiment, or other non-commissioned officer acting as such, shall have the immediate control over the Sub-Quartermaster Sergeants, and the particular care and custody of the baggage and baggage trains of the regiment, subject to the direction of the Quartermaster or acting Quartermaster of the regiment. He will be responsible for the distribution of the baggage among the respective companies.

872. The Quartermaster Sergeant and Sub-Quartermaster Sergeants shall be instructed by the Quartermaster in their respective duties, and may be required to attend meetings for that purpose, and may be put on duty previously and preparatory to a parade or encampment, or other service of troops, and held to duty after such parade, encampment or other service is terminated, for the discharge of the duties cast upon them, as connected with the department.

ARTICLE XLIV.

PAYMASTER'S DEPARTMENT.

873. When the militia are called into service in time of war, the officers of the pay department, on duty with the troops, shall observe the regulations for the government of the pay department of the United States army.

874. Officers of the pay department, at encampments, parades or while the troops are on special service, may be required by the Commanding officers of the force with which they serve to perform duty in the Quartermaster's department, and they may also be charged with providing and distributing provisions and other duties of commissaries of subsistence in the United States army, and may be required to act as the fiscal agents of the corps in which they serve.

ARTICLE XLV.

SPECIAL SERVICES.

875. The military forces of the state may be required to aid the civil authorities, "in case of breach of the peace, tumult, riot, or resistance to process of this state, or apprehension of imminent danger of the same." The following regulations are designed to guide Commanding Officers in the performance of the delicate and highly responsible duties devolving upon them at such times; and also to determine and define their powers while so acting, as far as the Commander-in-Chief is authorized so to do.

Special Services.

876. The military officers, while acting in aid of the civil authorities, will themselves retain the command of the troops, and enforce the most exact subordination and discipline. They will impress upon their commands the necessity of coolness and self possession, and enjoin, absolutely, the rule that no man shall fire without orders from his proper military superior.

877. They may cause the troops to arrest all rioters and other persons found in open resistance to the civil authorities, and are empowered and required to overcome such resistance, and secure and keep the peace, by the use, if necessary, of their arms and all the power which they possess. But they are not authorized to punish any person for an offence, however amenable he may be to punishment, and they will always endeavor, by a firm and judicious conduct, and the moral force of their presence, to establish the public order, if possible, without a resort to arms. To have accomplished this result, will be the best evidence of their skill and the excellence of their measures.

878. The officer in command of military forces will, upon a call of the civil authorities, cause the troops to be supplied with the required ammunition. For this purpose he will make a requisition upon the Commissary-General, or other officer in charge of any arsenal or other place where ammunition of the state is deposited; and it will be the duty of the officer upon whom such requisition is made immediately to comply therewith.

879. If ammunition cannot be procured in time by this method, it may be purchased; and in either event the cost of the same will be a charge against the city, or county, or state, according to the source from whence the call to service emanated.

880. But the furnishing of the requisite ammunition will not be a condition of obedience to their Commanding Officer, on the part of the troops, who may be held to duty, although, for any reason, the ammunition is not procured.

Special Services.

881. The military Commander will ordinarily look to the officer who has called to his aid the military force, for directions, as to when the force shall be used. If, however, after a lawful call into service, no instructions are given to him, by reason of the sickness, absence, inability or death of such officer, or for any other cause; or if there shall be a conflict of jurisdiction between public officers authorized to call to their aid the military force, and who shall make such call; or if contradictory, inconsistent or unlawful directions shall be given by such officer or officers, the military Commander will, if the occasion shall require the use of a military force, himself so direct the troops, as to secure the public peace and the due observance of law, agreeably to the call made upon him by the civil authority.

882. The civil officer making the call, communicates directly with the superior officer in the chief command of the military force. He does not interfere otherwise with the force or its conduct. Subordinate military officers look to their military superior for their orders.

883. The instructions of the civil officer are given in general terms, directing the military officer to accomplish a particular purpose, as to disperse rioters, or clear a place, or defend a building, and the mode and means by which the specified purpose is to be attained, are directed by the military Commander.

884. The troops, when ordered to disperse a tumult or riotous assemblage, will, unless special exigencies should intervene, observe the following method of proceeding: On approaching the place where the mob is congregated, or the riot is progressing, the military officer in command will request the civil officer to give notice, in a loud tone of voice, requiring all persons so assembled to disperse forthwith. Unless such notice is given by the civil officer, the military officer will himself cause such notice to be given. After waiting for a suitable time, to allow the mob or rioters to disperse, the troops will advance and attempt to clear the place or disperse the rioters. In this effort they will obtain, if possible, the active aid of the civil force, and especially the personal presence and authority of the magistracy. If the troops shall then be attacked or resisted, so as to be unable otherwise to clear the ground or disperse the rioters, they may fire, or use any other means necessary to attain the end designed, but in no case will they fire without the orders of their proper military Commander.

885. The order to fire will be communicated to the troops by the superior military officer in command on the spot. It is impossible to specify, in advance, the particulars or nature of each case of resistance or attack, by rioters or persons engaged in a breach of the peace, which will justify the troops in taking life. The Commander must himself examine the scene of disorder, and then, in view of all the circumstances, exercise a sound discretion as to the measure of force demanded. His honest and reasonable judgment, in a case of apparent necessity, is all that is required by the law; and his lawful command will be a sufficient protection to all who are subject to his orders. The statute law and general rule applicable to the subject, are given in the following sections.

886. By the laws of the land, homicide or the taking of human life, is justifiable, when necessarily committed by public officers, and those acting under their command, in their aid and assistance, in overcoming resistance to the execution of legal process, or to the discharge of any other legal duty; and it is also justifiable, when necessarily committed by any person in attempting, by lawful ways and means, to apprehend any person for any felony committed, or in lawfully suppressing any riot, or in lawfully keeping and preserving the peace.

887. It will be an axiom for the guidance of military Commanders, acting in aid of the civil authorities, to use no unnecessary violence, but to employ as much force, and of such a kind, as will suffice to accomplish the object for which their services have been required.

888. The rule of law is, that all persons who, by their presence, give countenance to a riot, are principals, whether they engage in acts of violence or not, especially after notice given to disperse. Yet it often happens that a large proportion of a mob are, in the first instance, mere spectators or idlers, not meaning to aid in a breach of the peace. For this reason officers are enjoined, unless the exigencies of the case should render it impracticable, or, as otherwise provided, to give the required notice and opportunity to disperse, before proceeding to extremities, to the end that all those who are well disposed may retire in safety; and, as far as practicable, in every case of firing, pains will be taken to make the fire effective only as against those who are actually engaged in the riot.

889. To guard against danger to innocent persons at a distance, the troops will be instructed not to fire over the mob or in the air. If the mob are close to the troops, to avoid the effect of the rising of the shot at short distance, the aim should be taken not higher than the centre of the body.

890. Experience having shown the evil results of firing with blank cartridge, in the first instance, to suppress a riot, such firing is prohibited.

891. Officers in command of troops in the circumstances contemplated, will be cautious not to weaken their main force too much by detachments; and always to have on hand a sufficient body to act with energy and decided effect, when their services shall be seriously required.

892. Cavalry being comparatively powerless when not in active motion, this force should not be exposed in a riot, except when it can charge. The charge should be at a brisk trot or gallop, with the horses well in hand. If the ground is much broken, cavalry cannot be used to advantage.

893. When the design is to clear a street or place by a charge of cavalry, provision should be made for the return of the cavalry or its support, and the immediate occupation of the street or place, by troops of the other arms.

894. Although it is desirable that the first fire of the troops should be as effective as possible, it is of paramount importance that they always have the opportunity of checking a sudden onset by a renewal of the fire. Therefore, if the fire is delivered while in line, it will be by rank, wing or company; and particular care will be taken to see that the fire of the alternate rank, wing or company, is not delivered until the rank, wing or company, first firing, has reloaded. The fire by rank is preferable, as completely protecting the front. The fire in column will be specially provided for in the regulations following.

895. The Commander of the military force, will be cautious not to allow any persons to become intermingled with the troops, or to close upon them, so as to interfere with the manœuvres; also not to advance into any riotous or tumultuous assemblage by a flank movement, and especially to guard the command against being entangled with or disarmed by rioters while marching, or waiting for orders to march, to the scene of disturbance.

896. Artillery placed at the heads of columns, or in commanding positions, is most effective for the clearing of streets, and will be used if other means shall fail. While the guns are being conducted to their position, for opening the fire, it will generally be desirable to mask them with infantry or cavalry. Case shot, canister and grape, by reason of their shorter range and greater execution, will be employed in preference to round shot, unless the object is to destroy barricades or buildings. The artillery should always be supported by an adequate force of the other arms.

897. Light troops may be employed advantageously to make arrests, to enter houses, and to guard the flanks of columns. The sappers and miners will parade with their implements (which may be of service in forcing entrances and destroying obstructions) as well as their arms.

898. The troops are authorized to defend from attack or aggression their persons, their arms, and any place or building in which they may be stationed. In case of any sudden onset on the troops, or any place or building occupied by them, or other urgent circumstances requiring instant attack or resistance, the notice and other measures preliminary to the action of the troops may be dispensed with. The order to fire, in this case, will be given by the military Commandant on the spot. But it is not for every slight attack that the troops will be authorized to fire. There must appear to be a necessity for for so doing, and that other less dangerous measures will not suffice to secure the safety of the troops.

899. The foregoing rules apply more especially to disturbances in which there is no armed or organized force opposing the constituted authorities. When an insurrection exists, or armed assemblages are to be met, such measures of attack or defence will be resorted to as the nature of the case may require.

STREET FIRING — LIGHT INFANTRY.

900. A battalion of light infantry may be formed, for street firing, into column, at half distance, by division, company or platoon, according to the width of the place to be occupied. The present example will suppose a battalion of eight companies in column by company, right in front. By a suitable change of commands the example can be made applicable to a formation by division or platoon, and the principles will apply equally to a column of any number of subdivisions.

901. Preparatory to the movement, the companies must be carefully equalized and numbered, in odd and even files, from the right of companies.* If there be more odd than even files, the surplus men will be thrown into the rank of file closers. The men of the odd and even files will be charged to bear in mind their respective numbers, as the accuracy of the movement is dependent upon such remembrance.

902. The Colonel, having first caused arms to be loaded and shouldered, and wishing to conduct a fire advancing, the column will be halted at the point where the movement is to commence, and the Colonel will command,

1. As Light Infantry.
2. Street firing advancing.
3. By the left, double files.
4. MARCH!
5. Commence firing.

* See 1 Hardee's Tactics, "Company," § 5.

Street Firing — Light Infantry.

At the second command the Captain of the first or leading company will caution his company to stand fast, and both the Captain and First Sergeant will take their proper posts for firings. At the fourth command, the first company will stand fast, and all the other companies (except the eighth or rear company) will form double files, by the left. To execute this movement, the front rank men of each of the even files will stand fast; the rear rank men of such files will each step back so as to allow the front rank men of the odd files to step in front of them, leaving the proper intervals between the ranks; the front rank men of the odd files will, by an oblique step to the left and rear, place themselves in rear of the front rank men of the even files, in the spaces just made by the movement of the rear rank men of these files; at the same moment, the rear rank men of the odd files will step obliquely to the left and rear, so as to place themselves at proper distances behind the rear rank men of the even files. The Captain of each company (excepting the first and eighth), will place himself in front of one of the even files, near the centre; and the first and second sergeants will step in front of the even files on the right and left, respectively, of the company. The file closers will close to rank distance, and throw themselves in the rear of the nearest even files. The intervals which were occupied by the odd files will be carefully preserved.

903. At the fifth command, the Captain of the first company will command,

|--------------------------|-----------|
| 1. First company. | 2. READY. |
| 3. AIM. | 4. FIRE. |

Immediately after firing, and without waiting for any order, the company will shoulder arms, and the Captain will promptly command,

1. First company. 2. By the right, double files. 3. MARCH!

This movement will be executed with the utmost rapidity; the front rank men of the odd files will stand fast; the rear rank men of these files will step backward so as to allow the front rank men of the even files to occupy their places; the front rank men of the even files will

Street Firing — Light Infantry.

step obliquely to the right and rear, so as to place themselves between the front and rear ranks of the odd files; and the rear rank men of the even files will, by a similar step, throw themselves at the proper distance in the rear of the rear rank men of the odd files. The Captain will post himself in rear of a central odd file; the first and second sergeants in rear of the right and left odd files; the file closers will close upon the rear of the nearest odd files. The intervals which were occupied by the even files will be preserved

904. As soon as the first company has fired, the Captain of the second company will command, at the instant the first company has doubled files. The second company will pass, in quick time, through the intervals in the first company; and when the company has passed through, the Captain will step into the interval on the right of his central file, and allow his company to pass him, and command,

1. Second company. 2. Forward, adding 3. MARCH!

1. Second company. 2. HALT!

The second command will be given when the company has reached half distance in advance of the first company; and the company will, at the moment of halting, undouble files. To do this, the men of the odd files, at the second command, will promptly step obliquely to the right and front, into their places in line. The rear rank men of the even files will close upon the front rank. The first and second Sergeants will quickly take their posts for the firings, and the captain will promptly cause the company to fire and form double files by the right, as prescribed for the first company, changing the commands to conform to the number of the company.

905. As soon as the second company has passed through the intervals in the first company, the Captain of the first company will cause his company to load and shoulder arms.

906. The third company will follow the advance of the second company, until it enters and occupies the intervals in the first company, when it will halt; companies in rear of the third company, will advance and halt with that company. The third company and the companies in its rear, will carefully preserve the intervals which are to be occupied by their odd files, respectively.

907. When the second company has delivered its fire, the Captain of the third company will immediately put his company in march, and pass through the intervals in the first and second companies, and when he has passed through the second company, and advanced to half distance, he will cause his company to halt, undouble files, and fire; and again to double files, by the right, as directed for the first and second companies. The second company, when the third has passed through, will load and shoulder arms, and the third will do the same when it is passed by the fourth. The fourth company, and all others in its rear, will follow the directions given for the third company, and those preceding.

908. It will be observed that in advancing to fire, the companies doubled on the left file, will at each halt, rest in the intervals of the companies doubled on the right file, through which they pass.

909. The captain of the first company, immediately after the seventh company passes through the intervals of his company, will command,

- | | |
|--------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| 1. First Company. | 2. Undouble files. |
| 3. MARCH. | 4. By the left, double files. |
| 5. MARCH. | |

At the third command the company will undouble files, by the men of the even files stepping obliquely to the left and front into their places in line, the rear rank men of the odd files will retake their proper positions. At the fifth command the files will be doubled by the left, as before directed; and the company will follow the seventh company, at half distance, and execute all the movements above directed, for the other companies in advancing, and firing, and after firing.

Street Firing—Light Infantry.

910. The second company when it is passed by the first, and each other company as it finds itself, in turn, the rearmost of the column engaged in the firing, will promptly execute the movements directed for the first company in the preceding paragraph; and the firing will be continued without interruption until ordered to cease.

911. The eighth (or rear) company will not double its files, nor will it take part in the firings. At the command, "Street firing advancing," its chief will order it to face by the rear rank, and will march it the distance of its front, to the rear (to allow the engineers and music to enter the column), and there halt. At each advance of the column in firing, this company will face about, and advance with the column; keeping however at such a distance from the company next preceding as not to interfere with its movements; and at each halt of the column, it will also halt, and face to the rear. It will not fire unless the rear of the column is assailed, and then it will fire by rank.

To Cease Firing.

912. If the Colonel wishes to cause the firing to cease, he will give the signal or command, to cease firing, immediately after the fire of a company has been delivered.

913. At such command or signal, the company which would have fired next in succession (that is, the leading company, doubled on the left file), will halt in the intervals of the company which has just fired. The other companies, doubled on the left file, will halt with the leading company, so as to occupy the intervals of the companies doubled on the right file, as far as such companies extend down the column. The company which has last fired will immediately load. The column will then be in a position to renew the fire or to form square.

To Resume the Firing.

914. If, after the formation directed in the last paragraph, the Colonel desires to recommence the firing, he will give the command to commence firing, at which the companies doubled on the left file will at once advance, and renew the fire according to the method before prescribed.

To Advance or Retreat, after Firing.

915. If, after the column has ceased firing, the Colonel shall desire to put it in motion, without firing, he may march it in advance, or retreat in the formation directed to be assumed, after firing, for a distance not to exceed thirty paces.

916. Where one company occupies the intervals of another, the two companies will be regarded for this movement, and also for the formation of square, as one company, and will be commanded by the senior officer.

917. If the Colonel wishes to march the column for a greater distance than thirty paces, he will first cause the companies which do not occupy the intervals of other companies to undouble files

To Undouble the Companies.

918. The movement by which the companies standing doubled on the right file, in the intervals of the companies doubled on the left file, are returned to the column without passing to its rear, is called the undoubling of companies.

919. If, after the firing has ceased, the Colonel wishes to undouble the companies, he will command:

1. To the front—Undouble Companies. 2. Forward—MARCH

At the first command, the Captains of the companies doubled on the left file will caution their companies to stand fast, and the Captains of the companies doubled on the right file will caution their companies that they are to advance. At the command, MARCH, the companies doubled on the right file will advance; and when the leading company, doubled on that file, has passed to half distance beyond the leading company doubled on the left file, its Captain will cause it to halt and undouble files, and double them again by the left. The other companies doubled on the right files will mark time, while the preceding company doubles on the left files; and when the movement is completed, those companies will advance through the intervals of the company which has just doubled files by the left; and the company, now leading, will itself halt at half distance beyond the company which has just doubled, and execute the movements prescribed for that company. And so, in turn, all the companies doubled on the right file, as they have reached half distance in advance of each other, will undouble files, and again double them by the left.

920. If there should not be space enough to undouble the companies to the front, the Colonel will command :

- | | |
|---|---------------------------|
| 1. To the rear—Undouble companies. | 3. Column forward. |
| 2. Battalion, about FACE! | 4. MARCH! |

At the first command, the Captains of the companies doubled on the right file will caution them to stand fast. At the second command, the companies doubled on the left file will face to the rear. At the fourth command, the eighth company, and the companies which have faced about, will march, in common time, to the rear. As soon as the first company, doubled on the right file (at the head of the column), has its intervals opened, its Captain will promptly cause it to undouble files, and double them again by the left, face about, and follow the companies doubled on the left file. When this company has passed through the intervals of the second company doubled on the right file, the Captain of the second company will cause it to execute what is prescribed for the first company doubled on the right file. The other companies doubled on the right file (if there be any) will, each in its turn, execute the same movement. When all the companies which were doubled on the right file have thus entered the column, the Colonel will cause it to halt; the companies, before halting, will close to their proper distance, and the Colonel will cause the column to face to the front.

Street Firing — Light Infantry.

921. When the companies are undoubled, if the Colonel does not intend to resume the firing immediately, he will cause the files to be undoubled.

922. If the Colonel intends to recommence the firing, the music, and engineers and eighth company will retain the positions assumed for the firing. If he does not so intend, the Colonel will order the eighth company to face by the front rank; when the music and engineers take their posts in column, and the eighth company faces by the front rank and closes to half distance.

To Fire in Retreat.

923. The fire in retreat will be conducted on the same general principles as the fire advancing, but with the exceptions following. The Colonel will command,

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|----------------------------|
| 1. As light infantry. | 4. MARCH! |
| 2. Street firing in retreat. | 5. Commence firing. |
| 3. By the left double files. | |

At the second command, the Captain of the leading company will cation his company to stand fast, and he and his First Sergeant will take their posts for the firings. At the fourth command, all the companies, except the first and eighth, will double files, as prescribed for the fire advancing; and the Captains will throw themselves in rear of the central files of their respective companies. The First and Second Sergeants and file closers of such companies will step in rear of the nearest even files of their companies. At the fifth command, the Captain of the first or leading company will give the proper commands to cause his company to fire, and to double files by the right, as above directed for firing advancing, adding, after the files have been doubled,

- | | |
|----------------------------|-------------------------|
| 1. First — Company. | 2. About — FACE! |
|----------------------------|-------------------------|

and will place himself so as to lead the centre file (the guides and file closers placing themselves so as to lead the nearest files of the company), and immediately command, and pass with his company through the intervals in the files of the companies, towards the rear of the column, and cause the company to halt at its proper distance in rear of the last company which is doubled on the left file, face to the front, undouble files, double files again by the left, and load. He will then take his position in rear of the centre file of his company.

Forward — MARCH!

Street Firing — Light Infantry.

924. The Captain of the second company, when the first has passed through his company towards the rear, will command,

- | | |
|---------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| 1. Second company. | 6. FIRE! |
| 2. Undouble files. | 7. By the right double files. |
| 3. MARCH! | 8. MARCH! |
| 4. READY! | 9. About — FACE! |
| 5. AIM! | 10. Forward — MARCH! |

and will conduct his company towards the rear of the column, in the manner prescribed for the first company, and there form as directed for the first company, at its proper distance in rear of that company, and load.

925. The other companies will successively, after the company next preceding them has fired and passed through them, execute what has been prescribed for the second company.

926. The companies will shoulder arms after firing, without waiting for any order so to do, and all the movements will be in quick time.

927. In the fire in retreat, the eighth (or rear) company will, at the command, "Street firing in retreat," face by the rear rank and advance, double its front and halt. The music and engineers will take their position in the interval thus made. This company will march in retreat, after each company has fired, half of its front and halt. The company will take no part in the movements of the column for firing, and will itself fire only as directed for the eighth company in the fire advancing.

928. Upon the order or signal to cease firing, the companies which have fired and are passing to the rear will continue their march through the intervals, and form in the rear of the column, as above directed. The Colonel may resume the firing from this position; but if he desire to form a square, or to march or form into line, he will first cause the files to be undoubled.

INFANTRY.

929. A battalion doing duty as infantry, may be formed, for street firing, at full or half distance, into divisions, companies or platoons, according to the width of the place, leaving sufficient space on the flanks to allow the subdivisions, after delivering their fire, to file to the rear. The present example will suppose a battalion formed in column by company, at half distance, right in front.

930. The Colonel having caused arms to be loaded, will halt the column at the place where the movement is to commence.

931. If the front of the column does not fill the whole width of the place, and the flanks should be exposed to attack, one or more companies may be detailed to clear the flanks of the column, which being done, they will form, by platoon or section, near the flanks of the first and rear companies; the flankers in advance will face to the front, and those in the rear, to the rear, and throw as many files into line, on the flanks of those companies, as may be necessary to close the street or cover the battalion.

932. These dispositions being made, the Colonel will command,

- | | |
|------------------------------------|----------------------------|
| 1. As infantry. | 3. Commence firing. |
| 2. Street firing advancing. | |

At the second command, the Captains and First Sergeants will take their proper posts for the firings. At the third command, the Captain of the first company will immediately command,

- | | |
|--------------------------|-----------------|
| 1. First company. | 3. AIM! |
| 2. READY! | 4. FIRE! |

Street Firing — Infantry.

On the delivery of the fire, the company will instantly, and without waiting for any order for that purpose, shoulder arms and face to the right; and the Captain will command,

1. By file right.

2. Quick—MARCH!

The Captain will conduct the company, in quick time, along the right flank towards the rear of the column, and cause it to halt opposite to the centre of the column, face outward, load and shoulder arms.

933. Immediately after the first company delivers its fire, the Captain of the second company will command, when the first company has nearly cleared the front of the second company; and when his company has advanced once its front, the Captain will cause it to halt, and command,

1. Second company.

2. Forward, adding MARCH!

1. READY!

3. FIRE!

Immediately after firing, the company will instantly, and without any order, shoulder arms and face to the left; and the Captain will command, and conduct the company along the left flank of the column towards the rear, and cause it to halt at or near the then centre of the column, face outward, load and shoulder arms.

1. By file left.

934. When the company next to the eighth (or rear) company in the column shall have passed the left flank of the first company, the Captain of the first company will order that company to face to the left and to file left, and will conduct the company into the column. If the column be at a halt, when he shall have taken his position in column, he will halt the company, face it to the front, and dress it by the left; and if the company be not at its proper distance, he will take the distance when the column resumes its march. If the column is on the march when the company enters it, the Captain, when the left guide of his company is nearly on a line with the left guide of the preceding company, will command,

1. First — Company.

2. By the right flank.

3. MARCH!

adding, after the company has faced to the front, and cause it to take the step of the column.

Guide left,

935. When the rear of the column (excepting the eighth or rear company) has passed the right flank of the second company, the Captain of the second company will cause his company to face to the right and file to the right, into the column. If the column is at a halt, he will halt the company when it shall have reached its position in the column, and face it to the front; and the company will take its proper distance (if not already at that distance) when the column is again put in motion, as directed for the first company. If the column is advancing when the company enters the column, the Captain will, at the proper time, cause the company to march by the left flank, the company taking the proper distance, the guide by the left, and the step of the column.

936. The other companies, except the eighth (or rear) company, will follow the advance of the second company, and successively execute what is herein prescribed for the second company; with this exception, that all the odd companies will, immediately after firing, face to the right, and be conducted along the right flank of the column, and otherwise conform to the directions given for the first company after the firing, and for coming into column. All the companies in the column will advance at each advance of the leading company; but the eighth (or rear) company will observe the particular directions for the same, hereinafter contained.

937. The Captains of odd companies will be particularly careful to caution their companies that, after firing, the company will, without waiting for orders, shoulder arms and face to the right; and the Captains of even companies will caution their companies that, after firing, they will also instantly shoulder arms and face to the left.

938. At the command for street firing, the eighth (or rear) company in the column will face by the rear rank, and march the distance of its front and halt. As the column advances after each successive fire, it will face about and follow the column, keeping, however, at such distance from the company next in advance of it, as to allow the companies which have fired to enter the column at their proper distances. Whenever the column halts, the rear company will also halt and face to the rear. It will take no part in the firing unless the rear of the column is attacked, and then it will fire by platoon, or, if it is flanked, alternately with the flankers.

939. Where flankers are thrown out, those at the head of the column will continue to advance abreast with the leading company, and in case of any attack upon the head of the column after a fire, and before the next company is uncovered, they will cover it by their fire. The flankers in the rear will conform their movements to those of the rear company.

940. The FIRE IN RETREAT will be conducted in a manner similar to the fire advancing, except that the command will be for firing in retreat, and the fire will be delivered by each company, without advancing, as soon as its front is cleared by the preceding company; and after the delivery of its fire, each company will march, by the flank, directly to the rear of the column, enter it at the proper distance in rear of the company next to the eighth (or rear) company, countermarch, and load.

941. In firing in retreat, the eighth (or rear) company of the column, at the command to fire in retreat, will face by the rear rank, march double the distance of its front, and halt. As each company delivers its fire, the eighth company will advance a distance equal to half the front of the company, and halt. It will not fire unless the rear of the column should be attacked. The flankers at the head of the column will, as each company retires after delivering its fire, protect it, if necessary, by their fire; and when the next company is uncovered, will march in retreat to the flanks of such company, halt, and face to the front. The fire of the flankers, in every case, will be by rank, and the men who fire will immediately reload.

942. The Colonel will cause the firing to cease by the proper command or signal; and if the column has been firing advancing, and he shall desire to bring the companies on the flanks into column, he will put the column in march, and the companies on the flanks will enter it in the manner above directed. The flankers may, or may not, enter the column as the Colonel shall direct.

943. If the fire has been in retreat, on the command to cease firing, the companies which have fired will pass to the rear and enter the column, as above directed; and if necessary the eighth company will take further distance to allow them to do so.

944. If the column is formed at full distance, the second company, and those following it, in the fire advancing, will advance a distance equal to double the front of the company; and in the fire in retreat the eighth (or rear) company will take at each fire the distance of its full front.

POSTS OF MUSIC, ENGINEERS, &c.

945. At the command for street firing, in advance or retreat, whether as light infantry or infantry, the engineers or pioneers and music, will promptly place themselves between the eighth (or rear) company, and the company next preceding it in the column.

946. They will form compactly in ranks; the engineers or pioneers directly behind the seventh company (or company next to the rear company), and the music between them and the eighth (or rear) company.

947. The engineers and music will conform their movements to those of the eighth (or rear) company, and be careful to preserve sufficient space, in the column, for the companies which are to enter it after firing.

To Form the Battalion after Street Firing.

TO FORM THE BATTALION AFTER STREET FIRING.

948. If, after the execution of any of the foregoing movements for street firing, the Colonel shall find any of the companies out of their proper positions, and shall desire to resume the original formation of his battalion, he may form his battalion into line parallel to the left flank of the column, as follows: The Colonel will first cause the column to take full distance, and will then cause the color company to wheel to the left into line, and be aligned by the right against two markers who will be placed before it, two paces from the left flank of the column. After the color company is established, the Colonel will command, when each company, conducted by its chief, will march by the flank to the position originally occupied by it in line. The companies will form successively, on the principle of successive formations, each allowing the company whose post is nearer to the color to precede it and be first established. The companies of the right wing will march by the left flank, and those which are to be in the left wing, by the right flank of companies. The companies in the right wing will dress by the left, throwing out their right guides; those of the left wing will dress by the right, throwing out the left guides; the guides will all face towards the centre; and when the movement is completed, the Colonel will command, and all the officers and guides will take their proper posts in line. This movement will be executed in quick time.

1. Form battalion.

2. MARCH!

TO REFORM THE COLUMN AFTER STREET FIRING.

949. If only a few of the companies in column are out of their places, the Colonel may, without forming into line, cause such companies to resume the position originally occupied by them. If this is desired, upon an intimation of the Colonel, each Captain whose company is to change its place will conduct it by its right flank to its original post in the column, and cause it to countermarch; and when the companies are posted, if they are not at proper distance, the Colonel will cause the column to take distance, or close it, as may be desired, and dress by the left, or right, as the column may be right or left in front.

950. Or if a considerable number of the companies be out of their places, and the Colonel shall not desire to form line, he may continue the movement for street firing (but without firing) until the first company shall be on the right of the column. To do this he will, if the firing has been advancing, after the firing has ceased, command,

- | | |
|---------------------------------------|---------------------------|
| 1. First company to the front. | 3. Column forward. |
| 2. Advance without firing. | 4. MARCH! |

At the last command, the companies will continue to execute the movements for the fire advancing (except the firing and loading), and when the first company has reached its proper position in the front of the column, it will march forward, followed by the other companies in the column; and the Captains and First Sergeants will take their proper position in column.

951. In the infantry, the companies on the flanks will take their position in the column as it passes them.

952. In the light infantry, the first company, when it arrives at the head of the column (after passing through the companies doubled on the right file), will at once undouble its files marching; and the companies following it will do the same as soon as they have passed through the companies doubled on the right file.

953. In the firing in retreat, the Colonel, to accomplish the same result will, after the fire has ceased, command,

- | | |
|---|-----------|
| 1. First company to the front. | |
| 2. By company, from the right, in retreat. | 3. MARCH! |

At the command MARCH! the companies on the right of the column will successively execute the movements for street firing in retreat

To March in Column, prepared for Street Firing or to Form Square.

(except firing and loading), until the first company has regained its proper position at the head of the column. The eighth company will take distance, so as to allow the companies marching to the rear to enter the column. The movement will cease as soon as the first company has reached the front of the column. The Captains and Sergeants will take their places in column. In the light infantry, the files will be undoubled.

954. When these movements are completed, if the Colonel shall so intend, he will order the eighth company to face by the front rank; when the music and engineers will take their places in column, and the eighth company will face by the front rank and close to its proper distance.

TO MARCH IN COLUMN, PREPARED FOR STREET FIRING OR PREPARED TO FORM SQUARE.

955. If a battalion is to be conducted through a dense crowd, near to the place of riot or disorder, it may be marched in column at half distance or in square.

956. The column at half distance will, under these circumstances, be formed according to the principles given for columns prepared to form square (see 2 Scott's Tactics, § 1482, and following; 2 Hardee, § 517, and following), except that the formation will usually be by company, instead of division.

957. The file closers of the rear company, passing by the nearest flank, will throw themselves two paces before the front rank, opposite to their respective places, in line of battle, and face towards the head of the column. The field music will form compactly in ranks, two paces in rear of the centre of the second company (or division). The corps of engineers will be placed behind the centre of the color company. In no case must there be an elongation of the column; and if the music cannot be placed as above directed without increasing the distance between companies, it may be divided and placed behind the other companies.

Street Firing.

958. The column will then be in a condition to form square or to commence the movement for street firing. In case the column is ordered to commence street firing, the music and engineers will pass rapidly by the flank of the column and place themselves compactly in ranks between the rear company and the company next in advance of it in the column; the engineers leading, and the whole faced to the front.

FROM COLUMN FOR STREET FIRING, AS LIGHT INFANTRY
ADVANCING, TO FORM SQUARE.

959. If the Colonel shall desire to form square while the column is firing, advancing as light infantry in a column by company, he will first cause the fire to cease; and when the column has assumed the formation directed after firing (vide § 913), he will command,

1. Form Square.

2. Right and left into line, wheel.

At the first command, the Captains of companies formed on the even files, which do not occupy the intervals of other companies, will promptly cause the files to be undoubled. At the second command, the Captain in front of the two companies formed together in double files at the head of the column (and which will constitute the first front of the square) will caution those companies to stand fast, and place himself in the front rank, in the centre of the two companies (the centre file stepping back so as to allow him to take his place), and cause the companies to dress by the centre. He will then, if he be the senior officer of the two companies, exchange places with the other Captain, now in the rear. The Captains of all the other companies, except the eighth (or rear) company, will caution their commands to wheel by platoon to the right and left into line. The Captain of the eighth (or rear) company will cause his company to face to the front, if not already so faced, and command,

1. Eighth Company, forward.

Street Firing.

960. At the command, MARCH ! the companies, except those in the first front, and the eighth (or rear) company, will wheel by platoon to the right and left into line, and dress towards the flank resting on the first front. In the companies in which the intervals are occupied by other companies, the right platoons of both companies will wheel, as one platoon, to the right; and the left platoons, in the same manner, to the left. The Captains of the companies formed on the odd files will command the platoons wheeling to the right; and the Captains of the companies formed on the even files, the platoons wheeling to the left. In the companies which have undoubled files, the Captains will command the platoons wheeling to the right; and the First Lieutenants the platoons wheeling to the left. The field and staff officers, engineers and music will enter the square. The eighth company will advance and close the square, and then face to the rear. The right and left files of the first and fourth fronts will face to the right and left, outward. When the movement is completed the Colonel will command, and the chief of the fourth front and the guides will enter the square.

961. The senior Captain in the first front will command that front; the Lieutenant-Colonel will command the second front; the Major the third front; and if either be absent, the senior Captain in the front will command. The Captain of the eighth company will command the fourth front. The Commanders of fronts will take post four paces in rear of the centre of their respective fronts. The music and engineers are near to the fourth front.

962. The square thus formed will present a four-rank formation on its first front and a portion of the second and third fronts (if several of the companies shall have fired before the formation of square), and the residue of the square will be in two ranks. The parts of the second and third fronts, which are in two ranks, will be aligned on the front ranks of the portions, in four ranks. The fire of the portions of the square in four ranks will be given as directed for the square in four ranks, as hereafter prescribed.

Street Firing.

963. In the particulars in which no other direction is given, this formation of square will be conformed to the principles, given in the books of tactics and herein, for the formation of squares; and such square may advance or retreat, or be formed into column or reduced, in the same manner as other squares.

TO FORM SQUARE FROM COLUMN, AS LIGHT INFANTRY.

964. If the column has not been engaged in firing, or if the companies have been undoubled, the files will be undoubled, and the square will be formed as directed for the infantry.

965. If the column has been firing in retreat, the companies which have fired will take their places in the rear of the column, before the movement to form square is commenced.

TO FORM SQUARE FROM A COLUMN OF INFANTRY.

966. If the column is acting as infantry, it will be closed to half distance, if not already in that position; the Colonel will give the proper commands for the formation of square; and if the column be formed by company, the platoons of all the companies, except the first and last, will wheel outward, as prescribed for companies when the column is formed by division.

967. At the command to form square, the companies which have fired, if the column is engaged in firing, will pass rapidly to the rear, and enter the column in their proper places.

968. The leading and rear companies will form the first and fourth fronts of the square, the rear company advancing so as to close the square, and facing by the rear rank; if there are any companies on the flanks which have not been brought into column, they will enter the square and be posted in close order by platoon or section, as a reserve, in the rear of the first and fourth fronts of the square. In all other respects the movement will conform to the ordinary formation of square. A square formed from a column by company will be reduced, in the same manner as in squares formed from a column of divisions, by commands suited to the case.

Street Firing.

969. If a square is to be formed from a column, for street firing, the music and engineers will enter the square, and form compactly in ranks near to the fourth front, and next to the flankers, if any are formed in rear of that front. When the square moves, they will face and move with it.

THE SQUARE IN FOUR RANKS.

970. A battalion doing duty as infantry or light infantry may form a square in four ranks, in the manner directed in the Light Infantry tactics. (See 2 Hardee's Tactics, § 910, &c.)

971. It is proposed to use the square in four ranks, marching, for the purpose of entering a compact mass or crowd of persons, when necessary, during a riot or public disturbance; and the directions herein given, in regard to that formation, have reference to such service.

972. A square in four ranks may be formed from a column by division or company, according to the directions contained in 2 Hardee's Tactics, §§ 911, 955. The propriety of forming it by division or company will depend on the number of men in each company, and the width of the street or place to be entered.

973. The formation of square in four ranks, as directed in this article, will give an efficiency of fire, a security from attack on the flanks and rear, and a solidity and force, combined with mobility, which peculiarly commend it for the service contemplated, and especially so, when the troops are called to act in dark and crowded streets in the night time.

TO MARCH IN SQUARE.

974. The square, whether in two or four ranks, may, for the purpose contemplated by these regulations, march, in advance or retreat, in common time, to any distance.

975. The command for the march in square will indicate the front by which it is to move, and the battalion will conform to what is prescribed in 2 Hardee's Tactics, § 854, et seq., except as herein otherwise directed. In moving by the first or fourth fronts, the reverse front will face about, and the second and third fronts face towards the leading front and march by the flank; the reserves, &c., conforming to the movement.

976. The utmost care will always be had, in these movements, to prevent an elongation in the fronts of the square which are marching by the flank. At every halt each front will instantly face outward, and any interval caused in marching will be promptly closed. The Captains on the several fronts are specially charged with this duty.

977. While marching in square, the Commandant of the battalion will carefully watch the several fronts, and, upon the appearance of any wavering or opening in the ranks, he will halt the square or cause it to mark time. If the Commandant does not desire to face the fronts of the square outward, and intends to resume his march when steadiness is restored or the intervals are closed, he will, instead of ordering a halt, command,

1. Battalion.

2. Mark Time.

3. MARCH!

At this command the battalion will mark time, and all intervals will be instantly closed and the ranks aligned, without waiting for distinct commands for the purpose; and when the Colonel shall wish to resume the march he will command,

1. Battalion.

2. Forward—MARCH!

and the march will be resumed in common time.

978. The square being in march, if the Colonel shall desire to quicken the march, to gain a particular point, he may order it to march in quick time; but the quick march will not be continued to exceed the distance of thirty paces.

979. Each Commandant of a front of the square will promptly repeat all orders given by the Colonel, in order that they may be distinctly understood in every part of the square.

Street Firing.

TO FIRE IN SQUARE.

980. The fire, in squares in the two-rank formation, whether of infantry or light infantry, may be by file or by rank.

981. The fire by file will be conducted according to the prescribed method.

982. The fire by rank is to be conformed to the system prescribed in the light infantry tactics.

983. The fire, in squares in the four-rank formation, is also by file or by rank, but in both those fires the first and second ranks only take part. The third and fourth ranks stand at support, or shouldered arms.

984. To prevent confusion in the commands, when the square is in four ranks, and the fire is to be by rank, the command will be addressed to the first and second ranks, instead of the front and rear rank.

985. To increase the fire of the square in four ranks, for the special purposes contemplated by this article, the third and fourth ranks will be allowed to participate in the fire, by loading for the second rank, as provided in the following paragraphs.

986. The fire with three ranks, as it will be called by way of distinction, will be conducted according to the principles laid down in 1 Scott's Tactics, § 291, et seq., for firing by two ranks in the three-rank formations, but with some alterations of detail. The command given will be to fire with three ranks. The first rank will fire and load continuously; the second rank will fire and exchange muskets with the third rank, as particularly described in the next paragraph; the third rank loads for the second rank; the fourth rank ordinarily remains at shouldered or support arms. The reserved fire of the fourth rank will thus be held ready to meet sudden emergencies; and may also be useful to repulse an attack from the roofs or windows of buildings, without withdrawing the proper fire of the fronts of the square. If, however, an additional fire shall be demanded, by reason of one of the fronts of the square being forcibly assailed, the fourth rank may also exchange muskets with the third rank, as subsequently described; but this exchange of muskets, by the fourth rank, will only be for a short period, and will be discontinued as soon as the particular emergency shall cease.

987. In the fire with three ranks, each man of the second rank, after having fired, will pass his piece, with the right hand, to the third rank man of his file; the latter will take it with the left hand, and pass his own with the right hand to the second rank man, who will receive it with the right hand, fire it, reload and fire the same piece the second time, when he will repass it to the third rank man, and thus in continuation, so that the second rank will always fire twice in succession the same piece before passing it to the third rank man, except the first time.

988. In the fire with four ranks, as it will be called, the first rank man of each file fires and loads continuously; the second rank man fires, and passes his musket, with the right hand, to the third rank man, who receives it with his left hand, and passes his own musket with his right hand to the second rank man, who receives it with his right hand; the third rank man instantly exchanges muskets, in the same manner, with the fourth rank man, who at once commences loading; the second rank man fires the piece which he has received from the third rank man, and instantly exchanges, in the manner before indicated, with the third rank man, and the third rank man loads. The second rank man then fires and loads, and again fires the piece which he has loaded; and the process of exchange, and firing and loading, above detailed, is again gone through with; the second rank man always loading his piece after each third fire.

989. In the fire with four ranks, at the command, READY! the third and fourth ranks order arms, and during the fire, as often as they have reloaded (or have a loaded musket ready to exchange), they resume the position of order arms. In the fire with three ranks, the third rank men also order arms in the manner above directed.

Street Firing.

990. The fire with three ranks, and also with four ranks, will be conducted upon the principles of the fire by file. The fire will commence on the right of the front of the square.

991. The men of the second rank will be especially warned against passing to the rear pieces which have not been discharged; and before passing them, the second rank men will half-cock the pieces, and notice whether smoke issues from the tube. If it does not, they will always pick, if necessary, and recap the piece (unless provided with the Maynard primer), and fire it. And if, in loading, any man shall find that the piece has not been discharged, he will always pick.

992. The third and fourth rank men will have particular care, in passing loaded muskets, to see that the muzzles are kept elevated, and that the pieces are at half-cock.

993. The command to fire will be addressed to the particular front by which the fire is to be made; or to two or more fronts, naming them, if the fire is required to be made by more than one front.

994. The men of the outer files of the first and fourth fronts (who will have faced outward) will fire alternately. If there be four ranks, the first and third rank men in the files will begin the fire, and when they have reloaded the second and fourth rank men will fire. The fire may be direct or oblique, as may be required.

995. When an angle of the square is attacked, it will be protected by the oblique fire of the fronts of the square by which the angle is formed, the left front using the right oblique and the right front, the left oblique fire.

996. The Colonel will have near him, at all times during the firing, a drummer or bugler, to give the signal to cease firing. At the signal to cease firing, all the commissioned officers will instantly command, Cease—FIRING.

997. The signal to cease firing will indicate that the whole square is to cease firing. When it is intended that only a portion of the square shall cease or change its fire, and that the residue shall continue to fire, the signal to cease firing need not be given, and the command to cease firing will be communicated or addressed specially to the portion concerned.

REMARKS ON STREET FIRING.

998. Either of the systems of street firing herein given, although designated to be respectively for the infantry and light infantry, may be practiced by regiments doing duty in either arm, whether organized as infantry, artillery or riflemen.

999. Neither of the systems of street firing in column, herein prescribed, can be safely used at night in a place so dark that the troops cannot readily distinguish each other. Officers, under those circumstances, are recommended to assume the formation in square.

1000. The peculiar formations and firings prescribed in this article form no part of the general system of tactics. They will be only practiced with a view to proficiency in the special service, under the laws of this state, to which they have reference.

ARTICLE XLVI.TROOPS IN CAMPAIGN.

1001. The following article, from the United States Army Regulations, relating to troops in campaign, is published for the information of the military forces of the state, and also for their government, as far as the same can be made applicable, upon occasions of war, invasion or insurrection.

ORGANIZATION OF AN ARMY IN THE FIELD.

1002. The formation by divisions is the basis of the organization and administration of armies in the field.

1003. A division consists usually of two or three brigades, either of infantry or cavalry, and troops of other corps in the necessary proportion.

War (Organization of an Army in the Field) Service.

1004. A brigade is formed of two or more regiments. The first number takes the right.

1005. Mixed brigades are sometimes formed of infantry and light cavalry, especially for the advanced guards.

1006. As the troops arrive at the rendezvous, the General commanding in chief will organize them into brigades and divisions.

1007. The light cavalry is employed as flankers and partisans, and generally for all service out of the line.

1008. Heavy cavalry belongs to the reserve, and is covered, when necessary, in marches, camps or bivouacs, by light troops or infantry of the line.

1009. The arrangement of the troops, on parade and in order of battle, is: 1st, the light infantry; 2d, infantry of the line; 3d, light cavalry; 4th, cavalry of the line; 5th, heavy cavalry. The troops of the artillery and engineers are in the centre of the brigades, divisions or corps to which they are attached; marines take the left of other infantry; volunteers and militia take the left of regular troops of the same arm, and, among themselves, regiments of volunteers or militia of the same arm take place by lot. This arrangement is varied by the General commanding in chief, as the circumstances of war render expedient.

1010. Brigades in divisions, and divisions in the army, are numbered from right to left; but in reports of military operations, brigades and divisions are designated by the name of the General commanding them.

1011. The order of regiments in brigades, and of brigades in divisions, may be changed by the Commander of the division for important reasons, such as the weakness of some corps, or to relieve one from marching too long at the rear of the column. Such changes must be reported to the General commanding in chief.

1012. The General commanding in chief assigns the Generals of divisions and of brigades to their respective commands when the assignment is not made by the Department of War.

War (Organization of an Army in the Field) Service.

1013. The General of brigade inspects his troops in detail, by companies, when he takes command, and at the opening of the campaign, and as often as may be necessary to ascertain exactly their condition. The General of division makes similar inspections when he thinks proper. At these inspections the Generals examine the arms, clothing, equipments, harness, horses, &c., direct the necessary repairs, and designate the men and horses to remain in dépôt or march with the train.

1014. Reports of inspections are made by the General of brigade to the General of division, and by the General of division to the General commanding in chief.

1015. During marches and all active operations, Generals of brigade keep themselves exactly informed, by reports of corps and by their inspections, of the actual strength of the regiments, so as always, and especially after an engagement, to make accurate returns to the General of division.

1016. Staff officers, and officers of engineers, ordnance and artillery, according to the nature of the service, are assigned to the head-quarters of armies and divisions, and detached brigades, by order of the General commanding in chief, when the distribution of these officers has not been regulated by the War Department. The necessary staff will be assigned to Commanders of brigades.

1017. When an engineer or other officer is charged with directing an expedition or making a reconnoissance, without having command of the escort, the Commander of the escort shall consult him on all the arrangements necessary to secure the success of the operation.

1018. Staff officers, and Commanders of engineers, ordnance and artillery, report to their immediate Commanders the state of the supplies, and whatever concerns the service under their direction, and receive their orders, and communicate to them those they receive from their superiors in their own corps.

1019. The senior officer of engineers, of ordnance, and the departments of the general staff serving at the chief head-quarters in the field, will transmit to the bureau of his department at Washington, at the close of the campaign, and at such other times as the Commander in the field may approve, a full report of the operations of his department, and whatever information to improve its service he may be able to furnish.

1020. The report of the Officer of engineers will embrace plans of military works executed during the campaign, and, in case of siege, a journal of the attack or defence.

CONTRIBUTIONS.

1021. When the wants of the army absolutely require it, and in other cases, under special instructions from the War Department, the General commanding the army may levy contributions in money or kind on the enemy's country occupied by the troops. No other Commander can levy such contributions without written authority from the General commanding in chief.

ORDERLIES.

1022. At the opening of a campaign, the Commander of an army determines and announces in orders the number of orderlies, mounted or foot, for the Generals, and the corps or regiments by which they are to be supplied, and the periods at which they shall be relieved.

1023. In marches, the mounted orderlies follow the Generals, and perform the duty of escorts, or march with orderlies on foot at the head of the division or brigade.

1024. The staff officer who distributes the orderlies to their posts sends with them a note of the time and place of departure; those relieved receive a like note from the staff officer at the head-quarters.

1025. Mounted soldiers are employed to carry dispatches only in special and urgent cases.

1026. The precise time when the dispatch is sent off, and the rate at which it is to be conveyed, are to be written clearly on the covers of all letters transmitted by a mounted orderly, and the necessary instructions to him, and the rate of travel going and returning, are to be distinctly explained to him.

DEPÔTS.

1027. The grand depôts of an army are established where the military operations would not expose them to be broken up. Smaller depôts are organized for the divisions and the several arms. They are commanded by officers temporarily disabled for field service, or by other officers when necessary, and comprise, as much as possible, the hospitals and depôts for convalescents. When conveniently placed, they serve as points for the halting and assembling of detachments. They receive the disabled from the corps on the march; and the officers in command of the depôts send with the detachments to the army those at the depôts who have become fit for service.

CAMPS.

1028. Camp is the place where troops are established in tents, in huts, or in bivouac. Cantonments are the inhabited places which troops occupy for shelter when not put in barracks. The camping-party is a detachment detailed to prepare a camp.

1029. Reconnoissances should precede the establishment of the camp. For a camp of troops on the march, it is only necessary to look to the health and comfort of the troops, the facility of the communications, the convenience of wood and water, and the resources in provisions and forage. The ground for an intrenched camp, or a camp to cover a country, or one designed to deceive the enemy as to the strength of the army, must be selected, and the camp arranged for the object in view.

1030. The camping-party of a regiment consists of the Regimental Quartermaster and Quartermaster-Sergeant, and a Corporal and two men per company. The General decides whether the regiments camp separately or together, and whether the police guard shall accompany the camping-party, or a larger escort shall be sent.

War (Camps) Service.

1031. Neither baggage nor led horses are permitted to move with the camping-party.

1032. When the General can send in advance to prepare the camp, he gives his instructions to the Chief of the Quartermaster's Department, who calls on the regiments for their camping-parties, and is accompanied, if necessary, by an Engineer to propose the defences and communications.

1033. The watering-places are examined, and signals placed at those that are dangerous. Any work required to make them of easier access is done by the police guard or Quartermaster's men. Sentinels, to be relieved by the guards of the regiment, when they come up, are placed by the camping-party over the water, if it is scarce, and over the houses and stores of provisions and forage in the vicinity.

1035. On reaching the ground, the infantry form on the color front; the cavalry in rear of its camp.

1036. The Generals establish the troops in camp as rapidly as possible, particularly after long, fatiguing marches.

1037. The number of men to be furnished for guards, pickets and orderlies; the fatigue parties to be sent for supplies; the work to be done, and the strength of the working parties; the time and place for issues; the hour of marching, &c., are then announced by the Brigadier-Generals to the Colonels, and by them to the Field officers; the Adjutant and Captains, formed in front of the regiment, the First Sergeants taking post behind their Captains. The Adjutant then makes the details, and the First Sergeants warn the men. The regimental officer of the day forms the picket, and sends the guards to their posts. The colors are then planted at the centre of the color line, and the arms are stacked on the line; the fatigue parties to procure supplies, and the working parties, form in rear of the arms; the men not on detail pitch the tents.

War (Camp of Infantry), Service.

1038. If the camp is near the enemy, the picket remains under arms until the return of the fatigue parties, and, if necessary, is reinforced by details from each company.

1039. In the cavalry, each troop moves a little in rear of the point at which its horses are to be secured, and forms in one rank; the men then dismount; a detail is made to hold the horses; the rest stack their arms and fix the picket rope; after the horses are attended to, the tents are pitched, and each horseman places his carbine at the side from the weather, and hangs his sabre and bridle on it.

1040. The standard is then carried to the tent of the Colonel.

1042. The front of the camp is usually equal to the front of the troops. The tents are arranged in ranks and files. The number of ranks varies with the strength of the companies and the size of the tents.

1043. No officer will be allowed to occupy a house, although vacant and on the ground of his camp, except by permission of the commander of the brigade, who shall report it to the commander of the division.

1044. The staff officer charged with establishing the camp will designate the place for the shambles. The offal will be buried.

CAMP OF INFANTRY.

1045. Each company has its tents in two files, facing on a street perpendicular to the color line. The width of the street depends on the front of the camp, but should not be less than five paces.* The interval between the ranks of tents is two paces; between the files of tents of adjacent companies, two paces; between regiments, twenty-two paces.

* The pace is thirty inches, or two and one-half feet.

The kitchens are twenty paces behind the rear rank of company tents; the non-commissioned staff and sutler, twenty paces in rear of the kitchens; the company officers, twenty paces farther in rear; and the field and staff, twenty paces in rear of the company officers.

1047. The company officers are in rear of their respective companies; the Captains on the right.

1049. The police guard is at the centre of the line of the non-commissioned staff, the tents facing to the front, the stacks of arms on the left.

1050. The advanced post of the police guard is about two hundred paces in front of the color line, and opposite the centre of the regiment, or on the best ground; the prisoners' tent about four paces in rear. In a regiment of the second line, the advanced post of the police guard is two hundred paces in rear of the line of its field and staff.

1051. The horses of the staff officers and of the baggage train are twenty-five paces in rear of the tents of the field and staff; the wagons are parked on the same line, and the men of the train camped near them.

1052. The sinks of the men are one hundred and fifty paces in front of the color line; those of the officers one hundred paces in rear of the train. Both are concealed by bushes. When convenient, the sinks of the men may be placed in rear or on a flank. A portion of the earth dug out for sinks to be thrown back occasionally.

1053. The front of the camp of a regiment of one thousand men in two ranks will be four hundred paces, or one-fifth less paces than the number of files, if the camp is to have the same front as the troops in order of battle. But the front may be reduced to one hundred and ninety paces by narrowing the company streets to five paces; and if it be desirable to reduce the front still more, the tents of companies may be pitched in single file, those of a division facing on the same street.

CAMP OF CAVALRY.

1054. In the cavalry, each company has one file of tents; the tents opening on the street facing the left of the camp.

1056. The interval between the file of tents should be such, that the regiment being broken into column of companies [as indicated in plate], each company should be on the extension of the line on which the horses are to be picketed.

1057. The streets separating the squadrons are wider than those between the companies by the interval separating squadrons in line; these intervals are kept free from any obstruction throughout the camp.

1058. The horses of the rear rank are placed on the left of those of their file-leaders.

1059. The horses of the Lieutenants are placed on the right of their platoons; those of the Captains on the right of the company.

1060. Each horse occupies a space of about two paces. The number of horses in the company fixes the depth of the camp, and the distance between the files of tents; the forage is placed between the tents.

1061. The kitchens are twenty paces in front of each file of tents.

CAMP OF ARTILLERY.

1067. The artillery is encamped near the troops to which it is attached, so as to be protected from attack, and to contribute to the defence of the camp. Sentinels for the park are furnished by the artillery, and, when necessary, by the other troops.

1068. For a battery of six pieces the tents are in three files: one for each section; distance between the ranks of tents fifteen paces; tents opening to the front. The horses of each section are picketed in one file, ten paces to the left of the file of tents. In the horse artillery, or if the number of horses makes it necessary, the horses are in two files on the right and left of the file of tents. The kitchens are twenty-five paces in front of the front rank of tents. The tents of the officers are in the outside files of company tents, twenty-five paces in rear of the rear rank; the Captain on the right, the Lieutenants on the left.

1069. The park is opposite the centre of the camp, forty paces in rear of the officers' tents. The carriages in files, four paces apart; distance between ranks of carriages sufficient for the horses when harnessed to them; the park guard is twenty-five paces in rear of the park. The sinks for the men one hundred and fifty paces in front; for the officers one hundred paces in rear. The harness is in the tents of the men.

BIVOUACS.

1070. A regiment of cavalry being in order of battle, in rear of the ground to be occupied, the Colonel breaks it by platoons to the right. The horses of each platoon are placed in a single row, and fastened as prescribed for camps; near the enemy, they remain saddled all night, with slackened girths. The arms are at first stacked in rear of each row of horses; the sabres, with the bridles hung on them, are placed against the stacks.

1071. The forage is placed on the right of each row of horses. Two stable-guards for each platoon watch the horses.

1072. A fire for each platoon is made near the color line, twenty paces to the left of the row of horses. A shelter is made for the men around the fire, if possible, and each man then stands his arms and bridle against the shelter.

1073. The fires and shelter for the officers are placed in rear of the line of those for the men.

1074. The interval between the squadrons must be without obstruction throughout the whole depth of the bivouac.

1075. The interval between the shelters should be such that the platoons can take up a line of battle freely to the front or rear.

War (Cantonments) Service.

1076. The distance from the enemy decides the manner in which the horses are to be fed and led to water. When it is permitted to unsaddle, the saddles are placed in the rear of the horses.

1077. In infantry, the fires are made in rear of the color line, on the ground that would be occupied by the tents in camp. The companies are placed around them, and, if possible, construct shelters. When liable to surprise, the infantry should stand to arms at day break, and the cavalry mount until the return of the reconnoitring parties. If the arms are to be taken apart to clean, it must be done by detachments, successively.

CANTONMENTS.

1078. The cavalry should be placed under shelter whenever the distance from the enemy, and from the ground where the troops are to form for battle, permit it. Taverns and farm-houses, with large stables and free access, are selected for quartering them.

1079. The Colonel indicates the place of assembling in case of alarm. It should generally be outside the cantonment; the egress from it should be free; the retreat upon the other positions secure, and roads leading to it on the side of the enemy obstructed.

1080. The necessary orders being given, as in establishing a camp, the picket and grand guards are posted. A sentinel may be placed on a steeple or high house, and then the troops are marched to the quarters. The men sleep in the stables, if it is thought necessary.

1081. The above applies in the main to infantry. Near the enemy, companies or platoons should be collected, as much as possible, in the same houses. If companies must be separated, they should be divided by platoons or squads. All take arms at day break.

1082. When cavalry and infantry canton together, the latter furnish the guards by night, and the former by day.

1083. Troops, cantoned in presence of the enemy, should be covered by advanced guards and natural or artificial obstacles. Cantonments taken during a cessation of hostilities should be established in rear of a line of defence, and in front of the point on which the troops would concentrate to receive an attack. The General commanding in chief assigns the limits of their cantonments to the divisions, the commanders of divisions to brigades, and the commanders of brigades post their regiments. The position of each corps, in case of attack, is carefully pointed out by the Generals.

HEAD-QUARTERS.

1084. Generals take post at the centre of their commands, on the main channels of communication. If troops bivouac in presence of the enemy, the Generals bivouac with them.

MILITARY EXERCISES.

1085. When troops remain in camp or cantonment many days, the Colonels require them to be exercised in the school of the battalion and squadron. Regiments and brigades encamped by division are not united for drills without the permission of the General of division. The troops must not be exercised at the fringes without the authority of the General commanding in chief. The practice of the drums must never begin with the "general," or the "march of the regiment;" nor the trumpets with the sound "to horse." The hour for practice is always announced.

ORDERS.

1086. In the field, verbal orders and important sealed orders are carried by officers, and, if possible, by staff officers. When orders are carried by orderlies, the place and time of departure will be marked on them, and place and time of delivery on the receipt.

DISPATCHES.

1087. Dispatches, particularly for distant corps, should be intrusted only to officers to whom their contents can be confided. In a country occupied by the enemy the bearer of dispatches should be accompanied by at least two of the best mounted men; should avoid towns and villages, and the main roads; rest as little as possible, and only at out-of-the-way places. Where there is danger, he should send one of the men in advance, and be always ready to destroy his dispatches. He should be adroit in answering questions about the army, and not to be intimidated by threats.

WATCHWORDS.

1088. The parole and countersign are issued daily from the principal head-quarters of the command. The countersign is given to the sentinels and non-commissioned officers of guards; the parole to the commissioned officers of guards. The parole is usually the name of a general, the countersign of a battle.

1089. When the parole and countersign cannot be communicated daily to a post or detachment which ought to use the same as the main body, a series of words may be sent for some days in advance.

1090. If the countersign is lost, or one of the guard deserts with it, the Commander on the spot will substitute another, and report the case at once to the proper superior, that immediate notice may be given to head-quarters.

ISSUES.

1091. At what time and for what period issues are made, must depend on circumstances, and be regulated in orders. When an army is not moving, rations are generally issued for four days at a time. Issues to the companies of a regiment, and the fatigues to receive them, are superintended by an officer detailed from the regiment. Issues are made from one end of the line to the other, beginning on the right and left alternately. An issue commenced to one regiment will not be interrupted for another entitled to precedence if it had been in place.

THE ROSTER, OR DETAILS FOR SERVICE.

War (The Roster, or Details for Service) Service.

The second class comprises : 1st, detachments to protect laborers on military works, as field-works, communications, &c. ; 2d, working parties on such works ; 3d, detachments to protect fatigues.

The third class are all fatigues, without arms, in or out of camp.

In the cavalry, stable guards form a separate roster, and count before fatigue.

1093. The rosters are distinct for each class. Officers are named on them in the order of rank. The details are taken in succession in the order of the roster, beginning at the head.

1094. Lieutenants form one roster, and first and second Lieutenants are entered on it alternately. The senior first Lieutenant is the first on the roster ; the senior second Lieutenant is the second, &c. The Captains form one roster, and are exempt from fatigues, except to superintend issues. A Captain commanding a battalion temporarily is exempt from detail, and duty falling to him passes. Lieutenant-Colonels and Majors are on one roster. They may be detailed for duties of the first and second classes, when the importance of the guards and detachments requires it. Their roster is kept at division and brigade head-quarters. In the company, sergeants, corporals and privates form distinct rosters.

1095. Officers, non-commissioned officers and soldiers take duties of the first class in the order stated, viz., the first, for the detail, takes the grand guards ; the next, the interior guards ; the last, the police guard ; and the same rule in regard to the details and duties of the second class. In the details for the third class, the senior officer takes the largest party. The party first for detail takes the service out of camp.

1096. When the officer whose tour it is, is not able to take it, or is not present at the hour of marching, the next after him takes it. When a guard has passed the chain of sentinels, or an interior guard has reached its post, the officer whose tour it was cannot then take it. He takes the tour of the officer who has taken his. When an officer is prevented by sickness from taking his tour, it passes. These rules apply equally to non-commissioned officers and soldiers.

War (Police Guard) Service.

1097. Duties of the first and second classes are credited on the roster when the guards or detachments have passed the chain of sentinels, or an interior guard has reached its post; fatigue duties when the parties have passed the chain or begun the duties in camp.

1098. Every officer, non-commissioned officer or soldier, on duty of the first class, or who is of the next detail for such duty, takes, when relieved, the duty of the second or third class that has fallen to him during that time, unless he has marched for detachment more than twenty-four hours.

1099. Soldiers march with knapsacks on all duties of the first class; and with arms and equipments complete on all working parties out of the camp, unless otherwise ordered. In the cavalry, horses are packed for all mounted service.

1100. In the cavalry, dismounted men, and those whose horses are not in order, are preferred for the detail for dismounted service. Those who are mounted are never employed on those services if the number of the other class are sufficient.

1101. Every non-commissioned officer and soldier in the cavalry, detailed for dismounted service, must, before he marches, take to the First Sergeant of the troop, or Sergeant of his squad, his horse equipments and his valise ready packed. In case of alarm, the First Sergeant sees that the horses of these men are equipped and led to the rendezvous.

1102. These rules in regard to the roster apply also to service in garrison.

POLICE GUARD.

1103. In each regiment a police guard is detailed every day, consisting of two sergeants, three corporals, two drummers, and men enough to furnish the required sentinels and patrols. The men are taken from all the companies, from each in proportion to its strength. The guard is commanded by a Lieutenant, under the supervision of a Captain, as regimental officer of the day. It furnishes ten sentinels at the camp : one over the arms of the guard ; one at the Colonel's tent ; three on the color front, one of them over the colors ; three, fifty paces in rear of the field officers' tents ; and one on each flank, between it and the next regiment. If it is a flank regiment, one more sentinel is posted on the outer flank.

1104. An advanced post is detached from the police guard, composed of a sergeant, a corporal, a drummer, and nine men to furnish sentinels and the guard over the prisoners. The men are the first of the guard roster from each company. The men of the advanced post must not leave it under any pretext. Their meals are sent to the post. The advanced post furnishes three sentinels : two a few paces in front of the post, opposite the right and left wing of the regiment, posted so as to see as far as possible to the front, and one over the arms.

1105. In the cavalry, dismounted men are employed in preference on the police guard. The mounted men on guard are sent in succession, a part at a time, to groom their horses. The advanced post is always formed of mounted men.

1106. In each company a corporal has charge of the stable guard. His tour begins at retreat, and ends at morning stable-call. The stable guard is large enough to relieve the men on post every two hours. They sleep in their tents, and are called by the corporal when wanted. At retreat he closes the streets of the camp with cords, or uses other precautions to prevent the escape of loose horses.

1107. The officer of the day is charged with the order and cleanliness of the camp ; a fatigue is furnished to him when the number of prisoners is insufficient to clean the camp. He has the calls beaten by the drummer of the guard.

1108. The police guard and the advanced post pay the same honors as other guards. They take arms when an armed body approaches.

1109. The sentinel over the colors has orders not to permit them to be moved except in presence of an escort ; to let no one touch them but the color-bearer, or the sergeant of the police guard when he is accompanied by two armed men.

1110. The sentinels on the color front permit no soldier to take arms from the stacks, except by order of some officer, or a non-commissioned officer of the guard. The sentinel at the Colonel's tent has orders to warn him, day or night, of any unusual movement in or about the camp.

1111. The sentinels on the front, flanks and rear, see that no soldier leaves camp with horse or arms unless conducted by a non-commissioned officer. They prevent non-commissioned officers and soldiers from passing out at night, except to go to the sinks, and mark if they return. They arrest, at any time, suspicious persons prowling about the camp, and at night, every one who attempts to enter, even the soldiers of other corps. Arrested persons are sent to the officer of the guard; who sends them, if necessary, to the officer of the day.

1112. The sentinels on the front of the advanced post have orders to permit neither non-commissioned officers nor soldiers to pass the line, without reporting at the advanced post; to warn the advanced post of the approach of any armed body, and to arrest all suspicious persons. The sergeant sends persons so arrested to the officer of the guard, and warns him of the approach of any armed body.

1113. The sentinel over the arms at the advanced post guards the prisoners and keeps sight of them, and suffers no one to converse with them without permission. They are only permitted to go to the sinks one at a time, and under a sentinel.

1114. If any one is to be passed out of camp at night, the officer of the guard sends him under escort to the advanced post, and the sergeant of the post has him passed over the chain.

1115. At retreat, the officer of the guard has the roll of his guard called, and inspects arms, to see that they are loaded and in order; and visits the advanced posts for the same purpose. The sergeant of the police guard, accompanied by two armed soldiers, folds the colors and lays them on the trestle in rear of the arms. He sees that the sutlers' stores are then closed, and the men leave them, and that the kitchen fires are put out at the appointed hour.

1116. The officer of the day satisfies himself frequently during the night, of the vigilance of the police guard and advanced post. He prescribes patrols and rounds to be made by the officer and non-commissioned officers of the guard. The officer of the guard orders them when he thinks necessary. He visits the sentinels frequently.

1117. At reveille, the police guard takes arms; the officer of the guard inspects it and the advanced post. The sergeant replants the colors in place. At retreat and reveille the advanced post takes arms; the sergeant makes his report to the officer of the guard when he visits the post.

1118. When necessary, the camp is covered at night with small outposts, forming a double chain of sentinels. These posts are under the orders of the commander of the police guard, and are visited by his patrols and rounds.

1119. The officer of the guard makes his report of his tour of service, including the advanced post, and sends it, after the guard is marched off, to the officer of the day.

1120. When the regiment marches, the men of the police guard return to their companies, except those of the advanced post. In the cavalry, at the sound "boot and saddle," the officer of the guard sends one-half the men to saddle and pack; when the regiment assembles, all the men join it.

1121. When the camping-party precedes the regiment, and the new police guard marches with the camping-party, the guard, on reaching the camp, forms in line thirty paces in front of the centre of the ground marked for the regiment. The officer of the guard furnishes the sentinels required by the commander of the camping-party. The advanced post takes its station.

of the regiment. On reaching camp, it turns over the prisoners to the new advanced post.

THE PICKET.

1123. The detail for the picket is made daily, after the details for duty of the first class, and from the next for detail on the roster of that class. It is designed to furnish detachments and guards unexpectedly called for in the twenty-four hours; it counts as a tour of the first class to those who have marched on detachment or guard, or who have passed the night in bivouac.

1124. The officers, non-commissioned officers and soldiers of the picket are at all times dressed and equipped; the horses are saddled, and knapsacks and valises ready to be put on.

1125. Detachments and guards from the picket are taken from the head of the picket-roll in each company. The picket of a regiment is composed of a Lieutenant, two sergeants, four corporals, a drummer, and about forty privates. For a smaller force, the picket is in proportion to the strength of the detachment.

1126. Officers and men of the picket who march on detachment or guard before retreat will be replaced.

1127. The picket is assembled by the Adjutant at guard-mounting; it is posted twelve paces in rear of the guard, and is inspected by its own commander. When the guard has marched in review, the commandant of the picket marches it to the left of the police guard, where it stacks its arms, and is dismissed; the arms are under charge of the sentinel of the police guard.

1128. The picket is only assembled by the orders of the Colonel or officer of the day. It forms on the left of the police guard.

1129. The officer of the day requires the roll of the picket to be called frequently during the day; the call is sounded from the police guard. At roll-calls and inspections, infantry pickets assemble with knapsacks on, cavalry on foot. The picket is assembled at retreat; the officer has the roll called, and inspects the arms. The picket sleep in their tents, but without undressing.

War (Grand Guards and other Outposts) Service.

1130. The picket does not assemble at night, except in cases of alarm, or when the whole or a part is to march; then the officer of the day calls the officers, the latter the non-commissioned officers, and these the men, for which purpose each ascertains the tents of those he is to call; they are assembled without beat of drum or other noise. At night, cavalry pickets assemble mounted.

1131. Pickets rejoin their companies whenever the regiment is under arms for review, drill, march or battle.

GRAND GUARDS AND OTHER OUTPOSTS.

1132. Grand guards are the advanced posts of a camp or cantonment, and should cover the approaches to it. Their number, strength, and position are regulated by the Commanders of brigades; in detached corps, by the Commanding Officer. When it can be, the grand guards of cavalry and infantry are combined, the cavalry furnishing the advanced sentinels. When the cavalry is weak, the grand guards are infantry, but furnished with a few cavalry soldiers, to get and carry intelligence of the enemy.

1133. The strength of the grand guard of a brigade will depend on its object and the strength of the regiments, the nature of the country, the position of the enemy, and the disposition of the inhabitants. It is usually commanded by a Captain.

1134. Under the supervision of the Generals of division and brigade, the grand guards are specially under the direction of a field officer of the day in each brigade. In case of necessity, Captains may be added to the roster of Lieutenant-Colonels and Majors for this detail.

War (Grand Guards and other Outposts) Service.

1136. Grand guards usually mount at the same time as the other guards, but may mount before day break if the General of brigade thinks it necessary to double the outposts at that time. In this case they assemble and march without noise, and during their march throw out scouts; this precaution should always be taken in the first posting of a grand guard. The doubling of guards weakens the corps and fatigues the men, and should seldom be resorted to, and never when preparing to march or fight.

1137. A grand guard is conducted to its post, in the first instance, by the field officer of the day, guided by a staff officer who accompanied the General in his reconnoissance. After the post has been established, the Commander sends to the field officer of the day, when necessary, a soldier of the guard to guide the relieving guard to the post. He also sends to him in the evening a corporal or trusty man of the guard for the note containing the parole and countersign, and sends them before dark to the detached posts. He will not suffer his guard to be relieved except by a guard of the brigade, or by special orders.

1138. If there is no pass to be observed or defended, the grand guards are placed near the centre of the ground they are to observe, on sheltered, and, if possible, high ground, the better to conceal their strength and observe the enemy; they ought not to be placed near the edge of a wood. When, during the day, they are placed very near or in sight of the enemy, they fall back at night on posts selected farther to the rear.

1139. In broken or mountainous countries, and particularly if the inhabitants are ill-disposed, intermediate posts must be established when it is necessary to post the grand guard distant from the camp.

1140. Grand guards are chiefly to watch the enemy in front; their flanks are protected by each other, and the camp must furnish posts to protect their rear and secure their retreat.

1141. Grand guards are seldom intrenched, and never without the orders of the General, except by a barricade or ditch when exposed in a plain to attacks of cavalry.

War (Grand Guards and other Outposts) Service.

1142. The General of division, if he thinks proper, changes the stations and orders of these guards, and establishes posts to connect the brigades or protect the exterior flanks.

1143. After a grand guard is posted, the first care of the commander and of the field officer of the day is to get news of the enemy; then to reconnoitre his position, and the roads, bridges, fords and defiles. This reconnoissance determines the force and position of the small posts and their sentinels day and night. These posts, according to their importance, are commanded by officers or non-commissioned officers; the cavalry posts may be relieved every four or eight hours.

1144. The commander of a grand guard receives detailed instructions from the General and field officer of the day of the brigade, and instructs the commanders of the small posts as to their duties and the arrangements for defence or retreat. The commanders of grand guards may, in urgent cases, change the positions of the small posts. If the small posts are to change their positions at night, they wait until the grand guard have got into position and darkness hides their movements from the enemy; then march silently and rapidly under the charge of an officer.

1145. In detached corps, small posts of picked men are at night sent forward on the roads by which the enemy may attack or turn the position. They watch the forks of the roads, keep silence, conceal themselves, light no fires, and often change place. They announce the approach of the enemy by signals agreed upon, and retreat, by routes examined during the day, to places selected, and rejoin the guard at day break.

1146. Grand guards have special orders in each case, and the following in all cases: to inform the nearest posts and the field officer of the day, or the General of brigade, of the march and movements of the enemy, and of the attacks they receive or fear; to examine every person passing near the post, particularly those coming from without; to arrest suspicious persons, and all soldiers and camp-followers who try to pass out without permission, and to send to the General, unless otherwise directed, all country people who come in.

War (Grand Guards and other Outposts) Service.

1147. All out-guards stand to arms at night on the approach of patrols, rounds or other parties; the sentinel over the arms has orders to call them out.

1148. Advanced posts will not take arms for inspection or ceremony when it would expose them to the view of the enemy.

1149. Grand guards are often charged with the care and working of telegraphic signals.

1150. The sentinels and vedettes are placed on points from which they can see farthest, taking care not to break their connection with each other or with their posts. They are concealed from the enemy as much as possible by walls, or trees, or elevated ground. It is generally even of more advantage not to be seen than to see far. They should not be placed near covers, where the enemy may capture them.

1151. A sentinel should be always ready to fire; vedettes carry their pistols or carbines in their hands. A sentinel must be sure of the presence of an enemy before he fires; once satisfied of that, he must fire, though all defence on his part be useless, as the safety of the post may depend on it. Sentinels fire on all persons deserting to the enemy.

1152. If the post must be where a sentinel on it cannot communicate with the guard, a corporal and three men are detached for it, or the sentinels are doubled, that one may communicate with the guard. During the day the communication may be made by signals, such as raising a cap or handkerchief. At night sentinels are placed on low ground, the better to see objects against the sky.

1153. To lessen the duty of rounds, and keep more men on the alert at night, sentinels are relieved every hour. To prevent sentinels from being surprised, it is sometimes well to precede the countersign by signals, such as striking the musket with the hand, striking the hands together, &c.

War (Grand Guards and other Outposts) Service.

If obeyed, he calls: "Who goes there?" If answered: "Rounds" or "Patrol," he says: "Advance with the countersign." If more than one advance at the same time, or the person who advances fails to give the countersign or signal agreed on, the sentinel fires, and falls back on his guard. The sentinel over the arms, as soon as his hail is answered, turns out the guard, and the corporal goes to reconnoitre. When it is desirable to hide the position of the sentinel from the enemy, the hail is replaced by signals; the sentinel gives the signal, and those approaching the counter signal.

1155. With raw troops, or when the light troops of the enemy are numerous or active, and when the country is broken or weeded, the night stormy or dark, sentinels should be doubled. In this case, while one watches, the other, called a flying sentinel, moves about, examining the paths and hollows.

1156. The commandants of grand guards visit the sentinels often; change their positions when necessary; make them repeat their orders; teach them under what circumstances and at what signals to retire, and particularly not to fall back directly on their guard, if pursued, but to lead the enemy in a circuit.

1157. At night, half the men of the grand guard off post watch under arms, while the rest lie down, arms by their side. The horses are always bridled; the horsemen hold the reins, and must not sleep.

1158. When a grand guard of cavalry is so placed as not to be liable to a sudden attack from the enemy, the General may permit the horses to be fed during the night, unbridling for this purpose a few at a time, the horsemen being vigilant to prevent them from escaping.

1159. An hour before break of day, infantry grand guards stand to arms, and cavalry mount. At the advanced posts, some of the infantry are all night under arms, some of the cavalry on horseback.

1160. The commander of a grand guard regulates the numbers, the hours, and the march of patrols and rounds, according to the strength of his troop and the necessity for precaution; and, accompanied by those who are to command the patrols and rounds during the night, he will reconnoitre all the routes they are to follow.

1161. Patrols and rounds march slowly, in silence, and with great precaution; halt frequently to listen and examine the ground. The rounds consist of an officer or non-commissioned officer, and two or three men.

1162. Towards break of day the patrols ought to be more frequent, and sent to greater distances. They examine the hollow-ways and ground likely to conceal an enemy, but with great caution, to avoid being cut off, or engaged in an unequal combat; if they meet the enemy, they fire and attempt to stop his march. While the patrols are out, the posts are under arms.

1163. Cavalry patrols should examine the country to a greater distance than infantry, and report to the infantry guard everything they observe. The morning patrols and scouts do not return until broad daylight; and when they return, the night sentinels are withdrawn, and the posts for the day resumed.

1164. When patrols are sent beyond the advanced posts, the posts and sentinels should be warned.

1165. On their return, commanders of patrols report in regard to the ground, and everything they have observed of the movements of the enemy, or of his posts, and the commandant of the grand guard reports to the field officer of the day.

1166. The fires of grand guards should be hidden by a wall or ditch, or other screen. To deceive the enemy, fires are sometimes made on ground not occupied. Fires are not permitted to small posts liable to surprise.

1167. The horses of cavalry guards are watered or fed by detachments; during which the rest are ready to mount.

1168. If a body of troops attempt to enter the camp at night, unless their arrival has been announced, or the commander is known to, or is the bearer of a written order to the commander of the grand guard, he stops them, and sends the commander under escort to the field officer of the day, and warns the posts near him.

War (Intrenched Posts) Service.

1169. Bearers of flags are not permitted to pass the outer chain of sentinels; their faces are turned from the post or army; if necessary, their eyes are bandaged; a non-commissioned officer stays with them to prevent indiscretion of the sentinels.

1170. The commandant of the grand guard receipts for dispatches, and sends them to the field officer of the day or General of brigade, and dismisses the bearer; but if he has discovered what ought to be concealed from the enemy, he is detained as long as necessary.

1171. Deserters are disarmed at the advanced posts, and sent to the commander of the grand guard, who gets from them all the information he can concerning his post. If many come at night, they are received cautiously, a few at a time. They are sent in the morning to the field officer of the day, or to the nearest post or camp, to be conducted to the General of the brigade. All suspected persons are searched by the commanders of the posts.

1172. When an enemy advances to attack, unless he is in too great force, or the grand guard is to defend an intrenched post or a defile, it will take the positions and execute the movements to check the enemy, acting as skirmishers, or fighting in close or open order, as may be best. The guard joins its corps when in line, or when a sufficient number of troops have reached the ground it defends.

INTRENCHED POSTS.

1173. Unless the army be acting on the defensive, no post should be intrenched, except to cover the weak parts of the line, or at points which the enemy cannot avoid, or in mountain warfare, or to close a defile, or cover winter quarters.

1174. Posts connected with the operations of an army are intrenched only by order of the General commanding in chief or a General of division.

War (Detachments) Service.

1175. Any intrenchment that requires artillery is considered as a post, and a guard or garrison and commander are assigned to it.

1176. The General who establishes an intrenched post gives to its commander detailed instructions in regard to its defence, and the circumstances under which the defence should cease.

1177. The commander reconnoitres his post ; distributes the troops ; posts the officers and non-commissioned officers ; forms a reserve ; gives orders for all contingencies he can foresee ; supposes an attack, and arranges his troops for defence, so as to prepare them for attack, day or night.

1178. In dark weather he redoubles his vigilance, and changes the hours and direction of the rounds and patrols. He permits no flags of truce, deserters or strangers to enter. If a flag ought to pass his post, he bandages his eyes. He refuses admittance to a relief or any other party until he has carefully examined them. In case of an attack, he does not wait for orders or hold a council. Having defended his post to the last extremity, or till the purpose of defence, according to his instructions, is answered, he may then spike his guns and rejoin the army under cover of night, or by cutting his way through the enemy.

DETACHMENTS.

1179. When a detachment is to be formed from the different regiments of a brigade, the Assistant Adjutant-General of the brigade assembles it, and turns it over to the commander.

1180. When a detachment is to be formed from different brigades, the Assistant Adjutant-General in each forms the contingent of the brigade, and sends it to the place of assembling.

1181. Detachments are generally formed by taking battalions, squadrons, companies, platoons in turn, according to the roster for such detail.

1182. When the detachment is to consist of men from every company or troop, the first on the roster for guard are taken.

War (Reconnoissances) Service.

1183. Officers, non-commissioned officers and soldiers, whose tour it is to go on detachment, if employed otherwise at the time, are relieved from the duty they are on, if they can reach camp in time to march with the detachment.

1184. When detachments meet, the command is regulated while they serve together as if they formed one detachment. But the senior officer cannot prevent the commander of any detachment from moving when he thinks proper, to execute the orders he has received.

RECONNOISSANCES.

1186. Near an enemy, daily reconnoissances are made to observe the ground in front, and to discover whether the advanced guards of the enemy have been increased or put in motion, or any other sign of his preparation for march or action.

1187. They are made by small parties of cavalry and infantry, from the brigade, under direction of the General of division or the General of a separate brigade, and to less distance by the patrols of the grand guard, and are not repeated at the same hour or by the same route. On the plain, reconnoissances are made by cavalry; among mountains, by infantry, with a few horsemen to carry intelligence.

1188. Reconnoitring parties observe the following precautions: to leave small posts, or sentinels at intervals, to transmit intelligence to the advanced posts of the army, unless the return to it be by a different route; to march with caution, to avoid fighting; and see, if possible, without being seen; to keep an advanced guard; to send well mounted men ahead of the advanced guard, and on the flank of the party; to instruct the scouts that no two should enter a defile or mount a hill together, but to go one at a time, while one watches to carry the news if the other is taken.

1189. Before day break the advanced guard and scouts are drawn closer; the party then march slowly and silently, stop frequently to listen, and keep the horses that neigh in the rear. The party should enter no wood, defile, village or inclosure until it has been fully examined by the scouts.

1190. Special reconnoissances are made under the instruction of the General in command, by such officers and with such force as he may direct 1191. Offensive or forced reconnoissances are to ascertain with certainty points in the enemy's position, or his strength. They are sometimes preludes to real actions, and sometimes only demonstrations. They drive in his outposts, and sometimes engage special corps of his line. They are only made by the order of the General commanding in chief, or the commander of an isolated corps.

1192. In all reports of reconnoissances, the officer making them shall distinguish expressly what he has seen from the accounts he has not been able to verify personally.

1193. In special and offensive reconnoissances, the report must be accompanied by a field-sketch of the localities, the dispositions and defences of the enemy.

PARTISANS AND FLANKERS.

1194. The opérations of partisan corps depend on the nature and theatre of the war; they enter into the general plan of operations, and are conducted under the orders of the General commanding in chief.

1195. The composition and strength of partisan corps and detachments of flankers depend on the object, the difficulties, the distance, and the probable time of the expedition.

1196. The purpose of these isolated corps is to reconnoitre at a distance on the flanks of the army, to protect its operations, to deceive the enemy, to interrupt his communications, to intercept his couriers and his correspondence, to threaten or destroy his magazines, to carry off his posts and his convoys, or, at all events, to retard his march by making him detach largely for their protection.

War (Partisans and Flankers) Service.

1197. While these corps fatigue the enemy and embarrass his operations, they endeavor to inspire confidence and secure the good will of the inhabitants in a friendly country, and to hold them in check in an enemy's country.

1198. They move actively, appear unexpectedly on different points in such a manner as to make it impossible to estimate their force, or to tell whether they are irregular forces or an advanced guard.

1200. These detachments are sometimes composed of different arms, but the service belongs more particularly to the light cavalry, which can move to a distance by rapid marches, surprise the enemy, attack unexpectedly, and retire as promptly.

1201. Stormy weather, fogs, extreme heat, and the night above all, are favorable to the success of ambuscades; when the enemy are careless, the break of day is the best time. A partisan commander should communicate to his second in command his secret orders, the direction and object of the expedition, and the different points of junction with the army.

1202. Guides of the country and spies are often necessary to the partisan. They are examined separately, and confronted if their accounts differ. When there is but one guide, he marches with the advanced guard, guarded by two men, and bound if necessary. Peddlers and smugglers are specially suitable for spies.

1203. A fit time to attack a convoy is at a halt, or when they begin to park, or when they are watering, or passing a wood or a defile; at a bend of the road, a bridge, or steep ascent.

1204. The attacking party may be principally cavalry, with some infantry. The first object is to disperse the escort. A part of the detachment attacks the main body of the escort, another the wagons, and a third is in reserve; skirmishers line the road, and try to cut

1205. If the convoy is parked, the cavalry surrounds it, assails the escort, and tries to draw it away from the train. The infantry then engage the troops remaining at the park, slip under the wagons, and get into the park. When the cavalry is alone and the enemy are shaken, they dismount a portion of the men to supply the want of infantry.

1206. If it is a large convoy, the principal attack is made on the centre; the most valuable wagons are also selected, and additional horses are put to them if the attack is successful. Those that cannot be carried off are burned.

MARCHES.

1207. The object of the movement and the nature of the ground determine the order of march, the kind of troops in each column, and the number of columns.

1208. The force is divided into as many columns as circumstances permit, without weakening any one too much. They ought to preserve their communications, and be within supporting distance of each other. The Commander of each column ought to know the strength and direction of the others.

1209. The advance and rear guards are usually light troops; their strength and composition depend on the nature of the ground and the position of the enemy. They serve to cover the movements of the army, and to hold the enemy in check until the General has time to make his arrangements.

1210. The advance guard is not always at the head of the column; in a march to a flank, it takes such positions as cover the movement. Sappers are attached to the advanced guard if required.

1211. The "general," sounded one hour before the time of marching, is the signal to strike tents, to load the wagons, and pack horses, and send them to the place of assembling. The fires are then put out, and care taken to avoid burning straw, &c., or giving to the enemy any other indication of the movement.

1212. The "march" will be beat in the infantry, and the "advance" sounded in the cavalry, in succession, as each is to take its place in the column.

1213. When an army should form suddenly to meet the enemy, the "long roll" is beat, and "to horse" sounded. The troops form rapidly in front of their camp.

1214. Batteries of artillery and their caissons move with the corps to which they are attached; the field train and ambulances march at the rear of the column; and the baggage with the rear guard.

1215. Cavalry and infantry do not march together, unless the proximity of the enemy makes it necessary.

1216. In cavalry marches, when distant from the enemy, each regiment, and, if possible, each squadron, forms a separate column, in order to keep up the same gait from front to rear, and to trot, when desirable, on good ground. In such cases, the cavalry may leave the camp later, and can give more rest to the horses, and more attention to the shoeing and harness. Horses are not bridled until the time to start.

1217. When necessary, the orders specify the rations the men are to carry in their haversacks. The field officers and Captains make inspections frequently during the march; at halts they examine the knapsacks, valises and haversacks, and throw away all articles not authorized. The officers and non-commissioned officers of cavalry companies attend personally to the packs and girths.

1218. When it can be avoided, troops should not be assembled on high roads or other places where they interrupt the communication.

1219. Generals of division and commanders of detached corps send a staff officer to the rendezvous, in advance, to receive the troops, who, on arriving, take their place in the order of battle, and form in close column, unless otherwise ordered. Artillery, or trains halted on the roads, form in file on one side.

1220. The execution of marching orders must not be delayed. If the Commander is not at the head of his troops when they are to march, the next in rank puts the column in motion.

1221. If possible, each column is preceded by a detachment of sappers, to remove obstacles to the march, aided, when necessary, by infantry, or the people of the country. The detachment is divided into two sections: one stops to remove the first obstacle, the other moves on to the next.

1222. In night marches, and at bad places, and at cross-roads, when necessary, intelligent non-commissioned officers are posted to show the way, and are relieved by the regiments as they come up.

1223. On the march no one shall fire a gun, or cry "halt" or "march" without orders.

1224. Soldiers are not to stop for water; the canteens should be filled before starting.

1225. It is better to avoid villages; but if the route lies through them, officers and non-commissioned officers are to be vigilant to prevent straggling. Halts should not take place at villages.

1226. Besides the rear guard, the General sometimes takes a detachment from the last regiment, and adds to it non-commissioned officers from each regiment, to examine all villages and hiding places on the route, to bring up stragglers and seize marauders.

1227. In night marches, the sergeant-major of each regiment remains at the rear with a drummer, to give notice when darkness or difficulty stops the march. In cavalry, a trumpet is placed in rear of each squadron, and the signal repeated to the head of the regiment.

1228. The General and field officers frequently stop, or send officers to the rear, to see that the troops march in the prescribed order, and keep their distances. To quicken the march, the General warns the War (Marches) Service.

Colonels, and may order a signal to be beat. It is repeated in all the regiments.

1229. In approaching a defile the Colonels are warned; they close their regiments as they come up; each regiment passes separately, at an accelerated pace, and in as close order as possible. The leading regiment having passed, and left room enough for the whole column in close order, then halts, and moves again as soon as the last regiment is through. In the cavalry, each squadron, before quickening the pace to rejoin the column, takes its original order of march.

1230. When the distance from the enemy permits, each regiment, after closing up in front and rear of the defile, stacks arms.

1231. Halts to rest and re-form the troops are frequent during the day, depending on the object and length of the march. They are made in preference after the passage of defiles.

1232. No honors are paid by troops on the march or at halts.

1233. The sick march with the wagons.

1234. Led horses of officers, and the horses of dismounted men, follow their regiment. The baggage wagons never march in the column. When the General orders the field train and ambulances to take place in the column, he designates the position they shall take.

1235. If two corps meet on the same road, they pass to the right, and both continue their march, if the road is wide enough; if it is not, the first in the order of battle takes the road, the other halts.

1236. A corps in march must not be cut by another. If two corps meet at cross-roads, that which arrives last halts if the other is in motion. A corps in march passes a corps at a halt, if it has precedence in the order of battle, or if the halted corps is not ready to move at once.

1237. A column that halts to let another column pass resumes the march in advance of the train of this column. If a column has to pass a train, the train must halt, if necessary, till the column passes. The column which has precedence must yield it if the commander, on seeing the orders of the other, finds it for the interest of the service

BATTLES.

1238. Dispositions for battle depend on the number, kind and quality of the troops opposed, on the ground, and on the objects of the war ; but the following rules are to be observed generally :

1239. In attacking, the advanced guard endeavors to capture the enemy's outposts, or cut them off from the main body. Having done so, or driven them in, it occupies, in advancing, all the points that can cover or facilitate the march of the army, or secure its retreat, such as bridges, defiles, woods, and heights ; it then makes attacks, to occupy the enemy, without risking too much, and to deceive them as to the march and projects of the army.

1240. When the enemy is hidden by a curtain of advanced troops, the commandant of the advanced guard sends scouts, under intelligent officers, to the right and left, to ascertain his position and movements. If he does not succeed in this way, he tries to unmask the enemy by demonstrations ; threatens to cut off the advance from the main body ; makes false attacks ; partial and impetuous charges in echelon ; and if all fail, he makes a real attack to accomplish the object.

1241. Detachments left by the advanced guard to hold points in the rear rejoin it when other troops come up. If the army takes a position, and the advanced guard is separated from it by defiles or heights, the communication is secured by troops drawn from the main body.

1242. At proper distance from the enemy, the troops are formed for the attack in several lines ; if only two can be formed, some battalions in column are placed behind the wings of the second line. The lines may be formed of troops in column or in order of battle, according to the ground and plan of attack.

1243. The advanced guard may be put in the line or on the wings, or other position, to aid the pursuit or cover the retreat.

War (Battles) Service.

1244. The reserve is formed of the best troops of foot and horse, to complete a victory or make good a retreat. It is placed in the rear of the centre, or chief point of attack or defence.

1245. The cavalry should be distributed in echelon on the wings and at the centre, on favorable ground.

1246. It should be instructed not to take the gallop until within charging distance ; never to receive a charge at a halt, but to meet it, or, if not strong enough, to retire manœuvring ; and in order to be ready for the pursuit, and prepared against a reverse, or the attacks of the reserve, not to engage all its squadrons at once, but to reserve one-third, in column or in echelon, abreast of or in the rear of one of the wings ; this arrangement is better than a second line with intervals.

1247. In the attack, the artillery is employed to silence the batteries that protect the position. In the defence, it is better to direct its fire on the advancing troops. In either case, as many pieces are united as possible, the fire of artillery being formidable in proportion to its concentration.

1248. In battles and military operations it is better to assume the offensive, and put the enemy on the defensive ; but to be safe in doing so requires a larger force than the enemy, or better troops, and favorable ground. When obliged to act on the defensive, the advantage of position and of making the attack may sometimes be secured by forming in rear of the ground on which we are to fight, and advancing at the moment of action. In mountain warfare the assailant has always the disadvantage ; and even in offensive warfare in the open field, it may frequently be very important, when the artillery is well posted, and any advantage of ground may be secured, to await the enemy and compel him to attack.

1249. The attack should be made with a superior force on the decisive point of the enemy's position, by masking this by false attacks and demonstrations on other points, and by concealing the troops intended for it by the ground, or by other troops in their front.

War (Battles) Service.

1250. Besides the arrangements which depend on the supposed plan of the enemy, the wings must be protected by the ground, or supported by troops in echelon; if the attack of the enemy is repulsed, the offensive must at once be taken, to inspire the troops, to disconcert the enemy, and often to decide the action. In thus taking the offensive, a close column should be pushed rapidly on the wing or flank of the enemy. The divisions of this column form in line of battle successively, and each division moves to the front as soon as formed, in order, by a rapid attack in echelon, to prevent the enemy from changing front or bringing up his reserves. In all arrangements, especially in those for attack, it is most important to conceal the design until the moment of execution, and then to execute it with the greatest rapidity. The night, therefore, is preferred for the movement of troops on the flank or rear of the enemy, otherwise it is necessary to mask their march by a grand movement in front, or by taking a wide circuit.

1251. In making an attack, the communications to the rear and for retreat must be secured, and the General must give beforehand all necessary orders to provide for that event.

1252. When a success is gained, the light troops should pursue the enemy promptly and rapidly, The other troops will restore order in their columns, then advance from position to position, always prepared for an attack or to support the troops engaged.

1253. Before the action, the Generals indicate the places where they will be; if they change position, they give notice of it, or leave a staff officer to show where they have gone.

1254. During the fight the officers and non-commissioned officers keep the men in the ranks, and enforce obedience if necessary. Soldiers must not be permitted to leave the ranks to strip or rob the dead, nor to assist the wounded, unless by express permission, which is only to be given after the action is decided. The highest interest and duty is to win the victory, which only can insure proper care of the wounded.

War (Battles) Service.

1255. Before the action, the Quartermaster of the division makes all the necessary arrangements for the transportation of the wounded. He establishes the ambulance depôts in the rear, and gives his assistants the necessary instruction for the service of the ambulance wagons and other means of removing the wounded

1257. The active ambulances follow the troops engaged to succor the wounded and remove them to the depôts; for this purpose the conductors should always have the necessary assistants, that the soldiers may have no excuse to leave the ranks for that object.

1258. The medical director of the division, after consultation with the Quartermaster-General, distributes the medical officers and hospital attendants at his disposal to the depôts and active ambulances. He will send officers and attendants, when practicable, to the active ambulances, to relieve the wounded who require treatment before being removed from the ground. He will see that the depôts and ambulances are provided with the necessary apparatus, medicines and stores. He will take post and render his professional services at the principal depôt.

1259. If the enemy endanger the depôt, the Quartermaster takes the orders of the General to remove it or to strengthen its guard.

1260. The wounded in the depôts and the sick are removed, as soon as possible, to the hospitals that have been established by the Quartermaster-General of the army on the flanks or rear of the army.

1261. After an action, the officers of ordnance collect the munitions of war left on the field, and make a return of them to the General. The Quartermaster's department collects the rest of the public property captured, and makes the returns to head-quarters.

War (Prisoners of War) Service.

1263. When an officer or soldier deserves mention for conduct in action, a special report shall be made in his case, and the General commanding in chief decides whether to mention him in his report to the government and in his orders. But he shall not be mentioned in the report until he has been mentioned in the orders to the army. These special reports are examined with care by the intermediate Commanders, to verify the facts and secure commendation and rewards to the meritorious only.

1264. The report of battles, which must frequently be made before these special reports of persons are scrutinized, is confined to general praise or blame, and an account of the operations.

PRISONERS OF WAR.

1265. Prisoners of war will be disarmed and sent to the rear, and reported as soon as practicable to the head-quarters. The return of prisoners from the Head-quarters of the Army to the War Department will specify the number, rank and corps.

1266. The private property of prisoners will be duly respected, and each shall be treated with the regard due to his rank. They are to obey the necessary orders given them. They receive for subsistence one ration each, without regard to rank; and the wounded are to be treated with the same care as the wounded of the army. Other allowances to them will depend on conventions with the enemy. Prisoners' horses will be taken for the army.

1267. Exchanges of prisoners and release of officers on parole depend on the orders of the General commanding in chief, under the instructions of government.

War (Convoys and their Escorts) Service.

CONVOYS AND THEIR ESCORTS.

1268. The strength and composition of the escort of a convoy depend on the country, the nature and value of the convoy, and the dangers it may incur. A larger escort is required for a convoy of powder, that the defence may not be near the train.

1269. Cavalry is employed in escorts chiefly to reconnoitre; the proportion is larger as the country is more open.

1271. The Commandant of the escort should receive detailed instructions in writing.

1273. Officers who accompany the convoy, but do not belong to the escort, shall exercise no authority in it except by consent of the Commander. If these officers are junior to the Commander, he may assign them to duty if the defence requires it.

1274. Large convoys are formed into divisions, each with a conductor. The distance between the wagons is four paces. A small party of infantry is attached to each division.

1275. Generally, munitions of war are at the head of the convoy, subsistence next, and then other military stores; the sutler last. But always that part of the convoy which is most important to the army shall be where it is most secure from danger.

1276. The Commandant should send out reconnoitring parties, and never put the convoy in motion until their reports have been received. He always forms an advance and rear guard, and keeps the main body under his immediate order at the most important point, with small guards or posts at other points.

1278. The advance guard precedes the convoy far enough to remove all obstacles to its advance. It examines the woods, defiles and villages, and by mounted men gives information to the Commander, and receives his orders. It reconnoitres places for halts and parks.

1279. If the head of the column is threatened, the advanced guard seizes the defiles and places which the enemy might occupy, and holds them until the main body advances to the front and relieves it; the main body holds the positions until the head of the convoy arrives, and then leaves detachments which are relieved by the parties marching with the divisions; the posts are not abandoned until the whole convoy has passed and the position is no longer important.

1280. When the rear is threatened, like measures are taken; the rear guard defends the ground and retards the enemy by breaking the bridges and blocking the road.

1281. If the flanks are threatened, and the ground is broken, and many defiles are to be passed, the defence of the convoy becomes more difficult; the advance and rear guards must be reduced, the flanks strengthened, and positions which will cover the march of the convoy must be occupied by the main body of the troops before the head of the convoy reaches them, and until it has passed.

1282. If the convoy is large, and has to pass places that the force and position of the enemy make dangerous, the loss of the whole convoy must not be risked; it must pass by divisions, which reunite after the passage. In this case the greater part of the troops guard the first division; they seize the important points, and cover them with light troops, or, if necessary, with small posts, and hold them until all the divisions have passed.

War (Convoys and their Escorts) Service.

1283. If there is artillery in the convoy, the Commander of the escort uses it for the defence.

1284. To move faster and make the defence easier, the wagons move in double file whenever the road allows it. If a wagon breaks, it is at once removed from the road; when repaired, it takes the rear; when it cannot be repaired, its load and horses are distributed to some of the other wagons kept in the rear for that purpose.

1285. Convoys by water are escorted on the same principles. Each boat has a small infantry guard; one portion of the escort precedes or follows the convoy in boats. The cavalry march opposite the convoy; the advance and rear guard move by land, and all are connected by flankers with the convoy. Where a river runs through a narrow valley, the body of the infantry moves by land to prevent the enemy from occupying the heights and disturbing the convoy.

1286. Convoys halt every hour to let the horses take breath and the wagons close up. Long halts are made but seldom, and only in places that have been reconnoitred and found favorable for defence. At night the park is arranged for defence, and in preference at a distance from inhabited places, if in an enemy's country.

1287. The wagons are usually parked in ranks, axle against axle, the poles in the same direction, and with sufficient space between the ranks for the horses. If an attack is feared, they are parked in square, the hind wheels outside and the horses inside.

1288. On the appearance of the enemy during the march, the Commander closes up the wagons and continues his march in order: he avoids fighting; but if the enemy seizes a position that commands his road, he attacks vigorously with the mass of his force, but is not to continue the pursuit far from the convoy. The convoy halts, and resumes the march when the position is carried.

1289. When the enemy is too strong to be attacked, the convoy is parked in square if there is room; if not, closed up in double file; at the front and rear the road is blocked by wagons across it. The drivers are dismounted at the heads of the horses. They are not permitted to make their escape. The light troops keep the enemy at a distance as long as possible, and are supported when necessary, but prudently, as the troops must be kept in hand to resist the main attack.

1290. If a wagon takes fire in the park, remove it if possible; if not, remove first the ammunition wagons, then those to leeward of the fire.

1291. When a whole convoy cannot be saved, the most valuable part may sometimes be by abandoning the rest. If all efforts fail, and there is no hope of success, the convoy must be set on fire and the horses killed that cannot be saved; the escort may then cut its way through.

1292. If the convoy is of prisoners of war, every effort should be made to reach a village or strong building where they may be confined; if forced to fight in the field, the prisoners must be secured and made to lie down until the action is over.

BAGGAGE TRAINS.

1293. The baggage train of general head-quarters and the trains of the several divisions are each under the charge of an officer of the Quartermaster's department. These officers command and conduct the trains under the orders they receive from their respective head-quarters. When the trains of different divisions march together, or the train of a division marches with the train of general head-quarters, the senior Quartermaster directs the whole.

1294. The Regimental Quartermaster has charge of the wagons, horses, equipments, and all means of transport employed in the service of the regiment. Under the orders of the Colonel, he assembles them for the march, and maintains the order and police of the train in park and on the march. On marches, the regimental trains are under the orders of the Quartermaster of the division. When the march is by brigade, the senior Regimental Quartermaster in the brigade, or the Quartermaster of the brigade, has the direction of the whole. The necessary wagon-masters, or non-commissioned officers to act as such, are employed with the several trains.

War (Baggage Trains) Service.

1295. None but the authorized wagons are allowed to march with the train. The wagons of the several head-quarters, the regimental wagons, and the wagons of sutlers authorized by orders from head-quarters to march with the train, are all to be conspicuously marked.

1296. When the train of head-quarters is to have a guard, the strength of the guard is regulated by the General. Generals of brigade guard their trains by the men attached to the train of the first regiment of their brigades. The regimental trains are loaded, unloaded and guarded, as far as practicable, by convalescents and men not effective in the ranks; in the cavalry, by dismounted men. When the guard of a train is the escort for its defence, the regulations in regard to convoys and escorts take effect.

1297. Habitually each division is followed by its train, the regimental trains uniting at the brigade rendezvous. When otherwise, the order for the movement of the divisions, brigades and regiments contains the necessary directions in regard to the assembling and marching of the respective trains. The several trains march in an order analogous to the rank of the Generals, and the order of battle of the troops to which they belong. Trains are not allowed in any case to be in the midst of the troops, or to impede the march of the troops.

1299. The General commanding the army, and the Generals of division, will not permit any general or staff officer, or regiment under their orders, or any person whatsoever, attached to their command, to have more than the authorized amount of the means of transportation. For this purpose they will themselves make, and cause to be made, frequent reviews and inspections of the trains. They will see that no trooper is employed to lead a private horse, no soldier to drive a private vehicle, and that no trooper is put on foot to lend his horse to an officer. They will not permit the wagons of the artillery or of the train to be loaded with anything foreign to their proper service, nor any public horse, for any occasion, to be harnessed to a private carriage.

1300. The officers of the Quartermaster's department, the wagon-masters, and all conductors of trains, are charged with watching that the regulations respecting transportation allowances are strictly observed

GENERAL POLICE.

1301. When necessary, the General-in-Chief or General of division may appoint a prevoist marshal to take charge of prisoners, with a suitable guard, or other police force.

1302. Private servants, not soldiers, will not be allowed to wear the uniform of any corps of the army, but each will be required to carry with him a certificate from the officer who employs him, verified, for regimental officers, by the signature of the Colonel; for other officers under the rank of Colonel, by the chief of their corps or department.

1303. Laundresses permitted to follow the army will be furnished with certificates, signed as in the preceding paragraph, and no woman of bad character will be allowed to follow the army. Other persons with the army, not officers or soldiers, such as guides of the country, interpreters, &c., will carry about them similar certificates from the head-quarters that employs them.

1304. Deserters from the enemy, after being examined, will be secured for some days, as they may be spies in disguise; as opportunities offer, they will be sent to the rear; after which, if they are found lurking about the army, or attempting to return to the enemy, they will be treated with severity.

1305. The arms and accoutrements of deserters will be turned over to the Ordnance department, and their horses to the corps in want of them, after being branded with the letters "U. S." The compensation to be accorded to deserters, for such objects, will be according to appraisement, made under the direction of the Quartermaster's department. The enlistment of deserters, without express permission from general head-quarters, is prohibited.

1306. It is forbidden to purchase horses without ascertaining the right of the party to sell. Stolen horses shall be restored. Estrays, in the enemy's country, when the owner is not discovered, are taken for the army.

1307. Plundering and marauding, at all times disgraceful to soldiers, when committed on the persons or property of those whom it is the duty of the army to protect, become crimes of such enormity as to admit of no remission of the awful punishment which the military law awards against offences of this nature.

SAFEGUARDS.

1308. Safeguards are protections granted to persons or property in foreign parts by the Commanding General, or by other Commanders within the limits of their command.

1309. Safeguards are usually given to protect hospitals, public establishments, establishments of religion, charity or instruction, museums, depositories of the arts, mills, post-offices, and other institutions of public benefit; also to individuals whom it may be the interest of the army to respect.

1310. A safeguard may consist of one or more men of fidelity and firmness, generally non-effective non-commissioned officers, furnished with a paper setting out clearly the protection and exemptions it is intended to secure, signed by the Commander giving it, and his staff officer; or it may consist of such paper, delivered to the party whose person, family, house and property it is designed to protect. These safeguards must be numbered and registered.

1311. The men left as safeguards by one corps may be replaced by another. They are withdrawn when the country is evacuated; but if not, they have orders to await the arrival of the enemy's troops, and apply to the Commander for a safe-conduct to the outposts.

Siege's.

1312. Form of a safeguard:

By authority of ————.

B———, or to the college, mills or property; stating precisely the place, nature and description of the person, property or buildings]. All officers and soldiers belonging to the army of the United States are therefore commanded to respect this safeguard, and to afford, if necessary, protection to [the person, family or property of ————, as the case may be].

" Whosoever belonging to the armies of the United States, employed in foreign parts, shall force a safeguard, shall suffer death.

SIEGES.

1313. In the following regulations the besieging force is supposed to be two divisions of infantry and a brigade of cavalry. The same principles govern in other cases.

1314. The Brigadier-Generals of infantry serve, in turn, as Generals of the trenches; one or more of them are detailed daily, according to the front and number of attacks; they superintend the operations, and dispose the guards of the trenches to repulse sorties and protect the works. Officers of the general staff are assigned to them to transmit their orders and attend to the details of service.

1315. The Colonels and Lieutenant-Colonels of infantry alternate for duty in the trenches; one or more are detailed daily; they superintend the service of the guards and workmen in the part of the work to which the General of the trenches assigns them, being posted with troops of their own regiments in preference. The Commandant of the siege may place the Colonels on the roster with the Brigadier-Generals.

Siege.

1316. The Commandants of engineers and artillery accompany the first troops before the place to examine the works and the approaches. When the engineers have completed the reconnoissance of the works, and of each front as far as practicable, the Commandant of engineers makes a plan of the works as exact and detailed as possible, and, under the instructions of the General commanding the siege, draws up the general plan of the siege, and discusses it with the Commandant of artillery in regard to the best employment of that arm. These officers then submit their joint or separate opinions to the General, who decides on the plan of the siege, and gives the orders for the execution. The Commandant of engineers directs the construction of all the works of siege, under the authority of the General, and lays before him every day a report of his operations, and a plan showing the progress of the attack. The Commandant of artillery also makes daily reports to the General of all that relates to his branch of the service.

1317. The Quartermaster-General establishes the hospitals, and organizes the means for transporting the wounded to them.

1318. The Commanding General appoints a field officer of the trenches, who is aided by one or two Captains or Lieutenants.

1319. The field officer of the trenches is charged with all the details relative to the assembling of the guards and the workmen. He distributes the guards on the different points of the attack, agreeably to the orders of the General of the trenches, and forms the detachments of workmen for the engineers and artillery; that he may be prepared for this distribution, he receives every day from the Adjutant-General a statement of the details for the next day.

1320. On the arrival of the General of the trenches, the field officer of the trenches gives him all the information necessary to enable him to station the troops, attends him in his visit to the trenches, and takes his orders on the changes to be made in the position of the troops. The execution is intrusted to the Commandants of the troops.

Sieges.

1321. The field officer of the trenches sees that men and litters are always ready to bring off the wounded. One or more companies of the guards of the trenches are put under his immediate orders for the preservation of order and police in the trenches.

1323. The infantry has two kinds of siege-service: the guard of the trenches and the work of the trenches.

1324. The guards of the trenches mount every day by battalions, in such order of detail that all the troops may take an equal share, and no part of the line be left too weak. If only one battalion is required, each division furnishes it alternately; if two are required, each division gives one; if three, one division furnishes two, the other one alternately. The two battalions of the same division are not taken from the same brigade.

1325. The detail for work of the trenches is by company, from all the regiments at one time, or in turn, and continues generally twelve hours. The detail from any regiment should never be less than a company. If only half a company would be needed from all the regiments at a time, every other regiment furnishes a full company alternately.

1327. Twenty-four hours, or twelve at least, before mounting guard in the trenches, the battalions detailed for guard do not furnish workmen; and the companies of these battalions whose tour it would have been to work in the trenches, do not go there for twenty-four hours after guard, if possible, or at the least twelve.

1328. The workmen who are required for other work than that of the trenches are taken from the roster for fatigue from the battalions and companies not employed in the trenches.

Sieges.

1329. The battalions first for detail for guard of the trenches, and the companies first for detail for work in the trenches, furnish no other details, and are held on picket, ready to march at the call of the field officer of the trenches.

1330. Materials for the siege, such as fascines, gabions, hurdles pickets, &c., are furnished by the different corps, in the proportion ordered by the General.

1331. Guards and workmen going to the trenches march without beat of drum or music.

1332. At all times, and especially on the day the trenches are opened everything is avoided likely to attract the attention of the enemy. With this view the General may vary the hour of relieving guards.

1333. The chiefs of engineers and artillery make requisitions for workmen in advance, that the details may be made in time to prevent any delay in the work. They should exceed the number strictly required, that there may be a reserve for unforeseen wants. If this reserve is found insufficient, the General directs the field officer of the trenches to call on the picket.

1334. Before the guards and workmen march, the field officer of the trenches arranges them so that each detachment can reach its ground without confusion. The troops are posted in the trenches according to the position of their regiments in the order of battle, and, as far as possible, the companies of workmen in like order. The reserves of workmen are placed at the dépôt of the trenches, or the nearest suitable place to the works.

1335. The workmen leave their knapsacks and swords in camp, and march with their firearms and cartridge-boxes, which they place near them while at work. They always carry their overcoats, to cover them in resting or when wounded.

1336. The guards always enter the trenches with arms trailed, and the workmen also, unless they carry materials or tools, when the arms are in the sling.

Sieges.

1337. The guards and detachments of workmen send a corporal to the openings of the trenches to guide the relief. They march out of the trenches by the flank, with trailed arms.

1339. When detachments are placed at night in advance of the trenches, to cover the workmen, the men sit or lie down, with their firearms in their hands, to hide themselves better from the enemy; the sentinels put their ears to the ground frequently, that they may hear troops coming out of the place. To prevent mistakes, the workmen are told what troops cover them.

1340. No honors are paid in the trenches. When the General commanding the siege visits them, the guards place themselves in rear of the banquette, and rest on their arms. The colors are never carried to the trenches unless the whole regiment marches to repulse a sortie or make an assault. Even in this case they are not displayed until the General commanding the siege gives a formal order.

1341. The materials of the siege of all kinds, together with the tools, are collected in part at the dépôts of the trenches, and in part at the openings of the trenches, or in such other place as has been appointed for the convenience of the service by the field officer of the trenches, on the advice of the chiefs of artillery and engineers. They are in charge of officers of engineers and of artillery, with guards or non-commissioned officers of both corps. But if these corps cannot furnish them, the chiefs apply for assistance from the infantry.

1342. The workmen, in going to the trenches, carry such tools and materials as are required by the artillery and engineers. In this case, the field officer of the trenches has notice and superintends it.

1343. The soldiers sent to the trenches go with their cartridge-boxes filled. Cartridges, when needed, are sent to the trenches on the requisition of Commanders of battalions, approved by the General of the trenches.

1344. In the case of a sortie, the guards move rapidly to the places that have been designated by the General of the trenches, and which afford the best defence for the head of the works, the batteries, the communications, or the flanks, or best enable them to take the sortie itself in flank or reverse. Having lined the banquette to fire on the enemy, the troops form on the reverse of the trench to receive him. The workmen take arms, retain their positions, or retire with their tools as ordered. The officers commanding the detachments of workmen see that their movements are made promptly and in good order, so as to avoid all confusion in the communications.

1345. The troops that advance beyond the trenches to repulse the sortie must not follow in pursuit. The General takes care that they return to the trenches before the retreat of the sortie allows the artillery of the place to open on them. When the workmen return, the officers and non-commissioned officers of the detachments call the roll without interrupting the work, which is immediately resumed.

1347. Men belonging to the cavalry may, in assaults, be employed in carrying fascines and other materials to fill ditches and make passages.

1348. The general officers of cavalry are more particularly employed in the service of posts and detachments placed in observation to protect the siege. They and the field officers of this arm are employed in the command of escorts to convoys, of whatever arms the escorts may be composed. When these duties are not sufficient to employ them, they take their share of the duty of the trenches.

1349. The officers of engineers and artillery of the trenches make to the General of the trenches a return of all losses in their troops, and such other reports on the work as he requires, in addition to the reports direct to their respective chiefs on the details of the service

Sieges.

1350. At the end of each tour, the field officer of the trenches draws up a report for the twenty-four hours to the General of the trenches. The General of the trenches reports to the General commanding the siege.

1351. The Commanders of the several corps in the trenches report, when relieved, to their respective head-quarters the losses during the tour, and the conduct of the officers and men.

1352. However practicable the breach may appear, or however ruined the works in rear of it, the heads of columns must always be supplied with ladders to get over unexpected obstacles.

1354. The General designates the places requiring particular protection, such as churches, asylums, hospitals, colleges, schools and magazines. The order for their protection should remind the soldiers, at the time, of the penalty of disobeying it.

1355. Whether the place be taken by assault or by capitulation, the provisions and military stores, and the public funds, are reserved for the use of the army.

1357. The Commander of the artillery will keep a daily journal of the operations under his direction, showing: the number and kind of pieces in battery, the force employed in serving them, the kind and quantity of ammunition expended, the number of rounds fired from each piece of ordnance, the effect of the fire, and all other particulars relative to his branch of the service.

Defence of Fortified Places.

1358. These journals and drawings will be sent, after the siege, with the report of the General, to the War Department.

DEFENCE OF FORTIFIED PLACES.

1359. In war, every Commander of a fortified place shall always hold himself prepared with his plan of defence, as if at any time liable to attack. He arranges this plan according to the probable mode of attack; determines the posts of the troops in the several parts of the works, the reliefs, the reserves, and the details of service in all the corps. He draws up instructions for a case of attack, and exercises the garrison according to his plan of defence. In sea-coast works, he provides the instructions for the different batteries on the approach of ships.

1360. In framing his plan, he studies the works and the exterior within the radius of attack and investment, the strength of the garrison, the artillery, the munitions of war, subsistence and supplies of all kinds, and takes immediate measures to procure whatever is deficient of troops or supplies, either by requisition on the government or from the means put at his disposal.

1361. On the approach of an enemy, he removes all houses and other objects, within or without the place, that cover the approaches, or interrupt the fire of the guns or the movements of the troops. He assures himself personally that all posterns, outlets, embrasures, &c., are in a proper state of security.

1362. He shall be furnished by the Department of War with a plan of the works, showing all the details of the fortifications and of the exterior within the radius of attack; with a map of the environs within the radius of investment; with a map of the vicinity, including the neighboring works, roads, water-channels, coasts, &c.; with a memoir explaining the situation and defence of the place, and the relations and bearings of the several works on each other, and on the approaches by land and water; all which he carefully preserves, and communicates only to the council of defence.

Defence of Fortified Places.

1363. He consults his next in rank, and the senior officer of the engineers and of the artillery, either separately or as a council of defence. In the latter case he designates an officer to act as secretary to the council, and to record their proceedings and their joint or separate opinions, which are to be kept secret during the siege. The members may record their opinions under their own signature. In all cases, the Commander decides on his own responsibility.

1364. The Commander of the place, and the chiefs of engineers and of artillery, shall keep journals of the defence, in which shall be entered, in order of date, without blank or interlineation, the orders given or received, the manner in which they are executed, their results, and every event and circumstance of importance in the progress of the defence. These journals and the proceedings of the council of defence shall be sent, after the siege, to the Department of War.

1365. There shall be kept in the office of the Commandant of the place, to be sent, after the siege, to the Department of War, a map of the environs, a plan of the fortifications, and a special plan of the front of attack, on which the chief engineer will trace, in succession, the positions occupied, and the works executed by the enemy from the investment; and also the works of counter approach or defence, and the successive positions of the artillery and other troops of the garrison during the progress of the siege.

1366. The Commander shall defend, in succession, the advanced works, the covered way and outworks, the body of the work, and the interior intrenchments. He will not be content with clearing away the foot of the breaches, and defending them by abattis, mines, and all the means used in sieges; but he shall begin in good time, behind the bastions or front of attack, the necessary intrenchments to resist assaults on the main work.

1367. He shall use his means of defence in such manner as always to have a reserve of fresh troops, chosen from his best soldiers, to resist assaults, retake the outworks, and especially to resist the assaults on the body of the place; and a reserve of provisions for the last period of the siege, and of ammunition for the last attacks.

1368. He must, in every case, compel the besieging force to approach by the slow and successive works of siege, and must sustain at least one assault on a practicable breach in the body of the place.

1369. When the Commander thinks that the end of the defence has come, he shall still consult the council of defence on the means that may remain to prolong the siege. But in all cases he alone will decide on the time, manner and terms of the surrender. In the capitulation, he shall not seek or accept better terms for himself than for the garrison, but shall share their fate, and exert his best endeavors for the care of the troops, and especially of the sick and wounded.

1370. No Commander, in the field, shall withdraw troops or supplies from any fortified place, or exercise any authority over its Commandant, unless it has been put subject to his orders by competent authority.

ARTICLE XLVII.

UNIFORM AND DRESS OF THE MILITARY FORCES OF THE STATE OF NEW-YORK.

COAT FOR A COMMISSIONED OFFICER.

1371. All officers shall wear a frock coat of dark blue cloth, the waist to extend to the top of the hip, and the skirt to within one inch of the bend of the knee; single breasted for Captains and Lieutenants; double breasted for all other grades.

1541. Major-Generals or Brigadier-Generals, in their respective divisions or brigades, on application, may by order authorize plain white linen or cotton pantaloons, for the company officers, non-commissioned officers and privates of any particular corps, in place of those directed by this order. Such order must, however, include the whole of any such corps which ordinarily parades together in one body; and if it extend to a regiment it may also include the field and staff officers of the same.

1542. No ornament indicative of rank or grade shall be worn, other than as prescribed in the foregoing regulations.

1543. General and staff officers, and the officers and soldiers of the engineers, are required to uniform and equip in strict accordance with the foregoing regulations.

1544. 1553. In regiments for which a regimental uniform shall be prescribed, the officers and companies, which are affected by the adoption of such uniform, shall uniform and equip themselves, agreeably to such uniform, in six months after its approval by the Commander-in-Chief.

1554. All battalion companies, and companies doing duty as battalion companies, hereafter coming into a regiment, shall strictly equip agreeably to the uniform of such regiment.

1555. Manual of Arms.

MANUAL OF ARMS FOR THE LIGHT INFANTRY, WHEN THE LONG BARREL MUSKET OR RIFLE MUSKET IS USED.

Principles of Shouldered Arms.

1568. The piece in the right hand, the right arm slightly bent, the barrel nearly vertical and resting in the hollow of the shoulder, the guard to the front, the arm hanging nearly at its full length near the body; the thumb and fore-finger embracing the guard, the remaining fingers closed together, and grasping the swell of the stock just under the cock, which rests on the little finger.

1569. Recruits are frequently seen with natural defects in the conformation of the shoulders, breast and hips. These the instructor will labor to correct in the lessons without arms, and afterwards, by steady endeavors, so that the appearance of the pieces, in the same line, may be uniform, and this without constraint to the men in their positions.

1570. The instructor will have occasion to remark that recruits, on first bearing arms, are liable to derange their position by lowering the right shoulder and the right hand, or by sinking the hip and spreading out the elbows.

1571. He will be careful to correct all these faults by continually rectifying the position; he will sometimes take away the piece to replace it the better; he will avoid fatiguing the recruits too much in the beginning, but labor by degrees to render this position so natural and easy that they may remain in it a long time without fatigue.

1572. Finally, the instructor will take great care that the piece, at a shoulder, be not carried too high nor too low: if too high, the right elbow would spread out, the soldier would occupy too much space in his rank, and the piece be made to waver; if too low, the files would be too much closed, the soldier would not have the necessary space to handle his piece with facility, the right arm would become too much fatigued, and would draw down the shoulder.

Manual of Arms.

1573. The manual of arms will be taught to four men, placed, at first, in one rank, elbow to elbow, and afterwards in two ranks.

1574. Each command will be executed in one time (or pause), but this time will be divided into motions, the better to make known the mechanism.

1576. As the motions relative to the cartridge, to the rammer, and to the fixing and unfixing of the bayonet, cannot be executed at the rate prescribed, nor even with a uniform swiftness, they will not be subjected to that cadence. The instructor will, however, labor to cause these motions to be executed with promptness, and, above all, with regularity.

1577. The last syllable of the command will decide the brisk execution of the first motion of each time (or pause). The commands two, three and four will decide the brisk execution of the other motions. As soon as the recruits shall well comprehend the positions of the several motions of a time, they will be taught to execute the time without resting on its different motions; the mechanism of the time will nevertheless be observed, as well to give a perfect use of the piece, as to avoid the sinking of, or slurring over, either of the motions.

1578. The manual of arms will be taught in the following progression. The instructor will command:

Support — Arms.

ONE TIME AND THREE MOTIONS.

1579. First motion.—Bring the piece, with the right hand, perpendicularly to the front and between the eyes, the barrel to the rear;

Third motion. — Drop the right hand by the side.

1580. When the instructor may wish to give repose in this position, he will command :

Rest

1581. At this command, the recruits will bring up smartly the right hand to the handle of the piece (small of the stock), when they will not be required to preserve silence or steadiness of position.

1582. When the instructor may wish the recruits to pass from this position to that of silence and steadiness, he will command :

MISCELLANEOUS.

REVIEWS.

1648. In passing in review in common time, when there are more than two battalions to be reviewed together, the band of the first battalion will begin to play at the command to march, and at the same time the field music of the succeeding battalions will beat the time of the step. When the first battalion has passed the reviewing officer, and its band has ceased to play, the band of the next succeeding battalion will commence to play, and will wheel to the left out of the column, and occupy the place which the band of the first battalion has left, as prescribed in paragraph 393. The field music of the battalions will continue in column, but will successively cease beating when the bands of the respective battalions commence to play. When the band ceases and follows its battalion, the field music of the battalion will again resume the beat of the step, and the band will pass to its position at the head of the battalion. The bands and field music of the remaining battalions will conform to these requirements.

1649. If there be only field music with the battalions, such music will wheel out of the column and play opposite to the reviewing officer, according to and follow the directions for the music in paragraph 393.

1650. When several battalions are to pass in review in quick time, after passing in common time, the band of the last battalion, after the battalion has passed the reviewing officer, will cease playing and will pass to the head of the battalion. If there be only field music with the last battalion, it will conform to what is prescribed for the band.

1651. Inspecting officers, while acting as such, at inspections, are entitled to a review, provided they are of the rank of field officers.

1652. When the reviewing personage is junior to the officer in command of the parade, the review will take place in every particular as prescribed in these regulations, excepting that the compliment of officers and troops saluting, trumpets sounding, drums beating and colors dropping will be omitted; the band, however, will play as prescribed.

TO SALUTE WITH THE SWORD OR SABRE.

Three times (or pauses).

1654. One. At the distance of six paces from the person to be saluted, raise the sword or sabre perpendicularly, the point up, the flat of the blade opposite to the right eye, the guard at the height of the shoulder, the elbow supported on the body.

Two. Drop the point of the sword or sabre by extending the arm, so that the right hand may be brought to the side of the right thigh, and remain in that position until the person to whom the salute is rendered shall be passed, or shall have passed, six paces.

Three. Raise the sword or sabre smartly, and place the back of the blade against the right shoulder.

COLOR SALUTE.

1655. In the ranks, the color bearer, whether at a halt or in march, will always carry the heel of the color-lance supported at the right hip, the right hand generally placed on the lance at the height of the shoulder, to hold it steady. When the color has to render honors, the color-bearer will salute as follows:

At the distance of six paces slip the right hand along the lance to the height of the eye; lower the lance by straightening the arm to its full extent, the heel of the lance remaining at the hip, and bring back the lance to the habitual position when the person saluted shall be passed, or shall have passed, six paces.

OFFICES OF COMMANDS IN CITIES, WHEN VACATED BY REMOVAL.

1656. Officers having command in any of the cities of this state shall be deemed to have vacated their office by removing from such city, provided the whole of the command of any such officer was located in the same, except as otherwise provided by law.

APPENDIX.

REGULATIONS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES, WITH REGARD TO THE MILITIA IN THE SERVICE OF THE UNITED STATES.

Whenever volunteer or drafted militia are called into the service of the United States, by any officer authorized to make such call, the requisition must be made on the Governor of the state or territory in which the militia are to be raised, and the number of officers, non-commissioned officers, and privates will be stated in the requisition, according to the organization prescribed by the law of the United States.

Before militia are received in the service of the United States, they shall be mustered by an Inspector-General, or some other officer of the regular army, specially designated to muster them.

It shall be the duty of the officer designated to muster and inspect militia, to forward muster-rolls of each company, and of the field and staff of each regiment, direct, to the Adjutant-General of the army, Washington; and he will also immediately forward a consolidated return, by regiments and corps, of the force received into service, for the information of the War Department.

MUSTERING IN.

Reference will be made to the particular act or acts of congress under which the militia are called into service. If there be no such act, then to the act May 8, 1792, amended by the acts, April 18, 1814, and April 20, 1816. Mustering officers will not muster into service a greater number of officers, or of higher rank than the law prescribes. No officers of the general staff will be mustered or received into service, except such general officers, with their aides-de-camp, as may be required to complete the organization of brigades or divisions.

MUSTERING OUT.

The rolls for this purpose will be compared with those of the first muster. All persons on the first rolls, and absent at the final muster, must be accounted for, whether dead, captured, discharged, or otherwise absent; and if the mustering officer, in any particular case, shall have cause to doubt the report made to be entered on the rolls, he shall demand the oath of one or more persons to prove the fact to his satisfaction; further, he shall take care that not more persons of the several ranks be mustered out of service than were mustered in, if there be an excess over the requisition or beyond the law, nor recognize additions or substitutes, without full satisfaction that the additions or substitutions were regularly made, and at the time reported on the rolls.

Officers charged with the duty of mustering militia will take care that the muster-rolls contain all the information that may in any way affect their pay; the distance from the places of residence to the place of rendezvous or organization, and the date of arrival, must be stated in each case; the date and place of discharge, and the distance thence to the place of residence; all stoppages for articles furnished by the government must be noted on the rolls; and in cases of absence at the time of discharge of the company, the cause of absence must be stated. When the necessary information cannot be obtained, the mustering officer will state the reason.

If, as has sometimes happened, militia, at the end of a term of service, shall, from the want of a mustering officer, disperse or return home without being regularly mustered out; and if, with a view to a payment, a muster shall afterward be ordered by competent authority, the officer sent for the purpose shall carefully verify all the facts affecting pay, by the oath of one or more of the officers belonging to such militia, in order that full justice may be done.

In all cases of muster for payment, whether final or otherwise, the mustering officer will give his particular attention to the state and condition of the public property: such as quarters, camp-equipage, means of transportation, arms, accoutrements, ammunition, &c., which have been in the use or possession of the militia to be paid; and if any such public property shall appear to be damaged, or lost, beyond ordinary wear or unavoidable accident, such loss or damage shall be noted on the muster-rolls, in order that the injury or loss sustained by the United States may be stopped from the pay that would otherwise be due to the individual or detachment mustered for payment. (See regulations of the Ordnance Department.) This provision shall be read to all detachments of militia on being mustered into service, and as much oftener as may be deemed necessary.

Payments will, in all cases, be made by the Paymasters of the regular army.

ARTICLES OF WAR.

AN ACT FOR ESTABLISHING RULES AND ARTICLES FOR THE GOVERNMENT OF THE ARMIES OF THE UNITED STATES.*

The following, the Articles of War, will be observed by the state troops only when called into the service of the United States.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That, from and after the passing of this act, the following shall be the rules and articles by which the armies of the United States shall be governed:

ARTICLE 1. Every officer now in the army of the United States shall, in six months from the passing of this act, and every officer who shall hereafter be appointed shall, before he enters on the duties of his office, subscribe these rules and regulations.

ART 2. It is earnestly recommended to all officers and soldiers diligently to attend divine service; and all officers who shall behave indecently or irreverently at any place of divine worship shall, if commissioned officers, be brought before a general court-martial, there to be publicly and severely reprimanded by the president; if non-commissioned officers or soldiers, every person so offending shall, for his first offence, forfeit one-sixth of a dollar, to be deducted out of his next pay; for the second offence, he shall not only forfeit a like sum, but be confined twenty-four hours; and for every like offence, shall suffer and pay in like manner; which money, so forfeited, shall be applied, by the captain or senior officer of the troop or company, to the use of the sick soldiers of the company or troop to which the offender belongs.

ART. 3. Any non-commissioned officer or soldier who shall use any profane oath or execration, shall incur the penalties expressed in the foregoing article; and a commissioned officer shall forfeit and pay, for each and every such offence, one dollar, to be applied as in the preceding article.

ART. 4. Every chaplain commissioned in the army or armies of the United States, who shall absent himself from the duties assigned him (excepting in cases of sickness or leave of absence), shall, on conviction thereof before a court martial, be fined not exceeding one month's pay, besides the loss of his pay during his absence; or be discharged, as the said court-martial shall judge proper.

ART. 5. Any officer or soldier who shall use contemptuous or disrespectful words against the President of the United States, against the Vice-President thereof, against the Congress of the United States, or against the chief magistrate or legislature of any of the United States, in which he may be quartered, if a commissioned officer, shall be cashiered, or otherwise punished, as a court martial shall direct; if a non-commissioned officer or soldier, he shall suffer such punishment as shall be inflicted on him by the sentence of a court-martial.

ART. 6. Any officer or soldier who shall behave himself with contempt or disrespect toward his Commanding Officer, shall be punished, according to the nature of his offence, by the judgment of a court-martial.

ART. 7. Any officer or soldier who shall begin, excite, cause, or join in, any mutiny or sedition, in any troop or company in the service of the United States, or in any party, post, detachment, or guard, shall suffer death, or such other punishment as by a court martial shall be inflicted.

ART. 8. Any officer, non-commissioned officer, or soldier, who, being present at any mutiny or sedition, does not use his utmost endeavor to suppress the same, or coming to the knowledge of any intended mutiny, does not, without delay, give information thereof to his Commanding Officer, shall be punished by the sentence of a court-martial with death, or otherwise, according to the nature of his offence.

ART. 9. Any officer or soldier who shall strike his superior officer, or draw or lift up any weapon, or offer any violence against him, being in the execution of his office, on any pretence whatsoever, or shall disobey any lawful command of his superior officer, shall suffer death, or such other punishment as shall according to the nature of his offence, be inflicted upon him by the sentence of a court-martial.

ART. 10. Every non-commissioned officer or soldier, who shall enlist himself in the service of the United States, shall, at the time of his so enlisting, or within six days afterward, have the articles for the government of the armies of the United States read to him, and shall, by the officer who enlisted him, or by the Commanding Officer of the troop or company into which he was enlisted, be taken before the next justice of the peace, or chief magistrate of any city or town corporate, not being an officer of the army, or where recourse cannot be had to the civil magistrate, before the judge advocate, and in his presence shall take the following oath or affirmation: "I, A. B., do solemnly swear or affirm (as the case may be), that I will bear true allegiance to the United States of America, and that I will serve them honestly and faithfully against all their enemies or opposers whatsoever; and observe and obey the orders of the President of the United States, and the orders of the officers appointed over me, according to the rules and articles for the government of the armies of the United States." Which justice, magistrate, or judge advocate is to give to the officer a certificate, signifying that the man enlisted did take the said oath or affirmation.

ART. 11. After a non-commissioned officer or soldier shall have been duly enlisted and sworn, he shall not be dismissed the service without a discharge in writing; and no discharge granted to him shall be sufficient which is not signed by a Field Officer of the regiment to which he belongs, or Commanding Officer where no Field Officer of the regiment is present; and no discharge shall be given to a non-commissioned officer or soldier before his term of service has expired, but by order of the President, the Secretary of War, the Commanding Officer of a department, or the sentence of a general court-martial, nor shall a commissioned officer be discharged the service but by order of the President of the United States, or by sentence of a general court-martial.

ART. 12. Every Colonel, or other officer commanding a regiment, troop, or company, and actually quartered with it, may give furloughs to non-commissioned officers or soldiers, in such numbers, and for so long a time, as he shall judge to be most consistent with the good of the service; and a captain, or other inferior officer, commanding a troop or company, or in any garrison, fort, or barrack of the United States (his field officer being absent), may give furloughs to non-commissioned officers or soldiers, for a time not exceeding twenty days in six months, but not to more than two persons to be absent at the same time, excepting some extraordinary occasion should require it.

ART. 13. At every muster, the Commanding Officer of each regiment, troop, or company, there present, shall give to the commissary of musters, or other officer who musters the said regiment, troop, or company, certificates signed by himself, signifying how long such officers, as shall not appear at the said muster, have been absent, and the reason of their absence. In like manner, the Commanding Officer of every troop or company shall give certificates signifying the reasons of the absence of the non-commissioned officers and private soldiers; which reasons and time of absence shall be inserted in the muster-rolls, opposite the names of the respective absent officers and soldiers. The certificates shall, together with the muster-rolls, be remitted by the commissary of musters, or other officer mustering, to the department of war. as speedily as the distance of the place will admit.

Any commissary of musters, or other officer, who shall be convicted of having taken money, or other thing, by way of gratification, on mustering any regiment, troop, or company, or on signing muster-rolls, shall be displaced from his office, and shall be thereby utterly disabled to have or hold any office or employment in the service of the United States.

carried into execution until after the whole proceedings shall have been laid before the officer ordering the same, or the officer commanding the troops for the time being; neither shall any sentence of a general court-martial, in the time of peace, extending to the loss of life, or the dismissal of a commissioned officer, or which shall, either in time of peace or war, respect a general officer, be carried into execution until after the whole proceedings shall have been transmitted to the secretary of war, to be laid before the President of the United States for his confirmation or disapproval, and orders in the case. All other sentences may be confirmed and executed by the officer ordering the court to assemble, or the Commanding Officer for the time being, as the case may be.

ART. 66. Every officer commanding a regiment or corps may appoint, for his own regiment or corps, courts-martial, to consist of three commissioned officers, for the trial and punishment of offences not capital, and decide upon their sentences. ART. 67. No garrison or regimental court-martial shall have the power to try capital cases or commissioned officers; neither shall they inflict a fine exceeding one month's pay; nor imprison, nor put to hard labor, any non-commissioned officer or soldier for a longer time than one month.

ART. 68. Whenever it may be found convenient and necessary to the public service, the officers of the marines shall be associated with the officers of the land forces, for the purpose of holding courts-martial and trying offenders belonging to either; and, in such cases, the orders of the senior officer of either corps, who may be present and duly authorized, shall be received and obeyed.

ART. 69. The Judge-Advocate, or some person deputed by him, or by the General, or officer commanding the army, detachment or garrison, shall prosecute in the name of the United States, but shall so far consider himself as counsel for the prisoner, after the said prisoner shall have made his plea, as to object to any leading question to any of the witnesses, or any question to the prisoner, the answer to which might tend to criminate himself; and administer to each member of the court, before they proceed upon any trial, the following oath, which shall also be taken by all members of the regimental and garrison courts-martial :

“ You, A. B., do swear that you will well and truly try and determine, according to evidence, the matter now before you, between the United States of America and the prisoner to be tried, and that you will duly administer justice, according to the provisions of ‘An act establishing rules and articles for the government of the armies of the United States,’ without partiality, favor or affection; and if any doubt should arise, not explained by said articles, according to your conscience, the best of your understanding and the custom of war in like cases; and you do further swear that you will not divulge the sentence of the court until it shall be published by the proper authority; neither will you disclose or discover the vote or opinion of any particular member of the court-martial, unless required to give evidence thereof, as a witness, by a court of justice, in a due course of law. So help you God.”

And as soon as the said oath shall have been administered to the respective members, the President of the court shall administer to the Judge-Advocate, or person officiating as such, an oath in the following words :

“ You, A. B., do swear that you will not disclose or discover the vote or opinion of any particular member of the court-martial, unless required to give evidence thereof, as a witness, by a court of justice, in due course of law; nor divulge the sentence of the court to any but the proper authority, until it shall be duly disclosed by the same. So help you God.”

ART. 70. When a prisoner, arraigned before a general court-martial, shall, from obstinacy and deliberate design, stand mute, or answer foreign to the purpose, the court may proceed to trial and judgment as if the prisoner had regularly pleaded not guilty.

ART. 71. When a member shall be challenged by a prisoner, he must state his cause of challenge, of which the court shall, after due deliberation, determine the relevancy or validity, and decide accordingly; and no challenge to more than one member at a time shall be received by the court.

ART. 72. All the members of a court-martial are to behave with decency and calmness; and in giving their votes are to begin with the youngest in commission.

ART. 73. All persons who give evidence before a court-martial are to be examined on oath or affirmation, in the following form :

“ You swear (or affirm, as the case may be), the evidence you shall give in the cause now in hearing shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. So help you God.”

ART. 74. On the trials of cases not capital, before courts-martial, the deposition of witnesses, not in the line or staff of the army, may be taken before some justice of the peace, and read in evidence; provided the prosecutor and person accused are present at the taking the same, or are duly notified thereof.

ART. 75. No officer shall be tried but by a general court-martial, nor by officers of an inferior rank, if it can be avoided. Nor shall any proceedings of trials be carried on excepting between the hours of eight in the morning and three in the afternoon, excepting in cases which, in the opinion of the officer appointing the court-martial, require immediate example.

ART. 76. No person whatsoever shall use any menacing words, signs, or gestures, in presence of a court-martial, or shall cause any disorder or riot, or disturb their proceedings, on the penalty of being punished at the discretion of the said court-martial.

ART. 77. Whenever any officer shall be charged with a crime, he shall be arrested and confined in his barracks, quarters or tent, and deprived of his sword by the Commanding Officer. And any officer who shall leave his confinement before he shall be set at liberty by his Commanding Officer, or by a superior officer, shall be cashiered.

ART. 78. Non-commissioned officers and soldiers, charged with crimes, shall be confined until tried by a court-martial or released by proper authority.

ART. 79. No officer or soldier who shall be put in arrest shall continue in confinement more than eight days, or until such time as a court-martial can be assembled.

ART. 80. No officer commanding a guard, or provost marshal, shall refuse to receive or keep any prisoner committed to his charge by an officer belonging to the forces of the United States; provided the officer committing shall, at the same time, deliver an account in writing, signed by himself, of the crime with which the said prisoner is charged.

ART. 81. No officer commanding a guard, or provost marshal, shall presume to release any person committed to his charge without proper authority for so doing, nor shall he suffer any person to escape, on the penalty of being punished for it by the sentence of a court-martial.

ART. 82. Every officer or provost marshal, to whose charge prisoners shall be committed, shall, within twenty-four hours after such commitment, or as soon as he shall be relieved from his guard, make report in writing, to the Commanding Officer, of their names, their crimes, and the names of the officers who committed them, on the penalty of being punished for disobedience or neglect, at the discretion of a court-martial.

ART. 83. Any commissioned officer, convicted before a general court-martial of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, shall be dismissed the service.

ART. 84. In cases where a court-martial may think it proper to sentence a commissioned officer to be suspended from command, they shall have power also to suspend his pay and emoluments for the same time, according to the nature and heinousness of the offence.

ART. 85. In all cases where a commissioned officer is cashiered for cowardice or fraud, it shall be added, in the sentence, that the crime, name, and place of abode, and punishment of the delinquent, be published in the newspapers in and about the camp, and of the particular state from which the offender came, or where he usually resides; after which it shall be deemed scandalous for an officer to associate with him.

ART. 86. The Commanding Officer of any post or detachment, in which there shall not be a number of officers adequate to form a general court-martial, shall, in cases which require the cognizance of such a court, report to the Commanding Officer of the department, who shall order a court to be assembled at the nearest post or department, and the party accused, with necessary witnesses, to be transported to the place where the said court shall be assembled.

ART. 87.* No person shall be sentenced to suffer death but by the concurrence of two-thirds of the members of a general court-martial, nor except in the cases herein expressly mentioned; nor shall more than fifty lashes be inflicted on any offender, at the discretion of a court-martial; and no officer, non-commissioned officer, soldier or follower of the army, shall be tried a second time for the same offence.

ART. 88. No person shall be liable to be tried and punished by a general court-martial for any offence which shall appear to have been committed more than two years before the issuing of the order for such trial, unless the person, by reason of having absented himself, or some other manifest impediment, shall not have been amenable to justice within that period.

ART. 89. Every officer authorized to order a general court-martial shall have power to pardon or mitigate any punishment ordered by such court, except the sentence of death, or of cashiering an officer; which, in the cases where he has authority (by article 65) to carry them into execution, he may suspend until the pleasure of the President of the United States can be known; which suspension, together with copies of the proceedings of the court-martial, the said officer shall immediately transmit to the President for his determination. And the Colonel or Commanding Officer of the regiment or garrison, where any regimental or garrison court-martial shall be held, may pardon or mitigate any punishment ordered by such court to be inflicted.

* So much of these rules and articles as authorizes the infliction of corporeal punishment, by stripes or lashes, was specially repealed by act of 16th May, 1812. By act of 2d March, 1833, the repealing act was repealed, so far as it applied to the crime of desertion, which, of course, revived the punishment by lashes for that offence.

ART. 90. Every Judge-Advocate, or person officiating as such, at any general court-martial, shall transmit, with as much expedition as the opportunity of time and distance of place can admit, the original proceedings and sentence of such court-martial to the Secretary of War; which said original proceedings and sentence shall be carefully kept and preserved in the office of said Secretary, to the end that the persons entitled thereto may be enabled, upon application to the said office, to obtain copies thereof.

The party tried by any general court-martial shall, upon demand thereof, made by himself, or by any person or persons in his behalf, be entitled to a copy of the sentence and proceedings of such court-martial.

ART. 91. In cases where the General, or Commanding Officer, may order a court of inquiry to examine into the nature of any transaction, accusation or imputation against any officer or soldier, the said court shall consist of one or more officers, not exceeding three, and a Judge-Advocate, or other suitable person, as a recorder, to reduce the proceedings and evidence to writing; all of whom shall be sworn to the faithful performance of their duty. The court shall have the same power to summon witnesses as a court-martial, and to examine them on oath. But they shall not give their opinion on the merits of the case, except they shall be thereto specially required. The parties accused shall also be permitted to cross-examine and interrogate the witnesses, so as to investigate fully the circumstances in the question.

ART. 92. The proceedings of a court of inquiry must be authenticated by the signature of the recorder and the President, and delivered to the Commanding Officer, and the said proceedings may be admitted as evidence by a court-martial, in cases not capital, or extending to the dismissal of an officer, provided that the circumstances are such that oral testimony cannot be obtained. But as courts of inquiry may be perverted to dishonorable purposes, and may be considered as engines of destruction to military merit, in the hands of weak and envious commandants, they are hereby prohibited, unless directed by the President of the United States, or demanded by the accused.

ART. 93. The Judge-Advocate or recorder shall administer to the members the following oath :

“ You shall well and truly examine and inquire, according to your evidence, into the matter now before you, without partiality, favor, affection, prejudice or hope of reward. So help you God.”

After which the President shall administer to the Judge-Advocate or recorder the following oath :

“ You, A. B., do swear that you will, according to your best abilities, accurately and impartially record the proceedings of the court, and the evidence to be given in the case in hearing. So help you God.”

The witnesses shall take the same oath as witnesses sworn before a court-martial.

ART. 94. When any commissioned officer shall die or be killed in the service of the United States, the Major of the regiment, or the officer doing the Major's duty in his absence, or, in any post or garrison, the second officer in command, or the assistant military agent, shall immediately secure all his effects or equipage, then in camp or quarters, and shall make an inventory thereof, and forthwith transmit the same to the office of the Department of War, to the end that his executors or administrators may receive the same.

ART. 95. When any non-commissioned officer or soldier shall die or be killed in the service of the United States, the then Commanding Officer of the troop or company shall, in the presence of two other commissioned officers, take an account of what effects he died possessed of, above his arms and accoutrements, and transmit the same to the office of the Department of War, which said effects are to be accounted for and paid to the representatives of such deceased non-commissioned officer or soldier. And in case any of the officers, so authorized to take care of the effects of deceased officers and soldiers, should, before they have accounted to their representatives for the same, have occasion to leave the regiment or post, by preferment or otherwise, they shall, before they be permitted to quit the same, deposit in the hands of the Commanding Officer, or of the assistant military agent, all the effects of such deceased non-commissioned officers and soldiers, in order that the same may be secured for, and paid to, their respective representatives.

ART. 96. All officers, conductors, gunners, matrosses, drivers, or other persons whatsoever, receiving pay or hire in the service of the artillery or corps of engineers of the United States, shall be governed by the aforesaid rules and articles, and shall be subject to be tried by courts-martial, in like manner with the officers and soldiers of the other troops in the service of the United States.

ART. 97.
